SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Seeds for Present Sowing.

There are a number of plants that in order to obtain the best stock it is necessary that the seeds be sown during January. Centaurea gymnocarpa is slow in making its growth and to have nice plants for edging the beds of geraniums and other plants an early start is required. Vinca rosea should be sown in January to obtain a good blooming stock at planting time. Lobelias should be sown by February 1 that fine stock plants may be had. If it is proposed to reset the smilax beds next year this is the time to get the seed started. Begonia Vernon and the other summer blooming varieties, if sown early, make fine plants by May, full of flowers. Gloxinias and tuberous begonias can be sown at this time and blooming plants had for the coming summer. Many growers have given up the propagation of verbenas from cuttings and depend upon seedlings and to have a nicely branched plant by June 1 the seed should be sown the last of January.
Another useful border plant is Pyreth-rum aureum (golden feverfew) and this should be sown early to get good sized plants at bedding out time.
There are not many cannas these days, grown from seed, but anyone intending to grow them in that manner should sow the seeds in January.
These seeds will germinate much more readily and evenly if soaked in water for 24 hours before planting. Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri should be sown now when there is good heat in the greenhouses, and these seeds, like the cannas, start much more evenly if soaked.

Spiraeas.

The spiraeas are always a very useful plant at Easter, but they are classed among the cheaper plants at that time, so should be grown in such a way that they do not occupy valuable space any more than necessary.
They should be brought into a cool house by the middle of January and until the foliage begins to grow can be placed along the edge of the walks if room is not available, but they must not be left standing in this location too long, for when the leaves begin to unfold they quickly draw toward the light and a plant growing to one side of the pot will be the result. So as soon as growth starts they should be placed on the bench in full light.

They can be grown quite close together for some time, but when the foliage begins to touch that of the plants beside it they should be spaced out and given room enough for the plants to grow shapely. Spiraeas require a large quantity of water during their entire culture, especially those that are potted in as small a pot as possible, which is the general custom with all growers. To make the large specimens, two or three clumps are planted in the same pot when started.
These will make large plants for church decorations at Easter. If the plants are grown in a house which is to be fumigated by tobacco smoke they should either be removed from the house or well covered with papers; the foliage quickly burns when subjected to tobacco smoke and the plants are blemished.

Cyclamens.

"What can we do with the old cyclamen plants?" is a question often asked by many growers. As a rule the answer is, "Throw them away," for a plant can be grown to a 6-inch or 7-inch pot size in 16 months. That is, seed sown in September will produce such a plant for Christmas the following year, and it is uncertain how the old plants will carry through the spring and summer. There is a limited demand for cyclamen plants in larger sizes than 7-inch pots and they must of necessity bring a good
After they are through blooming the best way to handle them is to shake the old soil out and pot them up in fresh soil, two parts loam, one part well rotted manure and one part leaf mold, with a good sprinkling of sharp sand. If the soil is inclined to be heavy and sticky add more sand. They can frequently be potted in a pot a size smaller than that in which they have been growing. Place them in a cool temperature, that is, in a house from 45° to 50° at night, so as to encourage root action and slow growth. It used to be the custom to dry the bulbs off so that they lost all their foliage, and start them in the spring, but growers have found that our springs and summers are too hot and dry and it is often difficult to make the bulb, after it has been dried off, break a good luxuriant foliage, and it is far better to keep the plant growing all the time. As the warm, sunny days of spring come on, the plants should be slightly shaded and as early as possible placed in cold frames and the glass shaded. The shade should not be made too heavy or the leaves will become drawn and an unshapely plant be the result. After the plants have begun to grow care should be taken that they do not become pot bound, but shifted into large sizes as soon as necessary. The watering of this stock will require constant study and attention. They should never become too dry and it is very easy to over-water, so they will require looking after very closely until a good growth has been encouraged.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine.

For the large plants for next winter's flowering we are placing the cuttings in the propagating bench now. The plants were selected before Christmas and strong, healthy specimens taken for propagation. The flowers were removed and the plants given a warm location that the best vigor might be maintained. Any leaf showing blemish is discarded, only clean, healthy leaves being used from which to raise the young stock. A warm propagating bed is chosen for these plants and the stems are inserted in the sand deep enough so that about half an inch of the leaf is below the surface. They are kept moist and warm until they are rooted, when they are potted in 2½-inch pots and placed in a warm house and shifted along as required. This may seem a trifle early by many growers to start the propagating of these plants, but there is always demand for some large specimens and fine leaves are obtainable at this time and they root easily during January and February when the propagating bench is warm. The plants will require considerable care and attention during the heated spell of July and August, but with plenty of ventilation and a light shade, they are easily kept moving and make fine plants for the holidays.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The Syracuse Gardens Co., which filed a petition in bankruptcy last November, will have a hearing January 24. Leonard T. Haight, of this city, has been appointed trustee.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.—The Gran Quivira has been incorporated by P. L. Jackson, Harold Kayton and Russell C. Hill, its object being to assist the Battle of Flowers Association in the parade on San Jacinto day.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—Fire which originated in the heating plant destroyed the home and damaged the greenhouse of Herman Meyer, College street Florist. The loss is over $2,000, partly covered by insurance.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

Cold Wave at Fort Smith, Ark.

A cold wave which visited Fort Smith, Ark., January 12, destroyed many flowers in that city, probably the heaviest individual loss being sustained by George Rye, who suffered damage to the extent of about $500. At the greenhouses the gas pressure was not sufficient to keep the houses warm and about 4,000 narcissi, 350 lily plants and a number of seedlings were killed. At the retail establishment on the Plaza fires were kept going all night and all of the stock was saved. A drop of 65 degrees in six hours was recorded.

Charles L. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn.

Appointed Director of the S. A. F. by President MacRorie.

The Fourteenth of February.

In the general preparedness for St. Valentine's day all the last year's left over stock of hampers, boxes, arrows, motto cards, etc., have been brought forth and put in the best possible shape. The novelty stock of the supply houses is gone over and selections made of things that have merit.

A heart-shaped basket in reddish gilt, with small gilt arrows tied to the handle, made quite a hit last season—it was very effective when filled with red roses. Heart-shaped hamper baskets fill nicely, the addition of small gilt arrows giving a finishing touch. The gilt arrows in various sizes is good stock, as they can be attached to bouquet, box of flowers or plant, with appropriate ribbons and emphasize the fact that they convey a gift from St. Valentine. Heart-shaped boxes are very appropriate and almost necessary for the corsage bouquets and bunches of violets. A great variety of cupids and gilt paper arrows are available, which can be attached to ribbons or stuck on boxes or baskets; they are not expensive and are well worth their cost in effectiveness. Boxes of cut flowers of all kinds are appropriate and are given the special significance of the day by the addition of any of the above-named articles. Pussy willows are now in season and suggest an air of spring to almost any combination. They arrange especially well with daffodils.

Any well-flowered plant, such as an azalea, cyclamen, primula, pot of daffodils, etc., makes good valentine material when nicely papered and finished with the necessary decorations of the day. Small outline hearts in various sizes, mapped with red frieze similar to the miniature Christmas auto wreaths, are very unique and make an appropriate and fitting decoration in themselves. They can be trimmed with small sprays of red and silvered or gilt ruscus, red ribbons, and small gilt hearts. They are effective as table ornaments; also tied in boxes or baskets of flowers.

The corsage bouquet is the most popular of all arrangements, especially with the young men. Violets for a long time were almost the only flower, but they now have a hard time to hold their own in the race. The orchid sweet peas are now a great favorite, as are the yellow and pink Sweetheart roses. The Mrs. Ward rose also has many admirers, while cattleyas, gardenias and lilies of the valley, together with the various possible combinations, make a large assortment to choose from. The supply houses have in the past year or two added to their stock of corsage ribbons, so that it is possible to get two-toned effects in all shades of color from white to crimson. Quality corsage pins are also a feature that should not be overlooked—a good pin gives a finish and is kept for future use. K.

Shipping and Delivery Labels.

The florist with a shipping and delivery trade is very liable to run out of address labels when business becomes brisk at any special season, and it is well to look into the stock now and order a new supply to cover the busy season close at hand. When there is occasion to use shipping labels they are needed in a hurry, and there is no time to print them. For the purpose of florists, wholesale and retail, there is no more serviceable article than the Red Rose Leaf label adopted by the S. A. F., with the legend "Fresh Flowers" in large white lettering. This is a very attractive label and the size commonly used is 6½x4½ inches. All special sizes can be made according to order. The American Florist Co., 440 South Dearborn street, Chicago, supplies the above size printed in two colors, red and black, on good gummed paper, your business card and the leaf, at $4.50 per thousand, 500 for $2.85. This label is known to express and railroad men all over the country and they fully understand the perishable nature of packages bearing this label and deliver them quickly to avoid the costly risk of losses caused by delay.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—The New Orleans Horticultural Society will hold a flower show in the Auditorium, April 5-8.

TAMPA, FLA.—The Eagle Lake Nurseries will open a branch in this city at 911 Citizens' Bank building. C. J. Edwards will be in charge.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA.—The Williamsport Floral Co. will move its downtown store to 146 West Fourth street, April 1. A greenhouse will be erected at the new location.

Irises for Southwestern Gardens.

The iris or flag, fleur de lis of the French, is one of the oldest and best known of our cultivated flowers. The name "iris" means rainbow and was given to this flower by the Greeks on account of its many and bright colors. It is only within recent years, however, that the iris began to receive the attention from gardeners and florists that it merits. As a result of this, a number of new garden varieties have appeared within a remarkably short time. New garden sorts are not hard to originate since the plants cross or hybridize readily, after which the seedling plants are propagated from the offshoots. For centuries irises have been favorites with the Japanese, whose florists have originated from a single species as many kinds as make up the German iris group which includes several species. Japanese irises are among the finest of this group of flowers, though the writer cannot recommend them for growing in Arizona. Irises are among the few flowers that grow satisfactorily over nearly all of our country.

Botanical characters.—Irises form one of the largest groups of flowers and are among the hardiest of our perennials. There are about 175 species known to botanists, of which more than 100 species, represented by many varieties, are in cultivation. The various strains or garden sorts number many thousands. Irises are native over most of the north temperate zone so that the group is tolerant to a considerable range of growing conditions. There are two very distinct sections of irises, viz., bulbous species, or those growing from bulb-like corms, of which the Spanish iris is an example, and rhizomatous irises or those growing from creeping rootstocks or fleshy rhizomes, the common German iris being a representative. Each of these sections is made up of a number of distinct groups, the members of which require somewhat different treatment in cultivation. Irises are related to orchids, on the one hand, with which flowers they are close rivals in color, and to lilies and amaryllises on the other. Iris flowers are always objects of admiration on account of their size and interesting make-up. Their color display ranges from snow white and delicate yellow to lilac, blue, and the deepest bronze, purple or nearly black with all the intermediate shades and with the most intricate mottled and veined effects.

Adaptability to our conditions and hardiness.—There are few perennial flowers that are more uniformly successful in Arizona, both in our valleys and at higher altitudes, than the iris. The hardier ones can endure aridity and prolong heat and drought, grow with little or much irrigation, thrive in a variety of soils, and even tolerate some alkali. They succeed generally with the most ordinary care. By virtue of their fleshy rootstocks or bulbs wherein they store up food, they are able to tide over unfavorable growing periods with the least attention. On account of their hardiness, adaptability and beauty they should have a place in southwestern flower gardens.

Many of us think of irises as plants requiring much soil moisture, because we recall having seen wild ones growing in water, but this is not true of a large number of them, including such forms as the well known

WEDDING BOUQUET BY GEO. WIENHOEBER, CHICAGO.

Ophelia Roses and Lily of the Valley.

German irises, dwarf irises and Spanish irises. The writer knows of clumps of German irises that have continued growth for several years on dry Arizona mesas with only scant rainfall and the occasional flood water that collected in the basins encircling them. Of course, such plants have not made the best growth, but they have blossomed annually. In the heavy red clay soil in the cemetery of one of the large Arizona mining towns irises are very much planted and succeed beyond all expectations. When established in such soil they grow and blossom year after year, almost without care, and they have come to be known as "Easter lilies," on account of flowering commonly at that season. The writer knows of no other flower that would succeed so well under the same trying conditions. C. S. Harrison of York, Neb., says of irises: "They are the best drought resisters we have. Last season was very hot and dry, often the burning sirocco winds were blowing fiercely with the mercury soaring above a hundred, and with only two inches of rainfall from May 1, until October 1, and yet we did not lose a plant in 150,000. In digging them in September, the ground was as dry as an ash heap, but the roots seemed to have gathered and stored the moisture."

Uses in ornamentation.—Irises are used to advantage in many kinds of planting, including massing in beds, setting along borders of walks and drives or in obscure corners, planting against low foundations and fences and naturalizing in woods, along brooks and around lily ponds. They are excellent for formal bedding on account of their habit of growth and stately appearing flowers. Their leaves are smooth and rather thick so that they neither collect dust nor sunscald badly, and at nearly all seasons they appear green and decorative.

Culture of irises.—Irises do best with rather limited attention. In this respect they resemble many wild flowers. They thrive in an average soil not too rich and with reasonable drainage and irrigation. They should have protection against strong winds, at least during the flowering season; and they may have full exposure to the sun, though under our conditions they tolerate considerable shade and hence grow well among other plants or against buildings. The fleshy rhizomes should be planted flat and covered with soil to a depth of about one-half to two-thirds their diameters. They should not be given much moisture until they show signs of growth, particularly if they are dormant or partly dried up, as they may rot. They may be planted out soon after flowering when they begin a new growth, or in the early fall, August to October. Once established, they can be left undisturbed as long as they continue to do well, because, generally, irises resent transplanting and other disturbances of their roots. One may lose a season's flowers by setting them too late or digging about them needlessly. They propagate rapidly from the fleshy rhizomes or bulbs and the excess of these may be removed carefully at the proper times and replanted without disturbing the older plants, or the entire plant may be divided and transplanted once in three or four years. It is not uncommon to see large clumps of irises vigorous and floriferous after seven or eight years' growth. They should have a reasonable supply of soil moisture during their spring growth and flowering season, though in the summer they can get along with very little irrigation, and in fact they seem to do better with a period of rest during our hot weather. Excessive irrigation in summer may cause the bulbs to rot. Spanish irises, and in particular, those from Syria should be allowed to dessicate and bake in summer.

Dwarf irises.—Dwarf irises grow but a few inches high and form dense mats over the surface. These are among the earliest to bloom here, the flowers appearing during March and the first half of April. The colors vary from deep purple and blue to lilac, yellow and pure white, according to the variety. The flowers are always attractive because of their earliness, though rather short-stemmed. Iris pumila, with its many varieties, is perhaps the best of the group. Another one of interest is Iris arenaria, which thrives in light sandy soils and is more drought resistant than the others. Its flowers are bright yellow striped with purplish-brown below, and it will grow among rocks and also as a potted plant. The rhizomes or rootstocks of this class of irises are slender and should be planted one to two inches deep.

German irises.—German irises are the ones ordinarily seen in gardens. They are commonly known as flags, the blue or purple ones being "blue flags." They grow to a height of two feet or more and have rather broad leaves. Their rhizomes are short, thick and fleshy. They are hardy and well adapted to southwestern conditions, though they can also withstand many degrees below zero. They represent garden hybrids and crosses of several species and varieties and hence show considerable variation in flower and leaf. The flowers appear in April and May and are large and showy and borne on stout, erect stems which exceeds the leaves. They range in color from nearly black to deep purple, light blue, lilac, bright yellow, and pure white with many intermediate shades. Some of the more attractive ones are deep purple streaked with bronze and yellow. Iris florentina, the orris root of commerce, is nearly related to the forms of the German iris. Its flowers are pure white and it gives promise of succeeding well here.

Beardless irises.—These have mostly rather narrow leaves and thinner and less fleshy rhizomes than those of the Germanica group. The outer flower parts or sepals are destitute of a beard or crest. The rhizomes of these should be planted at an angle and somewhat deeper than those that are thick and fleshy. These are mostly tall and strong growing species and thrive with an abundance of water and in rather rich soil. They are splendid for growing about lily ponds and along brooks. The Japanese iris already noted belongs to this group of plants. Iris siberica, with blue or white flowers; Iris pseudacorus, with yellow flowers, and Iris orientalis, with white or yellow flowers, are among the best known and much planted. Iris versicolor and Iris fulva, native to our own country, also belong here and should be planted more than they are.

Bulbous irises.—These are represented by Spanish and English irises. The bulbs should be planted early in the fall to depths of two or three inches. They do best in sandy soils with good exposure and the ground should not be enriched with manure. They cannot endure extreme cold in the winter as German irises can, but they are more tolerant to heat and aridity, and after flowering they should not be given much water. They make the best showing when planted closely together in clumps, preferably where they will not need to be disturbed for some time. The bulbs increase rapidly and may be divided and replanted every three or four years. The flowers are characterized by bright and contrasting colors and in most kinds appear in May and June, though the species from Syria and Palestine blossoms as early as February. This class of irises is well suited to our climatic conditions, since its home is in the Mediterranean country. Iris xiphium (Spanish Iris), Iris xiphoides (English Iris), Iris filifolia and Iris reticulata with their varieties are among the most popular for planting.

Irises propagate quite rapidly from the roots, and hence a few plants each of a well selected list of varieties will enable one to have a good collection of the flowers in a short time with small outlay. The writer recommends western grown plants for our conditions. The plants may be purchased from almost any reliable seed or plant company and also from nurseries.—J. J. THORNER, Univ. of Arizona Agri. Experiment Station.

Houston Convention Garden.

We present herewith a plan of the Convention garden, which will be a feature of the Houston convention of the Society of American Florists to be held in that city, August 15-17. Plans for the garden are now complete and the beds are ready to receive plantings. All florists, nurserymen and others who have hardy stock to plant are requested to send their reservations to John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., 53 West Twenty-eighth street, New York, who will in turn forward them to C. L. Brock, superintendent of the Houston Convention garden, Houston, Tex. As all hardy plants should be planted not later than April 1, there is little time left to get the planting under way. All exhibitors, who are doubtful about the stock that can be grown in Texas should write either to Superintendent Brock or to R. C. Kerr, vice-president of the Society of American Florists, Houston, Tex., who will advise them what plants will do well in the south. It was at first thought best to publish a list of such plants, but there are so many possibilities of varieties being overlooked and omitted. It was decided to have exhibitors name their varieties, and those in charge of the Convention garden will gladly give the desired information. Mr. Kerr reports that there are few plants that will grow in other climates that will not do well in Texas in the summer.

CARTHAGE, MO.—Oscar De Graff of Joplin, Mo., has purchased the greenhouses of T. R. Johnson in this city.

THE ROSE.

Grafting.

As stated in our last article, grafting has become a necessity, in reference to most of the varieties of roses grown under glass, and every well equipped rose range has its grafting case or a house especially adapted to grafting in quantities on the large commercial places, to the little make-shift case on some very small range. We have gone over the work in detail several times in these columns, and there is nothing very novel at this time about the operation of grafting, yet there is always someone breaking into the game, and even now we hear a grower say now and then, that he would like to do his own grafting, but would be afraid he would make a mess of it. I wish to state here, that after many, many years of grafting that any painstaking grower that will attend to the comparatively few details to be met with from beginning to end in the work, as I am about to describe it in this article, can easily get a high percentage strike, and if they once get the "hang" of the thing, the work is not only easy, but very fascinating. To be able to produce a strong, sturdy, rose plant with a 2-year old root on it in a small pot in a few weeks is an interesting, and we think, economical operation, considering the advantages obtained by having your own selected stock for planting, and the responsive habit that all home grafted plants have if handled with any skill at all. So to those that are interested the following suggestion, we trust, will be of some help to them:

To begin, we will go back to our last article, and repeat, that in order to have good, strong, grafted stock it is most important to have good English or Irish Manetti stocks, which are far superior, we think, to the French grown stocks, as the wood is very solid on the former, whereas the wood of the latter is pethy, although they may show a heavier set of roots. So procure your Manettis at once and pot them off in a good stiff rose soil, one part of old well-rotted cow manure to three parts good stiff sod soil, finely screened. They must be potted firmly and care taken that the plants will not jump up in the pots, a sign that the potting soil is too dry, and that the soil was not pressed firmly enough around the roots. Place the potted plants under a carnation bench or in a house where the temperature does not exceed 45 degrees at night, and keep the soil comparatively wet, and the tops sprayed twice a day. A Manetti plant in the proper condition for grafting will show a plumping of the eyes, and on examining the roots they should just show the smallest of white roots breaking from the old roots. When you see this you can start grafting.

The grafting cases, as before stated, should be carefully constructed, and should be located so a partition of an adjoining house to the south will shade the case, yet they will still have plenty of overhead light. No sunlight should ever strike the case or shading placed directly over the sash of the case, for good results. The case can be made of one-inch rough boards. If a leanto case, the front can be 12 inches high, with a one-inch square strip tacked on the partition wall to support the sash, giving three to four inches fall to the sash in three feet. A case three feet wide will be found a very convenient one to work. The bottom of the case should be drained, leaving a space at least $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch wide between the boards. Place a layer of moss about an inch deep over the bottom of the case, and take great pains in stopping up any crack or knot-hole that will let in any hot air from the bottom heat. Now place a layer of finely screened ashes over the moss and pack it firmly and smoothly, and give it a thorough soaking. Place the sash on the case, and be careful to put a 2-inch strip at the sash joints so as to have lap enough to make a tight joint. Bear in mind the case must be as nearly air-tight as it can be made. Too much ashes in the case will require an excess of bottom heat; too little will cause the scions to wilt from lack of moisture. The above quantity will be found about right. The bottom heat should be enclosed; any good waterproof building paper will answer the purpose, reaching from the case to the walk and the ends can be closed with several thicknesses of cloth of any kind, so it can be easily raised to turn on or off a coil. Place several thermometers in the case and keep them there about 20 feet apart. When you find that the case is capable of holding and keeping a temperature of 75° to 80° in the coldest of weather, you will then have it right. Do not fail to test the case before starting to graft.

Select a place in the house to work at, or a place convenient to the case that will give you room for the help you will use so that each man will have room enough for a box of Manetti, and an empty flat to place the grafts in; a shallow dish filled with clean water always with the chill taken out of the water. Cut the raffia in 12-inch lengths, split each strand once, and moisten it. Each man should have two knives, a heavy one for cutting the Manetti and a budding knife for the scions; both should be kept in keen edge, as it is next to impossible to make a good graft with a dull knife. We now come to the part of the work that requires some courage and that is the selecting of the wood, as only the best of wood should be used. A great many scions can be secured by leaving an extra eye or two on the plants when cutting the flowers, but this seldom gives one enough wood to enable the grafters to fill the case rapidly. So in order to have the best of stock one must snap out the buds as soon as they show color; then in about three or four days the eyes will plump up and the wood is then ready for working. The best grafts are the ones that match up evenly, especially if one is grafting to sell, as they ship with far less breakage. After selecting the wood have a large jar of fresh water and place the stems well down in it or lay on clean newspaper and spray. Then cut the wood into scions, by cutting the stems a quarter of an inch above each eye; this leaves an eye and foliage for each scion. Make a slanting cut below each eye, about $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch long, no longer, and a similar cut on the Manetti about one inch above the pot. volume of material displayed upon the exhibition tables; and this year, notwithstanding the terrible war that seems to overshadow everything, there was perhaps a larger and more interesting display than ever. This took place in the Royal Horticultural hall, Westminster, September 16, and was remarkably well patronized by the rose-loving public.

The schedule contained over 40 classes and gave full scope to both professional and amateur growers; and ladies had an opportunity of displaying their skill in the table decoration classes. As a rule these autumn displays of roses give an opportunity to the Scottish and North of England rose growers to secure prizes that the southern growers could not hope to win, as the best of their blooms are over at the time of the show. This year, however, the northern men were not allowed to have it all their own way. They met foemen worthy of their steel, not from the southern counties, but from Erin's Isle. The Dicksons from Belfast, Newtownards and Dublin, and the famous McGredys from Portadown, entered the lists, and treating whatever German submarines there may have been in the Irish Sea with contempt, they crossed over from Ireland, and J. Cocker & Sons, of Aberdeen rose fame, went down before the attack of Alexander Dickson & Sons of Newtownards, in the section that was open to the whole trade for an exhibit of 36 blooms of distinct varieties.

Of the novelties, the most remarkable came from Samuel McGredy & Sons. They included a new seedling called Lady Phyllis Moore, a beautiful hybrid tea rose, vigorous and branching in growth, and possessing extra good perpetual qualities. The large white flowers, just tinted with a shade of shell pink in the centre of the pointed buds, were exquisite, and were given a certificate of merit by the society. Tipperary was another grand new hybrid tea rose in fine form, honored in the same way. The flowers are creamy white, suffused with beautiful soft yellow shades in the center. Surpassing these in hold the scion in place. If the scion is smaller than the Manetti, be sure that the back matches at one side and at the bottom; start wrapping quite firmly the whole length of the splice and let the last wind go around the forefinger that can be lifted now. This will leave a loop; when the finger is withdrawn push the end through the loop thus made, and draw tight and you are ready for the next one.

Practice this tie patiently until you get it to working smoothly before starting on the good wood. Place each box of grafted plants into case as soon as the flats are filled and sprinkle with a fine rose on the can. Close the case as quickly as possible after placing grafts in case. Never put a dry plant in the case. After the case is filled it will require very little attention for the first week or ten days. And the sash should not be lifted or the plants benched unless the foliage becomes dry, then spray over the top and close down quickly. If the foliage becomes dry during the first week this proves that there was not enough moss and ashes used, or that too little water was used on the ashes. In about two weeks the plants should be gone over and the Manetti sprouts removed. Be careful when doing this not to break off the tender growths now coming on the scions. The grafts should remain in the case about four weeks. Do not begin to air until the callous at the splice takes on a brownish color, then start by putting a label, the flat way, under the sash, increasing the air gradually until the sash can be removed or the plants placed on the outside. At the least sign of wilting, the sash should be lowered, spraying the plants with a hand sprinkler first. The first airing is perhaps safer if put on at night and reduced in the daytime as the plants will be braced up without ing. The young grafts, when first taken out of the case, will require spraying quite frequently, even though shaded. Look out for this and keep the walks wet and the atmosphere damp. E.

Autumn Rose Show in London.

Of late years the English National Rose Society has made great efforts to popularize those varieties of roses that bloom freely, not only during the summer months, but which also continue to throw their blossoms well into the late autumn. Each year there has been an appreciable increase in the number of exhibitors and in the beauty, however, were Modesty and Golden Emblem, both of which were awarded a gold medal. Modesty has a fine form, creamy white in color, tinted with yellow in the center, and suffused with pink on the outer petals, while Golden Emblem, as one might expect, has bright golden yellow blooms, magnificent in bud, and washed with a tinge of coppery red in the very center. When full blown the blooms struck me as being a bit too loose and centerless. Nevertheless, it is a fine novelty, and Samuel McGredy & Sons should be proud of having secured four sterling good roses that may bring them still greater fame and wealth. They had several other novelties, but they did not come up to certificate or gold medal standard this time.

Taking the exhibition as a whole the varieties that seemed to stand out conspicuously as good autumn roses were Frau Karl Druschki, which some anti-Teutonic growers have christened Snow Queen (perhaps only till the end of the war), Lady Hillingdon, with its fine buff apricot blooms; Mrs. Herbert Stevens, a delicate pure white; Madame Ed. Heriot, orange and crimson; Mrs. E. G. Hill, deep pink and white; the deep crimson Richmond; the Lyons rose, Mrs. Aaron Ward, a beautiful shell pink; Ophelia, Molly Sharman Crawford, a lovely cream white variety, and Hugh Dickson, deep crimson. There were, of course, many other varieties appealing to the public taste, but I mention only those that seemed to hold their heads somewhat higher than the others for the time of year. The best individual bloom in the show, however, was voted to be Gloire de Chedane Guinoisseau.

Among the trade exhibitors that put up striking groups, mention may be made of B. R. Cant & Sons, and Frank Cant & Co., both of Colchester; W. & J. Brown, Stamford; John Pigg, Royston, Herts, a coming grower at exhibitions in London; Walter Easlea, Leigh on Sea; G. W. Burgh, Peterborough; Geo. Prince, Longworth, Oxfordshire; Chaplin Bros., Waltham Cross; Chas. Turner, Slough; Frank Spooner, Horsell, Woking; John Mattock, Headington, Oxford; Hobbies, Dereham, Norfolk;

Jackman & Sons, Woking; Stuart Low & Co., Bush Hill Park, Enfield; R. Harkness & Co., Hitchin (now managed by one of the McGredys from Ireland); and of course Wm. Paul & Sons from Waltham Cross.

The methods of showing were various. Individual blooms were stuck up in rows on boards in the old fashioned way—still probably the only way that admits of proper judging. A freer style was adopted with most of the other exhibits, and sprays were freely used with bamboo tubes of various lengths and sizes to secure a varied effect. In one case, that of John Pigg of Royston, a very effective exhibit was made with a windmill of Madame Ed. Heriot blooms densely packed together, while the arms of the windmill were masses of Molly Sharman Crawford. In a large number of cases the rose sprays were staged in wicker baskets from 12 to 15 or even 18 inches across. These were stuffed with moss. Tubes holding water were inserted and practically hidden from view and in these the sprays of bloom were placed. They were quite a feature of the show, and obliterated a good deal of that monotony that characterized rose exhibitions of former years.

As an adjunct to the show, a class was made for the display of various forms of rose fruits or "hips". Elisha J. Hicks of Twyford, Berks, and B. R. Cant & Sons, Colchester, took advantage of it, and made a very interesting display of rose hips, in which forms of rugosa and pomifera, were numerous, and those of R. Moyesi, conspicuous owing to their peculiar shape—something like a broad flask tapering to a very narrow neck, and then spreading out into the five starry calyx lobes.

SHORTAGE IN SUPPLY UNRELIEVED.

A most severe cold wave gripped this city and surrounding territory, Saturday, January 15, and is still holding forth, with the mercury loitering around zero. About the only good it has done has been to check the gripe and pneumonia epidemic, which has held forth since New Years. A person without the gripe or pneumonia during this period was considered 'way behind the times, and the way it crippled some of the store forces was unprecedented. The days are still somewhat dark, however, and coupling this with the heavy cold snap, finds the flower market still in bad shape for supplying its trade. The worst sufferers are roses, with sweet peas and lilies next in line. It surely is odd to note the scarcity of narcissi also, and it has been some years since practically unlimited quantities of these flowers could be had at any and all times, but it's a different tale now. Anything that looks like a flower will bring a high price, and there is really no relief from the prevailing scarcity and high prices in sight. Artificial stock has the call these days, although it is against the customs of many dealers to use artificial flowers. Greens of all kinds are very good and plentiful, but flowers would be a lot more useful.

George Marshall, of the McCallum Co., was married Wednesday, January 12, to Miss Jane Thomas, of Charles street, Knoxville. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall quickly left on their honeymoon trip and are now sunning themselves near Jacksonville, Fla. At home after March first, at their new residence, on Alice street, Knoxville.

Mr. Chas. Patton, manager of the reorganized Valley Greenhouse Co., of Sewickley, gives encouraging reports of a growing business, and can always be found on the job hustling.

Wm. Loew has just recovered from a severe attack of gripe, which lasted about two weeks, but is on the job again.

Knoxville Florists' Society.

The mid-winter banquet of the Knoxville Florists' Society, an event that has been observed by that organization for a number of years and has been so thoroughly enjoyed that it will doubtless continue to be a feature for many years to come, took place in the Atkin hotel, Knoxville, Tenn., January 10, about 50 members of the society and their friends being present. These annual dinners have proved to be great successes, bringing the trade closer together and creating a feeling of good will among the florists. Among the guests of the society on this occasion, an illustration of which is presented herewith, were John Van Zonneveld, of Sassenheim, Holland, and City Judge Robt. P. Williams of Knoxville, both of whom made interesting addresses.

OBITUARY.

Albert McCullough.

Albert McCullough, senior member of the firm of the J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., Cincinnati, O., died at the Christ hospital, that city, January 13, age 64 years. Mr. McCullough's serious illness was noted in our Seed Trade Department last week, but it was not then felt that the end was so close. Upon the completion of his school career Mr. McCullough embarked in the seed business with his father, the late J. M. McCullough. When his father died Mr. McCullough and his brother, J. Charles, assumed charge of the business and later the latter established the J. Charles McCullough Seed Co. Albert McCullough then founded the firm of which he was head at the time of his demise. His paternal grandmother is said to have been the first white girl to have set foot in Cincinnati. At the time of his death he was a director of the Fourth National Bank. He formerly was president and a director of the chamber of commerce. He was a member of the nominating committee the last year. Mr. McCullough held a prominent place in the business life of Cincinnati and was a leader in all movements for its welfare during the past 40 years. While never taking any active part in politics he was twice mayor of Pleasant Ridge, a suburb of the city. He was a familiar figure at the affairs of the Queen City, Hyde Park Golf and Business Men's clubs.

Mr. McCullough always took an active part in the work of the American Seed Trade Association, of which he had been a member since its inception in 1883. He was elected secretary and treasurer at the fourth annual meeting held at Niagara Falls, N. Y., in 1886, serving three years. At the Saratoga convention in 1890 he was elected president and was again chosen for this office at the Chicago convention in 1900. His name appears frequently on committees of the association and he was ever a willing and able worker in the interest of the seed trade. He was considered an authority on grass and farm seeds.

The funeral was held from his residence in Pleasant Ridge, Saturday, January 15. Many of his friends and business associates attended, services being conducted by Rev. W. L. Schmalhorst and Rev. Gervaise Roughton, with interment in the family lot in Spring Grove cemetery. The pallbearers were the nephews of the deceased, Robert O. Strong, A. P. Drake, George McCullough, F. R. McCullough, G. R. Moore and E. E. Lester. Many strikingly beautiful floral tributes were received from local friends and those in distant leading cities. The firm's business establishments were closed January 14 and 15.

Surviving Mr. McCullough are his widow, two daughters, Misses Ella M. and Josephine; a son, Harry B. McCullough, who is secretary and treasurer of his father's firm; a brother, J. Charles McCullough, and one sister, Mrs. M. T. Drake, Palm Beach, Fla.

Abner Branson.

Abner Branson, pioneer settler and proprietor of the New Sharon Nurseries, died January 8, at the Abbott hospital, Oskaloosa, Ia., as a result of several months' sickness with cancer. Mr. Branson was 79 years of age and had been a resident of the state of Iowa since 1853, coming here only seven years after the state had been admitted to the Union. He has been closely connected with the state horticultural work, at one time being president of the Iowa State Horticultural Society and also an officer of the State Nurserymen's Association. He had been in the nursery business in New Sharon and Oskaloosa, Ia., for a long time and through his efforts has secured much honor for Mahaska county in horticultural circles. As an authority on tree and plant life he was a much sought for and widely known authority and has been connected with the state's leading horticultural societies for many years. His work will be missed throughout the state.

Miss Melissa M. Budlong.

Miss Melissa M. Budlong, 22 years old, daughter of James A. Budlong, the well known rose grower of Auburn, near Providence, R. I., was shot and instantly killed in her home January 17, by C. P. Whittier, aged 21, son of a diamond dealer of Providence, who then turned the revolver on himself and died a few hours later. It appears that the couple had been engaged, but had quarreled and Miss Budlong had returned Whittier's ring. Relatives of the young man say that he was undoubtedly insane. Miss Budlong was an amiable and beautiful young lady and this distressing affair will create a great wave of sympathy and sorrow for the bereaved parents.

John J. Ehrhardt.

John J. Ehrhardt, head of the retail firm of John J. Ehrhardt & Son, 21 Conway street, Brooklyn, N. Y., died January 12, after a week's illness, of erysipelas. He was 49 years old and a native of Brooklyn. His father was a florist and he was reared in the business. He was for 18 years with the late William H. Hall, 37 Conway street, and went into business for himself about three years ago, the store being near Evergreen cemetery. He is survived by a widow, two sons and two daughters. The oldest son will continue the business.

W. B. Du Rie.

W. B. Du Rie, a well known florist and prominent citizen of Rahway, N. J., died there, January 16. He was over 60 years old. He was stricken with paralysis about two years ago and has since been failing. He was for years a member of the New York Florists' Club and was very popular among its members. He was an educated man and had held positions of trust and responsibility in his home town.

THE methods of the National Floral Corporation are exploited in Printers' Ink of January 6.

CHICAGO'S wholesale cut flower trade in 1915 has been estimated at $2,888,000, against $2,750,000 in 1914.

THERE has been unusual demand for funeral flowers in most sections since the holidays keeping the supplies short and prices firm.

Carnation Morning Glow Withdrawn.

Edward Winkler, of Wakefield, Mass., advises that he has recently visited two places on which his new carnation, Morning Glow is on trial, and is not satisfied with the way it is doing. While he considers it a profitable variety he is now convinced it is too small to send out and has decided to withdraw it.

Holland Floods.

Following a tidal wave which swept the west coast of the Zuider Zee, January 14, several dikes in the northwest section of Holland have given way and the country in the vicinity of Edam is flooded. Meager first reports caused fear that the floods might extend to the nursery or bulb growing districts, which are located to the south of the inundated area, but from all information at hand, there is no cause for alarm in that section. Haarlem, the nearest of the bulb growing centers to the flooded district, is on higher ground and far enough removed to be out of danger. In the south of Holland heavy rains have been reported, and in the vicinity of Rotterdam especially, the downpour has caused some inconvenience, but no damage has been reported to the nursery stock or bulb crops.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

National Flower Show

PHILADELPHIA, MARCH 25-APRIL 2.

The national flower show committee held a two-day meeting in Philadelphia, January 11-12, at which practically all the details of the show were completed. As a result of this meeting a radical change in the general layout of the show is presented. The bugbear of the committee—lack of floor space—has been removed rather unexpectedly, through arrangements made with the Automobile Association of Philadelphia, which has just held a most successful show in Convention hall, the building which is to house the national flower show. As everyone knows who has visited the building, the irregular floor presents problems in the staging of exhibits likely to prove bothersome, and in addition rendering the very extensive stage area valueless for the chief purposes of the show.

The automobile association solved these problems most heroically by putting in a complete removable floor, which provided an even and almost level surface from the entrance to the extreme rear of the stage. Through a contract made by the national flower show committee with the automobile association this floor has been secured for the use of the national flower show, and a certain shortage of space for exhibits has been obviated. Many other conditions which in the nature of them were causing the committee trouble are now so improved that the show can be installed without a hitch. Secretary Young is greatly elated over the new order of things. Prospective exhibitors in the trade section, who could not adapt themselves to conditions, can now be suited to their complete satisfaction. Others whose exhibits were not of a nature to harmonize with the exhibits displayed to general view, and consequently not considered when the shortage of space became apparent, may now find quarters well adapted to requirements. In fact, all reasonable demands can be met, and the secretary's discretionary powers are greatly increased. The contract also covers the heating system put in by the automobile association, and the decorations as used for the automobile show.

The committee was in session almost constantly throughout the two days, the sessions being held at the executive office of the national flower show, in the Widener building, at Convention hall, and at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel. There were present: Chairman George Asmus, Chicago; Secretary John Young, New York; Treasurer Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.; C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass.; and William P. Craig, Philadelphia, Pa. Adolph Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa., was absent through illness. A meeting of the committee in conjunction with the local executive committee was held on the second day, at which many of the chairmen of the local committees were present, including S. S. Pennock, Louis Burk, Wm. Kleinheinz, W. F. Therkindson and A. A. Niessen, secretary of the local committee.

At Convention hall the committee apportioned a large space to the left of the main entrance for the use of the ladies of the Garden Club of Philadelphia as a tea room, where light refreshments can be enjoyed and dancing indulged in. In connection will be a counter for the sale of flowers. The profits from both tea garden and flower stand will go to some charity or charities to be determined upon later. An adjoining space was set apart for use as a booth for headquarters for the Garden Club of America. The southwest corner of the building was set apart for a lecture room, and excellent quarters for the aquarium exhibits were located beneath the stage.

At the meeting of the two committees some very favorable reports were forthcoming from the chairmen of the local committees. Wm. Kleinheinz announced the donation of several special premiums, and Wm. P. Craig announced that Louis Burk had donated $300 to cover two prizes in the commercial section for a group of orchid plants in variety. He also reported additional prizes amounting to $300 as coming through M. C. Wright. Secretary Young reported the donation of $100 from the Alphano Humus Company as a special prize.

The great interest shown already by the Philadelphia people in the show is most gratifying, and augurs well for a splendid success.

AN interesting bulletin on Dahlias has been issued by the agricultural experiment station at Geneva, N. Y., giving a classification of varieties with illustrations of the various types. F. H. Hall is the author of the bulletin.

American Carnation Society.

The twenty-fifth annual convention of the American Carnation Society will be held in St. Louis, Mo., January 26-27. Everything points to a very successful convention and exhibition. If you do not attend you will undoubtedly miss a very pleasant and profitable meeting. Delegations are coming from as far as New England and several thousand blooms are entered from that section.

There will be a discussion on "Fertilizers for Carnations" that it will pay you to travel many miles to hear, and that will be but one of the features. The banquet will take place Thursday evening. The exhibition and business sessions will be held in the Planters hotel. Make your reservations early.

The secretary will leave his home, Indianapolis, Ind., Monday evening, January 24. All mail that will not reach him there by that time should be addressed to him, care of the Planters hotel, St. Louis, Mo.

Buffalo.ONE DOZEN THE LIMIT.

The past week will be remembered by the florists of this city for three things: First, very changeable weather; second, an unusual demand for everything in the flower line, and third, nothing to be had in quantities over one dozen with the exception of lilies, toothpicks and wire. It seems as if the supply of flowers has never been so short as during the past week, and this city from reports received, was no exception, but fortunately with lilies in good supply, a plausible talk made them acceptable in nearly every instance. Now they have forsaken us but tulips have come to the rescue. Social events are not much of a factor, but the demand for funeral designs has been heavy. More flowers were sent from this city to surrounding towns the past week than ever before. Roses of every description were scarce. It was a shame to pick the carnations and bulbous stock was behind. A few cyclamens, palms and cibotiums made grand decorations in several windows.

NOTES.

It is to be hoped that the weather will brighten and let the carnations appear in abundance at the exhibition of the American Carnation Society at St. Louis, Mo., January 26-27. Several growers from this city will attend and growers who can make the trip should go and see what others are doing with this flower and what other convention cities do.

There has been organized in this city an association which will be known as the Display Managers' Association, made up of the window decorators of the different stores of the city. It promises to be a very lively organization and new ideas in florists' windows should be in evidence as several florists have become members.

E. C. Armbrust, who resigned from the S. A. Anderson staff to enter business for himself has given up his store and is again at the Anderson Elmwood store. Joe Cannon of Anderson's has been in Wilkesbarre, Pa., for a visit.

"Near to Governor" Mahoney, who broke his arm while cranking his auto, is now in first class shape again and can use it in extolling his ideas as ever.

The sick list of the florists is getting smaller, many who were laid up with the gripe recovered and are back in the stores again.

Galley Bros. of Gardenville and this city had a fine lot of cyclamens.

Providence, R. I.STOCK SCARCE AND PRICES HIGH.

A scarcity of flowers of all kinds keeps the retailer busy trying to find stock to fill his orders and prices are naturally high. Funeral work has been heavy, and as there is an epidemic of gripe and pneumonia in this city, indications are that there are busy days to come. Carnations are high in price and hard to secure, except by ordering two days in advance before the flowers had bloomed. Roses were in limited supply all week. Easter lilies could be had but were not up to the standard. Violets were plentiful but there was little call for them. Snapdragons are coming in slowly, but the demand for them is not heavy.

NOTES.

George Fenner of Cranston is cutting good Asparagus plumosus. The bulb stock will be ready later.

Cushing, of Quiddnick, has some extra good orchids, and his cut cleans up every day.

The Hoxie Nurseries are sending in good daffodils, which are quickly cleaned up.

Wm. Hoffman of Pawtucket has some very good cyclamen and primulas.

Albert Holscher is cutting some good sweet peas, which find ready sale.

Fred Luther has added a new auto to his delivery service. H. A. T.

Nassau Co. (N. Y.) Horticultural Society.

A well attended meeting of the Nassau Co. Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, January 12, with President James McDonald in the chair. Chairman Ernest Brown of the dinner committee reported that all arrangements for holding the society's annual dinner had been completed. The dinner will be held at the Oriental hotel, Glen Cove, January 25, at 6:30 p. m.

A communication was received from M. C. Ebel, secretary of the National Association of Gardeners, offering on behalf of that society, to supply with an essay on some subject of interest to the horticultural profession, for each month of the coming year, so that it may be read at our monthly meetings. It was unanimously decided to accept this generous offer. The essay for this meeting received from Mr. Ebel was: "Is Gardening a Profession?" by W. W. Ohlweiler. The paper was a very able one, and the essayist handled his subject in masterly style. It was thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated by all of the members who were present, and if we are to take this essay as a standard for those which are to follow, we are assured of a very interesting and instructive course for the coming year.

Valentine Clerer, George Hutton and George Wilson were appointed judges of the exhibits and made the following awards: Best 12 sprays of freesias, Harry Goodband, first; best three poinsettias, Robert Jones, first; best three heads of lettuce, Robert Jones, first; plant of Primula Malacoides exhibited by John Everett, certificate of culture. James Duthie exhibited six plants of Primula Malacoides Townsendii, an improved form of Primula Malacoides, which was much admired by the members present and was awarded a certificate of merit by the judges. This primula, which originated with Mr. Duthie, forms a much more compact plant than the older type, while the individual florets are much larger and the color is a most distinct and pleasing shade of pink. Mr. Duthie reports that the seed of this variety, which he has saved and sown, comes almost uniformly true to type the percentage reverting to the old type, being so small as to be almost negligible. Mr. Johnson of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., and Mr. Earnshaw, of the Bon Arbor Chemical Co., were visitors at the meeting.

JAMES M'CARTHY, Cor. Sec'y.

Los Angeles.FAIR SUPPLY AND DEMAND GOOD.

Generally speaking the trade in cut flowers continues good. The supply of carnations is plentiful with a better variety in colors than a week or two ago. In roses, there seems to be a little shortage in some varieties, but Killarneys are showing up well just now. Outdoor roses, however, are getting too much rain, which will cut off that supply. Lily of the valley is hard to find, while chrysanthemums have practically disappeared. Violets are becoming plentiful and the same may be said of narcissi and Chinese lilies. There is a good stock of azaleas yet and sales continue good.

NOTES.

F. Lichtenburg's, 324 West Sixth street, is a busy place. He is always busy with funeral or wedding work. A recent funeral made big inroads on his stock.

The Morris Goldenson shop, 229 West Third street, is still hustling, putting out designs for both weddings and funerals. A nice stock of azaleas is shown.

DORNER'S NOVELTY FOR 1916

New Salmon Pink Carnation NANCY

Color, light salmon pink, a little darker than Pink Delight and a more even color. Blooms are good commercial size, three inches and over, nicely formed and have never shown a bursted calyx. Stems always hold the flower upright. The habit is a quick productive growth and as a producer it stands highest among commercial varieties. Color does not fade. Fragrance is very noticeable. Having an excellent cerise pink and an improved yellow to offer in 1917, we have decided to disseminate the variety NANCY this year (1916). For a light pink that will produce quantities of bloom and is commercially good in every respect, plant NANCY. The stock is limited and orders will be filled in rotation as received. Price, rooted cuttings, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

GOOD BUSINESS CONTINUES.

Cold weather, following a rain which froze as it fell, making streets and walks a sheet of ice, with six inches of snow as a climax interfered with deliveries somewhat, but business has been remarkably good for this time of the year. Orders for decorations are numerous and the sale of pot plants continues brisk. Cut stock has been very scarce, especially roses, which are fine in quality and high in price. Carnations are more plentiful, but are still in supply short of requirements. Lilies and stevias were very scarce, but lily of the valley, Romans, Paper Whites, sweet peas and snapdragons filled in very nicely on some orders.

NOTES.

A. D. Mohr is cutting some fine sweet peas of the Spencer variety. He is getting ready for the spring trade and has between 20,000 and 25,000 geraniums, in addition to other varieties of stock.

Wm. Foith is cutting a big crop of carnations which bring good prices. His sweet peas are coming along nicely. Orders for funeral designs and basket arrangements are numerous.

Another big week of funeral work is reported by W. J. Barnes. The carnation crop is increasing at this establishment daily. The call for pot plants and bouquets is heavy.

Stock in the houses of The Rosery is looking good and coming on in fine shape for Easter. Trade has been very good, but delivery has been difficult, due to bad weather.

Eric Frandsen of Independence, Mo., lost his sweet peas, part of his carnations and his roses are suffering from mildew as the result of the cold weather last week.

H. Kusik & Co. report a scarcity of stock and prices are correspondingly high. Roses, carnations, sweet peas and narcissi of excellent quality were seen here.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports a good week's business. The call for pot plants continues strong and the shipping trade is very good.

Harry Smith of Independence, Mo., is bringing in some fine sweet peas with long stems. His carnations are also increasing in numbers daily.

T. J. Noll & Co. report a daily clean up. They are handling very good roses, carnations, violets, lily of the valley and sweet peas.

R. S. Brown & Son have a full force at work getting ready for the spring trade. A heavy demand is anticipated.

The Hepting Greenhouses are sending in about 1,000 carnations per day and they are of excellent quality.

J. B. Masson is very busy with his spring stock. He is cutting some very fine carnations at present.

Miss J. E. Murray reports business surprisingly good, with lots of funeral work and orders for weddings.

Mount St. Mary's Greenhouses report excellent business, considering the prevailing weather.

NO CHANGE IN MARKET CONDITIONS.

There is no great change in the market conditions and stock is as scarce as ever and still bringing high prices. At times business seems to be quiet, but the demand starts up again with the result that it is impossible to fill all orders. Carnations, the opening of the present week, Monday, January 17, were more plentiful, but prices held firm and toward evening all the available stock was disposed of. The shipping trade continues to be very good, but the city demand, while fair, is nothing to speak of. American Beauty roses are not as plentiful as they have been and prices have advanced accordingly. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are moving nicely but are not bringing as good prices as one would expect considering the general scarcity of stock and this is particularly true of the longer stemmed grades. Roses in general are in short supply, especially in the shorter stemmed grades, and clean up at an early hour at good prices. Violets are plentiful but are selling well at prices ranging from 50 cents to $1 per hundred. Sweet peas are a trifle more plentiful but clean up at the advertised quotations. Orchids and gardenias are in good supply and in fairly good demand. Lily of the valley is not any too plentiful and the same holds good for lilies. Stevia is in good demand and the same applies to freesia, tulips, jonquils, Romans, Paper White narcissi, snapdragons, daisies, calendulas and other miscellaneous stock. Taken all in all, everything seasonable in cut flowers is in good demand and in short supply. While prices seem rather high to the buyer one wholesale florist in looking over his last January sales, says that prices are only about 15 per cent higher than last year, which is rather surprising, for it appears as if stock never was so scarce or brought such good prices as it is this year. Business so far during January has been very good and nearly everyone reports a substantial increase so far over January of 1915. Green goods of all kinds are in good demand, and while at times certain items are scarce, very few orders go unfilled. Collections are a trifle better and while business as far as the wholesale florist is concerned is good, everyone will be better satisfied when stock is more plentiful, for it is impossible to take the proper care of the customers under the prevailing conditions. The weather has been extremely cold here all week and on Sunday and Monday, January 16-17, it was 14 and 18 degrees below zero, with the mercury hovering near the zero mark both days, with the sun shining. This is the coldest weather experienced this winter and the receipts during the past week were considerably smaller and in some instances about one-half as large as they were the week before.

NOTES.

Mrs. Leo Kamerman, formerly Miss Mabel Eaton, died at the Garfield hospital last week. She had a national reputation as an actress and at the age of 16 was selected from 75 applicants by Augustine Daly, who had come here from New York for the purpose, and who made her a member of his stock company at the Daly theater, New York. William and Dustin Farnum were doing odd jobs at the theatre at that time and when she organized her own company she took them into it. She was married to William Farnum. Ten years later she obtained a divorce and later was married to Leo Kamerman. She conducted a florist store on West Jackson boulevard for several years, a few doors east of George Perdikas' present establishment.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is having a tremendous call for cut flowers and dispose of the stock long before it reaches the store. Otto W. Frese says that it is impossible to fill all the orders and take care of the regular customers besides, under the existing conditions, for stock has never been as scarce and the demand as heavy as it is right now. Trade in the supply department never was as good in January as this year, according to T. E. Waters, who adds that it is surprising how many orders are being received. John Poehlmann is feeling much better and his many friends in the trade sincerely hope that he will soon be able to be back at the store again.

John Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, in speaking of the scarcity of stock in the market, pointed to a dozen Mrs. Chas. Russell roses, which cost him $5 wholesale. He says that the people are not buying as heavily as they should during the shortage, and absolutely refuse to pay such high prices and the only demand is for funeral work and weddings. His conservatory is still a great attraction with improvements constantly being made and the floor will soon have a natural carpet of grass. Mr. Mangel visited John Poehlmann in the German Hospital this week and found him in good spirits and as jolly as ever.

George Reinberg's store force had a bowling contest the other night, when Adam Kaspar carried off the honors over Robert Northam, Leo Gannon and Bobby Nichols. The latter, who weighs almost as much as Philip J. Foley but is only half as tall, slipped as he was delivering the ball, and slid nearly the whole length of the alley before he could pick himself up. Talk about Charlie Chaplin, well he can consider himself lucky that Nichols never was a movie star or he would have to play second fiddle.

Peter Schaeffer, who is employed at Schiller's down town store, and Miss Elona Frey were married at Kankakee last Saturday, January 15. This being leap year it would not be at all surprising if another young gentleman at one of the Schiller stores would follow suit, for it is understood at least one young lady in the trade has set her cap for him. It is not necessary to mention any names, but the writer expects to be able to furnish further particulars before 1916 rolls by.

Geo. Asmus, chairman of the National Flower Show committee, returned from Philadelphia last week and says preparations for the great exhibition, March 25-April 2, are progressing very satisfactorily. Mr. Asmus says that at the recent meeting the management acquired the automobile show decorations of the exhibition building, costing $12,000, for some $2,500.

Wietor Bros. report business as very satisfactory, with the sales running considerably ahead so far over January of last year. Carnations are arriving in larger quantities at this house, but it will be some time before there will be enough to go around. American Beauty roses are in brisk demand here and command high prices.

Alois P. Frey and wife, of Crown Point, Ind., stopped off here for a few hours January 13 on their way home from Milwaukee, Wis., where they attended the funeral of a relative the day before. Mr. Frey will make an exhibit of his new freesias at the next regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, to be held February 10.

George Wienhoeber had the decoration for the Swift wedding last week when a large quantity of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses and other stock was used. The bridal bouquet was made of gardenias and the matron-of-honor bouquet of orchids and lily of the valley.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are receiving over 2,000 fancy roses a day from Pyfer & Olsem's range at Wilmette in addition to a good supply of carnations, which are now more plentiful at this establishment.

Nels Pearson, for many years employed at Vaughan's Greenhouses, Western Springs, died January 14. Mr. Pearson had been in ill health for a considerable time.

George P. Hoefle, of Norby & Hoefle, Des Plaines, stole a march on his many friends here this week when he was quietly married in Iowa.

Mrs. A. C. Rott, of Joliet, and Robert H. Blake, with Mrs. J. B. Freeman, Toledo, O., were visitors at Zech & Mann's store, January 17.

Arthur Blome, of Paul Blome & Co., 1361 North Clark street, served on the jury in Judge Scanlon's court last week.

A baby girl gladdened the home of C. Clemenson, 7801 South Shore avenue, Monday, January 17.

A. Herrington passed through the city this week, called to Iowa City, Ia., by the illness of his mother.

W. N. Rudd says his carnation cut averaged five and a half cents last week.

George C. Welland of Evanston has been on the sick list for over a week.

C. L. Washburn visited Bassett & Washburn's greenhouses at Gregg's Station and Hinsdale, January 16, and after a thorough inspection of all the houses, he is inclined to believe that stock will be more plentiful in the near future. Carnations, especially white, are in better crop and the other colors will follow closely. Mr. Washburn walked home from Gregg's Station on that day, a distance of three miles, with the temperature registering 4° below zero.

W. N. Rudd, C. W. Johnson, M. Barker, Guy Reyburn, A. F. Longren and Alois Frey, Crown Point, Ind., will join the local delegation mentioned last week to the St. Louis convention of the American Carnation Society, leaving Tuesday, January 25 on the Wabash railroad at 11:55 p. m. Others wishing to take advantage of party rate and secure accommodation should telephone the Wabash railroad as early as possible, Harrison 4500.

Felix Reichling visited Peter Reinberg's greenhouse Sunday, January 16, to get a line on the stock, and while he found everything in splendid condition he says that it will be several weeks before stock will be much more plentiful. The American Beauty and White Killarney roses are in good crop but the cuts clean up quickly at high prices each day.

H. Van Gelder is well pleased with business at Percy Jones' store and says that the sales this month are away ahead of January in 1915. The demand for magnolia leaves has been very heavy at this house the past few weeks which is due a great deal to the general scarcity of cut flowers.

A. L. Vaughan says that the thermometer on the back porch of his home at Oak Park registered 14° below zero Sunday, January 16. He reports trade as good at A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store with an early clean-up in stock each day. The shipping trade especially is brisk.

H. C. Blewitt's wife and son Arthur of Des Plaines are recovering from a severe attack of pneumonia. Mr. Blewitt is offering a good supply of forget-me-nots and sweet peas at his stand in the local market which are bringing unusually high prices.

The Raedlein Basket Co. has a new line of baskets to offer for Valentine's day, which are unusually fine and most appropriate for the occasion. There are four beautiful different styles, but the Kewpie design will no doubt prove to be the best seller.

The E. F. Winterson Co. received a shipment of 250 orchids from the east January 15 which were so badly frozen that none of them could be used. Consequently the entire lot, amounting to about $80, was a total loss.

At J. A. Budlong's store the latest improvement is a mezzanine floor, which Manager Schupp's son Roswell ordered built and comes in handy during the shipping rush.

William Lubliner and wife passed through the city January 15 on their way home to Milwaukee, Wis., after a delightful honeymoon spent at New Orleans, La.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is experiencing a heavy out-of-town demand for stock, particularly flowers for funeral work.

Harry C. Rowe bought the Halle fixtures from H. N. Bruns this week and will open another store in the near future.

O. A. Tonner is receiving regular shipments of roses in addition to her regular supply of stock.

H. N. Bruns is thinking somewhat of making a trip to Hot Springs, Ark.

FLOWERS SCARCE AND DEMAND HEAVY.

Following a splendid holiday trade, there has been a heavy demand in January. An unusual number of deaths and a great deal of sickness have been factors that have made it impossible to catch up on the scarcity following Christmas week and many florists are pushing the sale of galax wreaths and using wax flowers wherever possible. Plants, such as azaleas, are still fairly plentiful and are much used in basket arrangements. The social season is on in full blast and decorations and corsages have been selling well. Roses, while of fine quality, are at times impossible to secure. Sweet peas are beginning to arrive in larger quantities and the quality shows improvement and the same is true of carnations. Daffodils are rare and bring big prices. The call for narcissi is unusual, and where last year they were hard to dispose of at 50 cents per hundred, they are now bringing $3. Violets are scarce but of good quality.

CLUB MEETING.

The January meeting of the florists' club was held at Max Spanner's, January 11. J. L. Shiller, chairman of the flower show committee, gave a final report and advocated giving a private carnation show in February, at which members could exhibit their favorite varieties. Most of those present were in favor of such a show. Arthur C. Kneisel, secretary of the club and also in charge of the publicity of the organization, gave an outline of a co-operative plan by which sales could be greatly increased for Valentine's day. Co-operative advertising in the newspapers, such as was used to such good advantage on Mothers' day, was one of the features, as was a circular to be sent to customers and enclosed with the monthly statements.

NOTES.

Harry Heintz is making plans to attend the exhibit of the American Carnation Society at St. Louis, January 26-27, and will also spend some time visiting his mother. Harry has been producing some excellent roses and also many fine cyclamens. His business has been constantly increasing.

John Barrow and son, Henry, who conduct a flourishing greenhouse on Detroit avenue, have just finished two modern houses on the farm recently purchased about a half mile from their place. Roses and carnations will be the principal flowers grown in the new houses.

Mrs. J. B. Freeman, Superior street florist, has been overwhelmed with funeral work and many decorations. One day this week she had orders for a hundred corsage bouquets, mostly for the annual Bachelors' ball, which is the society event of the season.

Metz & Bateman have been busy as bees for the past five weeks, but have been handicapped somewhat by the absence of Earl Metz, who was laid up with a severe attack of grippe. He is back on the job now.

Miss Helen Patten is having her delivery car overhauled in preparation for a large Valentine business. She has been enjoying a visit from her sister, Mrs. Flick, a prominent florist of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Henry Miller is sending in some splendid carnations these days, notwithstanding much unfavorable weather. He never has any difficulty in disposing of all he can cut.

Max Spanner left $64 in his register January 12 and the following morning it had disappeared. Thieves are responsible. They gained entrance through the rear door. A. C. K.

HEAVY SHORTAGE IN ROSES.

The supply of stock is very short, and this, combined with an active demand, keeps the market cleaned up. The cold weather has put quite a crimp in the size of the daily receipts. The decrease in the cut of roses was greatest of all the flowers coming into market at the present time. Among rose receipts, however, are some very fine American Beauties. Carnations, too, are rather short, but the average quality is better than it was. Lilies have become scarce. The receipts in Paper White narcissi and daffodils clean up very readily. Lily of the valley have a strong call, while receipts are insufficient to satisfy this call. Both double and single violets are fairly plentiful. Other offerings include callas, freesias, orchids and baby primroses. In greens bronze and green galax and wild smilax are meeting with a very strong call.

NOTES.

The death of Albert McCullough, well-known seed merchant of this city, is recorded in our obituary column this week.

Subject to Market Changes.

P. J. Olinger has begun to cut some very fine blooms from a new crop of carnations.

C. E. Critchell reports a very heavy demand for bronze and green galax since flowers have become rather scarce.

Visitors: "Sprinkle-proof" Sam Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York City, and J. F. Donaldson, Sparta, Ky. H.

Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A heavy fall of snow and zero temperature has interfered with the production and delivery of flowers, but the demand continues heavy, funeral work having the greatest call and the social season seems to be at its height and a consequent big demand for decorations and corsages. The scarcity of flowers is confined chiefly to roses and carnations, the latter being almost at a premium. The smaller flowers, such as tulips, jonquils, narcissi and primulas are in good supply and sweet peas are arriving in fine condition.

NOTES.

Miss Mildred Flick, of the Flick Floral Co., has gone to Toledo, Ohio, to visit Miss Helen Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop in that city. Miss Clara B. Flick, who is visiting Miss Patten, is suffering from a severe attack of grippe. The Flick Floral Co. has been busy with funeral orders and out-of-town weddings.

The Fort Wayne Flower Shop, recently reported as having discontinued business, has rented another store on Calhoun street, near the former location. Extensive improvements are being made and the new store will be open for business about February 1.

Will Vesey has been on the sick list the past week.

The Doswell Floral Co. has been busy with decorations and many funeral orders. Their Spencer sweet peas are the best seen in this market, and their single violets continue to come in fine quality and good quantities. The cut of roses and carnations has been necessarily small.

The automobile show which was held here last week attracted large crowds. The floral decorations were elaborate, many ferns, palms and cut flowers being used.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting fine cattleyas. Their rose crop is not as heavy as usual, owing to the dark weather. H. K.

Nashville, Tenn.

SUPPLY SUFFICIENT FOR ALL DEMANDS.

This locality is having its first experience of wintry weather during the past week and the flower supply has diminished somewhat, though the florists manage to have a sufficient supply for all demands with a good clean up each day. There are an abundance of cyclamens and rush sales have been made with these pretty flowers as a leader. Roses and carnations are doing fairly well with no surplus. There have been numerous social affairs with plenty of funeral work and many weddings, all of which has combined to make business good. Prices are holding their own with possibly a slight advance.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Company had a very good week and has a number of good wedding orders entered for next week. They have had good roses and carnations, but are a little short on other flowers. They conducted a very successful cyclamen sale Saturday and had wonderful success, the prices running from $1 to $1.50 per plant. They have inaugurated quite an attractive little scheme which is termed the "Joy Club." A card in the window invites one to join the "Joy Club." This is to furnish a daily supply of flowers for a given sum and is working very nicely with a good lot of members, and is quite satisfactory both to buyer and salesmen.

The Tennessee Horticultural Society and State Nurserymen's Association will meet in this city, January 27. This association is doing a good work and is increasing in interest and attendance all the time.

The L. H. Haury & Sons Company have effected their change of location and are now in a very pretty store at 625 Church street, which is nearer the centre of the flower market than was their former store. They expect to do a good business.

Geny Bros. had a fine week, using up their entire supply and keeping their force busy. They have a fine lot of pot cyclamen and report good sales. They expect a busy week next week and have many nice advance orders booked.

The McIntyre Floral Company has been doing a good business since the holidays and have been very successful with a wholesale business, which has served to keep up with the daily supply. They have quite a lot of funeral work. M. C. D.

Detroit.

UNUSUAL DEMAND CONTINUES.

Continued scarcity of flowers of all kinds with a spirited demand quite as continuous are the features of trade affecting this market the past two weeks. Growers, remembering their experience with a glutted market during the same period a year ago, sought to escape similar conditions this year and timed their crops accordingly, but unfortunately for them as well as the retailers, general conditions changed and the result is the greatest scarcity for any season of the year that this market ever felt. Outside sources of supply have been reached, but there, too, conditions seem similar to our own, and the embarrassment continues with little hope for early relief.

CLUB MEETING.

The club meeting, January 11, was fairly well attended, and owing to the absence of President Danzer, Vice-President E. A. Feters presided. A review of the holiday trade by the growers and retailers present occupied most of the time of the meeting. During the reports and the discussion of the same, it was made evident that all enjoyed the most prosperous holiday trade in their experience and much of it was due to the favorable weather conditions that permitted without any loss, the successful delivery of all plants and flowers, and most of them on time. It was ascertained at the meeting that few, if any, from here would attend the Carnation Convention at St. Louis, but it was learned that many, probably enough to charter a special car, will attend the national flower show at Philadelphia. Report was made to the meeting of the illness of Norman Sullivan, who is confined to Harper hospital the past two weeks with a painful and quite serious attack of rheumatism. The secretary was instructed to convey to him the members' regrets and a committee was appointed to make his room cheerful with flowers. At this writing the patient is improving with hopes of an early recovery. Joseph Streit, recently from Buffalo, and now a partner with M. Bloy, was elected to membership in the club.

Visitors: S. Seligman, Julius Dillhoff and V. L. Oudenbousch, the latter representing Henry & Lee, New York; J. J. Cairns, Philadelphia, Pa.; A. Miller, representing A. Henderson & Co., and M. Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. J. F. S.

The Wm. Bester Greenhouses, representing 50,000 feet of glass are situated in an ideal location convenient to the B. & O. R. R. depot. Thousands of plants, both flowering and vegetable, are grown at this establishment and shipped to all parts of western Maryland, the markets being easily reached by three railroads that enter this city, as well as electric cars to many local village points. The water for this range is supplied by an artesian well, 500 feet deep, a four-inch pipe giving sufficient water to meet all requirements.

The Floralcrofters on Cannon avenue have two acres under glass and ship to Pittsburgh. They have had 20 acres under cultivation for early vegetable plants but intend to sub-lease this spring and devote more time to growing stock for cut blooms, for which the Pennsylvania demand is heavy. At the time of our visit the foreman was busy filling in three elaborate designs with carnations, primulas and callas, edged with North Carolina galax leaves, which are very popular for shipment to Virginia points.

Henry A. Bester & Sons are shipping 1,000 long stem carnations to the Baltimore markets daily from their new range. This contains 45,000 feet of glass and is heated with two boilers of 250 H. P. each. Including the East Baltimore street establishment, where the office is located they have a total of 80,000 feet. Henry A. Bester, Jr., reports the demand for cut blooms especially good, even the Washington county Quakers buying flowers, which is considered remarkable.

Miss Mary Bester, one of this city's popular floral artists supplies the Hamilton Building Flower Store with the products of the Potomac Street Greenhouses, besides buying cut blooms from the best Pennsylvania growers. Foreman Gus Burger has produced a novelty in a new pink tomato, delicate in taste, growth smooth and uniform in size. It is much appreciated in the local markets.

Tri-City Florists' Club.

The January meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held at the residence of J. Staack, Moline, Ill., and it is to be regretted that the extremely cold weather caused a comparatively small attendance. President Bills, being unable to attend, Vice-President C. Sorensen called the meeting to order. It was decided to call a special meeting of all committees connected with the meeting and exhibition of the Illinois State Florists' Association at Moline, March 7-8, and get down to active work to make the meeting a success. R. M. C. Rohlf's name was added to the publicity committee. J. Staack, C. O. E. Boehm and L. Stapp were named as a committee to arrange a list of topics for discussion at the monthly meetings of this society during the ensuing year. The February meeting will be held at the residence of the secretary at Bettendorf, Ia.

MARKET HOLDS FIRM.

Business held up to its high standard during the past week. Although there are more flowers coming in, prices have not declined to any marked degree. Roses held up well the whole week, average grades bringing from $4 to $20 per 100. Ophelia, Hadley and Russell are the best sellers, although not much difficulty is experienced in disposing of any kind. Carnations still remain scarce as nearly every grower is off crop. The demand is for the pink varieties, Pink Delight, Ward and Alice being the most popular. The price holds up well at $5 to $6 per 100. Snapdragon is coming better every cut, and sells readily at $1.50 to $2.50 per dozen. Violets, although not plentiful, equal the demand, 60 cents to $1 per 100 being realized for them. Orchids are more plentiful than last week, Cattleyas Trianae and cypripedium comprising the bulk of the supply. Yellow Marguerite continue scarce and high in price, $3 per 100 being the price on first class flowers. Daffodils and tulips are coming in larger shipments, but as yet have no effect on the market. Longiflorum lilies seem to shorten in supply, and $12 per 100 is received for good flowers. Lily of the valley sells well at 4 cents. The plant trade is good, but not many are to be obtained at this time.

NOTES.

Donald Carmichael, of Wellesley, Mass., has a good crop of carnations considering the dull weather we have been having. The flowers are coming good in size and color and his stock looks very healthy and strong. He grows a sport of Enchantress, which is darker pink than its parent and does not have such a full center. He is also marketing some very nice myosotis.

J. T. Butterworth, of Framingham, Mass., is cutting a good supply of orchids at present. Among them were noted some very fine flowers of Laelia anceps alba, Cypripedium Lecanum hybrids, phaleonopsis, dendrobiums, Cattleya labiata, and C. Trianae. He Thomas Roland, of Nahant, Mass., has commenced cutting very fine Spencer sweet peas from his new house. His roses also are coming in good crop, Ophelia and Ward being especially fine. He is cutting a good supply of Cattleya Trianae.

MARKET SELLS UP CLOSE.

The shortage of stock still continues, almost everything selling up very well. There has not been much doing, however, except funeral work, for which some quite large orders calling for choice stock have been quite a factor. The quality of most of the flowers is very good, except that which is cut too green in the anxiety of the growers to send something. Daffodils are now to be had in quantity, but still command a good price. Violets are more plentiful and prices are lower. Gardenias are being offered on the streets for a dime, which shows their scarcity is over. Calendulas are good stock, selling at sight at good prices. Freesias are offered in limited quantities. Snapdragon is still scarce. Good long-stemmed sweet peas are now available and they are improving with each new shipment. Easter and calla lilies are about equal to the demand. Cattleyas are plentiful, and extra choice flowers are seen in some of the store windows marked "Special, 50c." From the green condition of a lot of the stock coming into the cut flower market, it would pay the wholesale men to send out competent instructors to show the growers how to cut, bunch and pack their products. Just one day longer would greatly improve almost all flowers in this dull season. Roses are often seen that are not fit for sale for two or three days after they reach the market, and then do not mature properly, being off color, short petaled, and often so imperfect as to be unsalable. Sweet peas are also often cut too green with very little color, two-thirds of the buds not being open. Every blossom of the spray should be open before it is ready to cut, as they will not open off the vines. The difference in the size of a bunch of sweet peas with half buds and another with wholly expanded flowers is very marked, and must be reflected to the same extent in the returns.

FOURTH NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

That Convention hall is too far from the center of the city to attract the crowd, as has been feared by some in selecting it for the flower show, has been proved a fallacy, as the auto exhibition just closed doubled the attendance of any previous show. It is said that the turnstiles show the visitors in the eight days to have totalled over 100,000. The business in the sale of cars and accessories was most satisfactory. The change in the interior of the building was wonderful, the automobile association spending over $10,000 in laying a new floor, installing heat, and in decorations. The major part of these improvements, which add so materially to the efficiency of the building, have been purchased by the national flower show committee at a price very satisfactory to them, and which will very materially reduce the expected expenses in the preparedness of the building. At the national flower show committee meeting to hear the report of the local committees there was a full attendance, George Asmus, W. F. Kasting, P. Welsh, Thos. Roland, John Young and W. P. Craig being present. The meeting was most enthusiastic, the visiting officials being very much pleased with the progress of the work. W. F. Therkildson's work in advertising was especially commended. His posters, show cards, posterettes and other publicity matter was seen to be of a very high order. Reports of other committees insure a splendid line of exhibits. Already quite a large attendance is assured from the tickets ordered by the trade, 3,500 having been ordered by a comparatively few, the great bulk of the trade still to be heard from. Twenty-five dollars per hundred, with the name of the firm ordering printed on them, is the price for this quantity. Efforts are being made to find donors who will provide tickets for the school children of which there are about 350,000.

NOTES.

One large house and half of another have been planted with shamrocks in 2 inch pots by W. K. Harris. There are over 75,000 pots in all. Primula Malacoides is also a feature here. Both W. K. Harris and Mark Mills are pulling hard for the flower show.

H. A. Dreer, Inc., are handling kentias in quantity. Their home-grown stock is in splendid shape. Phoenix Roebelenii is also a feature, they having the largest stock of this valuable plant in the world.

Orchid sweet peas, choice roses and high grade carnations were headliners with Berger Bros. the past week. Freesia is one of their novelties.

American Beauties, cattleyas, gardenias and orchid sweet peas are leaders with the Leo Niessen Co. A good business is reported.

Splendid cyclamens are being sent in by the Robt. Craig Co. Nothing like them has ever been seen before in this market.

CLEAR WEATHER BRIGHTENS MARKET.

The weather throughout the greater part of the past week was dark, rainy and muggy—just the kind of weather that is hard on greenhouse stock, and also has a depressing effect on humanity. As a consequence, considerable rose and carnation stock arrived in a soft and unsatisfactory condition. Business was also a little slack until January 14, when the weather cleared and turned colder, the mercury going as low as four above zero on the night of January 14. The market then braced up and took on new life. On the morning of January 15, the market was nearly cleaned out of roses by 9 o'clock at good prices. Special American Beauties reached $60 and $75 per 100, other special roses, according to variety $12 to $25. No. 1 brought $8 and No. 2 $5 and $6. As has been the case for some time, the short roses were scarce. Carnations, though the supply is slowly increasing, hold up to $4 and $6 per 100. Orchids and violets continue cheap. On January 15, 35 cents per flower was the best wholesale price for cattleyas and 35 cents per 100 the best for double violets. The narcissi, tulips and freesias are all moving well at good prices, as will be noted by reference to our regular table of quotations. While gardenias are more plentiful and somewhat cheaper, there was some stock on the market the past week that wholesaled at $6 per dozen. The supply of sweet peas is increasing, but the best of the orchid flowered wholesale at $1.50 and $2 per 100. With a few days of clear sunshine, the indications are that the supply of stock, particularly carnations and sweet peas, will be largely increased. We make an exception in regard to American Beauty roses, as we will expect the supply to be light for some time to come.

January 17.—The sudden cold snap has again checked the supply of stock and prices are high. All stock that is good is quickly taken.

NOTES.

We learn that Charles A. Dards, the well-known retailer of Madison avenue and 44th street, has retired from the active management of his florist business, which will hereafter be conducted by his son-in-law, Mr. Perry, who for several years has been in charge of the 72d street store. Mr. Dards has been in business in this city for over 40 years and has established a fine reputation as a florist, an upright business man and good citizen. He has also been very successful; he owns the building where his store, Madison avenue and 44th street, is located, and we believe, other real estate in that locality. Though he has been long in service, he is yet an active man, and we do not expect to lose sight of him.

Two police officers visited the wholesale district Sunday, January 16, and served summonses on owners of auto trucks and chauffeurs whom they found hauling non-perishable goods. This action was taken under the provisions of the Sunday closing act, which specifies that only work of charity, necessity or mercy shall be done on Sunday. It is not believed that any drastic action will be taken relating to the delivery of cut flowers shipped by a grower, they being perishable would seem to come under the exception of necessity. As to various other activities, a final decision will be awaited with interest.

J. H. Small & Sons arranged an elaborate decoration in the grand ball room of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, January 12, for the banquet given by the Pan-American Society of the United States to the delegates to the Pan-American congress, which has been in session in Washington. One hundred and eighty persons, delegates and their friends, came from Washington. In addition to a lavish display of palms, ferns and smilax, the banquet hall was decorated with the flags of all the nations represented. Roses and carnations were used on the tables. Twelve hundred persons were present.

A joint conference of committees from the Wholesalers' Protective Association and the Associated Retail Florists, Inc., was held at the Hotel McAlpin, January 11, the object being to promote a better understanding between these two branches of the trade. The wholesale association was represented by Walter F. Sheridan, A. M. Henshaw and Secretary Smith; the Associated Retail Florists by G. E. M. Stumpp, Chas. H. Brown and Secretary W. H. Siebrecht, Jr. George D. Nicholas represented the Greek-American florists. We understand that the meeting was harmonious.

On January 15, David Clarke's Sons filled a large order and had charge of the floral arrangements for the funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Newell Drummond, at Greenwich, Conn. Mrs. Drummond, who was 35 years old, died suddenly January 12, of pneumonia. On January 16 they had charge of the funeral of William Lyall at Summit, N. J. Mr. Lyall was 75 years old and a prominent business man. He died suddenly January 13 on the platform of the Hudson tube, 19th street, this city.

There is an old story of a gardener or florist, perhaps he was both, who was driven insane by trying to grow flowers to look like the pictures of those he had seen in the catalogues. It must be acknowledged that some of the catalogues are gorgeous affairs. The dahlia catalogue of Geo. L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I., just received, is not of the circus-poster variety. It is a good catalogue and also contains many useful hints on dahlia growing.

Ex-President Welch of the S. A. F. was in this city January 14 on his return from Philadelphia, where he attended a meeting of the national flower show committee. He states that there is a bright outlook for a great show. He emphasized the splendid work being done by the local committees of Philadelphia. Thomas Roland, Boston, was also a visitor.

Herman Weiss, who for several years has been manager of the wholesale store of D. C. Arnold & Co., 112 West 28th street, has resigned the position. George O. Sullivan, an experienced man in the business, who has been a salesman with this firm for a year, was temporarily in charge of the store, but Mr. Arnold has now taken personal charge of the establishment.

Y., was also a visitor on business connected with the society.

The first annual dinner and smoker of the Associated Retail Florists, Inc., and the Greek-American Florists' Association will be held at the Hotel Breslin, Broadway and 29th street, Monday evening, January 31.

John B. Nugent, of Young & Nugent, has of late been very busy with funeral work. On January 12 his force made up over 20 wreaths and a number of sprays.

We found Adam J. Scott of West New Brighton, S. I., quite busy with funeral work. In addition to a good store he has a considerable glass area.

George J. Polykranas, the wholesaler of 104 West 28th street, has just put on a fine Ford car for delivery.

There are many expressions of regret, both among wholesalers and retailers, on account of the illness of Thomas Martin of Traendly & Schenck's staff. He has been well and favorably known in this district since the days when he wore knickerbockers, and even earlier, for he was born in "Old Greenwich Village," a name that as a matter of sentiment, clings to one of the populous sections of Manhattan. All wish him a speedy recovery.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. has leased another building in addition to those already occupied. This new building is No. 52 Vesey street and is a five-story and basement structure. When alterations are completed this firm will occupy buildings Nos. 52, 54 and 56 Vesey street. One building will be reserved for the seed department and the other two will be devoted to the auction business.

Chris Boeche of Castleton Corners, Staten Island, has a fine crop of carnations which he ships to a leading wholesaler of this city. He is also propagating a large stock of plants, hydrangeas, geraniums and other bedding plants being noteworthy. Mr. Boeche has the sympathy of the trade on account of the serious and lingering illness of Mrs. Boeche.

Alex S. George of 42 Richmond terrace, Staten Island, has been very successful with his new store, which he opened last fall. He handles good stock of both cut flowers and plants. He also has flower stands in both the St. George and New York ferry terminals.

Frank Murphy, well and favorably known as a salesman in the rooms of the New York Cut Flower Co., and who recently sold the product of the Cockcroft ranges, Northport, L. I., has secured a position with the city and is located at Borough hall, Brooklyn.

At the inauguration of the board of aldermen, January 3, Leo Klein, 767 Lexington avenue, sent the largest floral horseshoe that anybody remembers seeing in the chamber. It was ordered in honor of Hon. Thomas M. Farley, a member of the board.

J. J. Coan, the wholesaler, of 115 West 28th street, is now handling fine stock from the range of A. V. D. Snyder, Ridgewood, N. J. In addition to tulips and other cut flowers, there are many fine plants of azaleas and primroses.

James Conlon, the Smith street, Brooklyn, florist, has recently had large orders for funeral work.

The Flower Basket Shop, 147 West 44th street, which is conducted by two ladies, had a successful holiday trade and continues to do a good business.

Riedel & Meyer, Inc., 49 West 28th street, are receiving exceptionally fine freesias, old-fashioned jonquils and yellow daisies.

Tarrytown Horticultural Society.

The seventeenth annual dinner of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held in the Florence Inn, Tarrytown, N. Y., January 11, and proved to be one of the most delightful affairs in the history of that well-known organization. At 7:30, when Secretary E. W. Neubrand announced that supper was ready, members of the society found the banquet hall beautifully decorated and sat down to a repast that required an hour and a half to do full justice to, after which came the speechmaking, always a feature of the society's dinners. President Featherstone welcomed those present and then introduced Charles Vanderbilt, the toastmaster of the evening. President F. R. Pierson cordially supplemented the welcome of Mr. Featherstone and highly complimented the society which he said was a credit to the community whose value was underestimated. He spoke of the quality and general finish of its exhibitions, calling attention to the fact that last year nearly $800 was awarded in premiums. The society's membership, numbering 207, and $2,380 in the permanent fund, showed the organization to be prosperous.

Dr. Carroll Dunham of Irvington was the next speaker and his treatment of his subject and his experiences covered a period of 25 years in the growing of plants afforded his hearers much pleasure and information. On his estate of six acres he has more than 500 varieties. Wm. R. Bull of Port Chester followed and said many pleasant things about the society and its members. Judge Young, who has been a guest at many of the society's dinners, was greeted with a genuine ovation when he was called upon to speak, his well chosen remarks listened to with the same rapt attention as in past years and when he finished all present were on their feet and drank to his health. A number of city officials, including Supervisor Millard, Comptroller Patteson and Corporation Counsel Davison were interesting talkers. The Rev. Lucas Boeve spoke on "Development" and his talk was much enjoyed.

The Rev. J. J. Henry spoke on the subject of "Manhood," and after getting his audience from the start with several witty stories, he dwelt on the serious side and praised the good work horticulturists were doing in brightening the lives of their fellow men. Letters of regret were received from J. Austin Shaw, Judge J. Addison Young, County Clerk Daniel Cashin and others. During the evening a splendid musical programme was rendered and when "Auld Lang Syne" was sung at 11:30 it was voted that the affair was one of the most enjoyable in the history of the society.

"SWEET PEAS UP-TO-DATE," is the title of a book just received from W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., which gives a complete description of all known varieties, including novelties for 1916, with much other matter of interest on these flowers.

THE sudden passing of Albert McCullough on Thursday of last week takes from the American Seed Trade Association one of its most powerful leaders and defenders. Every recent year has brought forward several occasions when this trade has been attacked by state or federal bills, most, if not all, of which were impractical, restrictive and altogether unwise from any point of view. Few men better understood this important phase of seed trade interests or more ably defended it from unjust attacks. His wise counsel, active and successful labors will be greatly missed.

French Bulb Outlook.

A well informed correspondent writing under date of December 22, from the Toulon district, says the Narcissus Paper White acreage is about two-thirds of an average and that of Roman hyacinths is similarly reduced. The narcissus left in the ground last summer are useless for next season's sale, as the bulbs will not be round but divided. Labor is very short here. A year ago the growers relied entirely upon Italian labor now recalled to Italy and wages are about 50 per cent higher. Growers are not keen upon entering into any obligations on account of the possibilities of further demands for military service. Women are not strong enough for work in the bulb fields.

Modern Seed Growers.

The seed grower, if he be proficient in his business, necessarily gives much attention to the subject of cross-breeding and hybridization, whether the processes be artificial or natural.

Natural pollination in the vegetable garden takes place every day throughout the flowering season, provided the weather conditions are favorable. Sometimes it is arrested entirely, as during a prolonged season of rainy days. Pollination is not always followed by fertilization, as there are many intervening processes, and under some conditions it has been demonstrated that pollination is not always necessary to effect fertilization. This seems opposed to all earlier theories, but it is true, and the future scientists may yet by artificial disturbances or shocks develop in some plants vital seeds without the agency of pollination.

We are frequently asked why fruit-bearing vegetables deteriorate, to which we reply that it is caused by years of in-and-in breeding. All breeders of high-class animals understand that in-and-in breeding is disastrous to the keeping up of quality, and just so it is in the vegetable kingdom. Every man is well aware that potatoes deteriorate very rapidly, caused by a worn-down physical strength for want of new blood, and this is because potatoes are a continuation of the same identical plant, the same as grafts on fruit trees. The diseases of previous generations are continued and more strongly fixed year after year. Few potatoes retain their popularity over fifteen or twenty years, as then, because of being worn out by hereditary diseases, they generally deteriorate, both in production and in quality. All garden vegetables show a weakening in quality when inbred for years, and the seed merchant who indefinitely continues to sell seeds produced from constant inbreeding will in time offer something below par.

Scientific cross-breeding is very profitable to the grower for the reason that the seeds produced by the crossing of two varying types have more strength than those other plants produced from similar types; and it is fortunate that this reinvigoration takes place, because if it were not, everything we have in the shape of plants grown from seed would so deteriorate in time as to be unrecognizable. An up-to-date seed grower possesses great opportunities for benefiting himself and the nation by steering, as it were, creative forces into new channels for the strengthening and general betterment of the resultant plants.

Most interesting developments, based upon the early theories of Mendel, expressed now by the term genetics, as applied to heredity and sometimes to the absence of it, have broadened out to include remarkable results in animal breeding, and future scientific men will further develop astonishing results.

As a general thing, perfect pollination is necessary to insure perfectly shaped fruit, as fruit from half-fertilized blooms is generally of misshapen form. This is especially noticeable in fields of melons of any kind, where frequently the most perfect strains of seed produce misshapen fruit, as misshapen cucumbers, watermelons, pumpkins—all generally the result of varying degrees of impregnation.

Another advantage of cross-breeding is that cross-bred plants, as a rule, are less subject to disease than are older established forms, as, for

New York Seed Trade.

William J. Elliott is now able to be at the store every day. Mrs. A. E. Allin, mother of Mrs. Elliott, died December 30, 1915, aged 69 years. She had been a life long resident of this city.

The seed trade district is now rather quiet, the principal business being in preparations for a spring campaign.

The venerable F. W. Bruggerhoff has been suffering from a cold, but is now improved.

In one of the show windows of Vaughan's Seed Store there is quite a mushroom exhibit. Bricks of spawn are stacked up around a box of real mushrooms, which were grown in the cellar. There are also books on mushroom culture.

Weeber & Don are now featuring in their show windows a fine assortment of books on horticultural and agricultural topics.

Memphis Seed Trade.

The Memphis Seed & Plant Co. are now in their new store on Front street. This concern is one of the largest growers of vegetable plants in this section, having over 2,000 hot bed sash and three acres of cold frames.

The Tucker-Mosby Seed Co. are busy filling out-of-town orders and getting out their 1916 catalogue. This firm does a large business both in garden and field seeds and their stock at present is most complete with the exception of beans. As the trade here is mostly for the wax varieties, however, they are not worrying much. Red Valentine beans and Alaska peas are two strong items in their stock.

R. B. Buchanan is now giving his personal attention to the seed department and is mailing out one of the best seed catalogues to be found in the south. He reports trade opening up earlier than usual with a heavy demand for pepper and small seeds.

At the store of Otto Schwill & Co., Inc., everything was found that goes to make an up-to-date seed house. Chas. Heckle of this store reports a very good trade.

All the seed stores in this city are located on Front street and are among the best establishments of their kind to be found in the south.

Electric Light in Plant Culture.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Would you advise me to use electric lights in my greenhouses at night? I have tried them in a small way but do not notice any material difference in the plants subjected to the light and those not exposed to it. I have been told that plants should not have any light at night since it is natural for it to be dark. I would be pleased to have some information on the subject.

Missouri.

L.

Several experiments have been made in using the electric light for the growth of plants. Favorable results have been noted with some plants and especially with lettuce. The effect is to stimulate growth and thereby hasten maturity. In the case of lettuce this is a decided benefit, especially if in practice a crop could be hastened two weeks as reported in one experiment with head lettuce. Radishes, however, do not always respond or, if they do, the gain may be in leaf development and not in the size of the roots. Some experiments abroad seem to confirm the idea of early maturity with fruit grown under glass. The experiments with flowers have been, as a rule, incidental to the experiments with the plants mentioned. Cornell reported that tulips grown under electric light had longer stems, larger leaves and a richer color, but that after four days the color could not be distinguished from normal plants. Petunias had a tendency to become drawn, while the flowers of verbena and ageratum were discolored under the light. The red, blue and purple colors of certain flowers, verbena, petunia and Chinese primrose, were injured and faded to a dirty white. The colors of coleus leaves were changed when placed under the influence of the light. These results were noted with a 2,000 candle power light, provided with a thin glass shade and located within the greenhouse.

Different kinds of electric lights and lights differently placed have given different results. For example, the West Virginia station, using the incandescent lamps, reported favorable results upon verbena and Bellis perennis, also upon heliotrope, although Cornell had no results with the latter.

From the scientific standpoint there is a great opportunity for further study of this subject for so much depends upon the kind of lamp used, the candle power, the kind of screen used, if any, the distance the plants are from the light, the stage of growth, the temperature and humidity of the house in rendering plants susceptible to injury and, doubtless, other factors. We should certainly know the conditions under which electric light is injurious to vegetation. All these questions are of interest to students of plant growth, even though they may be of little practical value in themselves, for the solution of them may throw light upon other and more practical problems.

The results of the experiments hitherto made are not very conclusive so far as the physiological effect on the most of the plants is concerned. None of the experiments was carried out far enough to show whether all or most of them may not be benefited if the proper conditions are met. If the light is nearly similar to sunlight it is not improbable that many plants grown in greenhouses in winter would be benefited by an extension of the usual light period. The amount of gain, of course, depending upon the locality and the normal amount of sunlight.

So far as the use of electric light by practical growers is concerned, it may be said that it was thoroughly tried in growing lettuce at Boston about 20 years ago. The results, as reported in the journals of the time, were favorable, but it does not appear to have become a continuous or general cultural practice. The effect of light on the cut flower crops was never thoroughly tested, but if it should be found beneficial, the question would arise at once whether the gain was sufficient to pay for the expense of the light. This is probably the reason that the use of electric light in lettuce production has not become a general practice. The full utilization of the natural resources in water power may sometime in the future cheapen the cost so as to enable the florist to use electric light in growing plants.

A. C. BEAL.

Leaf-Spot of Cucumber.

The angular leaf-spot of cucumbers is a disease quite prevalent throughout the eastern and middle western states. It was reported as having been present the past year in Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, and New York, as well as the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, in Canada. The disease has also been reported recently from Maryland and other southern states.

The presence of the disease is indicated by angular, dry, brown spots on the foliage, which, by dropping out or tearing, give the leaves a ragged appearance. Although the disease has been known for many years in the field, and has been conceded to be of bacterial origin, heretofore no organism has been named as its cause. As a result of experiments recently conducted by the plant pathologists of the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., however, the germ causing the disease has been isolated and identified.

It was found that the disease is caused by a bacterial organism entering the leaf through minute orifices in the outer layer, wounds not being necessary to permit infection. Young stems may become soft-rotted or crack open, but no direct connection has been found between the leaf-spot and the soft-rots of the fruit. A heavy infestation, however, often materially reduces the crop by destroying the active leaf surface of the plants.

FRESNO, CALIF.—The Fresno Nursery Co. is now located in new quarters in the Hughes building.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—The Bellflower Nursery has been opened on Flower street by H. Campbell.

BULLETIN No. 334 entitled, "Directions for Blueberry Culture, 1916," has been issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. It contains 32 pages, treating of soil mixture, propagating, winter cuttings, yield and profits, etc., and is well illustrated.

HELENA, MONT.—Officers and employees of the State Nursery Company were the guests of President T. E. Mills at a dinner at his residence at the nursery January 7. The dining room floral decorations consisted of red carnations intermingled with palms and ferns. Covers were laid for 34 persons.

EXPERIMENTS with trial orchards by the Wisconsin Horticultural Society have demonstrated that only the hardiest varieties of apples such as Hiberna, Malindas, Duchess and Longfield can be grown in Wisconsin north of the forty-fifth parallel of latitude except in portions of Door and Bayfield counties.

Asiatic Crabapples.

Many of these small trees and shrubs are well covered with fruit this year. When the whole group is considered, few plants are more valuable for garden decoration in this climate if attention is paid to keeping them free from the scale insects which are destructive to all plants of the apple tribe. All the Asiatic crabs are perfectly hardy; they grow quickly in good soil, and many of them begin to flower and produce fruit when only a few years old. No plants are more beautiful at the end of May, when they are covered with their countless pink and white flowers; and on some of them the fruit is showy and long persistent. The original arboretum collection of these plants is on the bank rising from the left-hand side of the Forest Hills road, but there is a larger supplementary collection at the eastern base of Peter's Hill. Here will be found nearly every species and many of the varieties and hybrids of these plants. A few of the conspicuous plants just now are Malus ringo with yellow fruit, interesting as the plant from which the apple cultivated in China has been derived, and the only apple cultivated in Japan until recent years. Malus floribunda and the hybrid raised in the arboretum from that species, Malus Arnoldiana, with yellow fruits, are now conspicuous, as are Malus zumi and M. Sargentii from Japan with bright scarlet fruit; the latter is the only apple which is shrubby in habit. Interesting, too, is the form of the Japanese Malus toringo from northern China, with small fruits yellow on some plants and red on others. These are only a few of the plants in this large collection which at this time deserve careful study.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin.

Evonymus Radicans Vegeta.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I wish you would kindly advise me whether Evonymus radicans vegeta is hardy in Illinois. SUBSCRIBER.

Evonymus radicans vegeta is probably the only broad leaved evergreen we can consider hardy here. It has wintered the past two seasons, and we are increasing the plantings as occasion offers. Shade in winter is perhaps a large factor, but this plant is used to such large extent in the Boston parks and arboretum, and also in the parks in Rochester, N. Y., especially Highland park, with success, we feel safe in advising its use here.

E. O. ORPET.

Washington.

With no stock to be had and business good in every line the florists find conditions far from satisfactory. Most of the stock arriving is very poor in quality, but the prices are high. Roses that should bring $4 to $8 are now quoted at from $12 to $20. About the only things that are plentiful are lilies and orchids.

NOTES.

Gude Bros. were exceptionally busy the past week with funeral work, which called for a quantity of violets, orchids and lily of the valley. They had to scour the eastern markets to get enough stock to meet their requirements.

Geo. H. Cooke had a very elaborate decoration for Governor and Mrs. Stuart at Richmond, Va. American Beauty and Mock roses and rubrum lilies were used in large numbers.

Geo. Comley, the Georgetown florist, is kept busy these days. He is the only florist in that part of the city, and does not have to worry over cut prices.

S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. is receiving extra fine jonquils; also fine lilac, which finds ready sale. G. C. D.

UTICA, N. Y.—Brant Bros. will build a range of houses at 1333 Sunset avenue, to cost $7,000.

DANVERS, ILL.—Fire completely destroyed the greenhouse of Wellenreiter & Son, December 22.

MANITOWOC, WIS.—Henry Levenhagen has opened a flower shop in the Vollendorf building.

NOTES.

Invitations are out for the eighth annual ball of the Minnesota State Florists' Association, which will be held February 1. Wm. D. Desmond is secretary of the committee and is assisted by G. N. Ruedlinger, A. S. Rice, Hugh Will and Max Kaiser.

The Mazey Floral Co. was the victim of an attempted robbery January 13. Due to the nerve of Miss Scanlon, the robber, who used a handkerchief and a piece of pipe in place of a gun, is in jail.

Grippe has been prevalent in this city. O. E. Amundson has been laid up with it and R. Wessling and many others in the local trade have been complaining of the symptoms.

The Hiawatha Floral Co. discontinued business December 20. The proprietor, S. E. Sather, has been working for L. S. Donaldson Co.

L. E. Metcalf, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, was here this week and reports good business.

Henry Will has the sympathy of the trade in the death of his wife, who died January 13, aged 30 years.

Rice Bros. are getting some fine calla lilies, which find ready sale.

T. C. R.

Holyoke and Northampton Florists' Club.

The regular monthly meeting of this club was held January 11, at the residence of George Rackliffe of Holyoke.

Aubrey Butler, our newly elected president, presided over a somewhat smaller attendance than usual, several of the members being victims of la grippe, but there was no lack of vitality amongst those present. After an unusually interesting business session, Harrop Sinclair of Smith's Ferry gave a graphic account of his experiences in the rose growing department of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago. Two new members were elected. The club was honored by a visit from S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, Pa., who spoke of the forthcoming exhibition to be held in that city and expressed the hope of meeting some of the members there, a sentiment heartily reciprocated.

H. E. D.

Oklahoma City.

A genuine cold wave struck here January 11, bringing a temperature of four degrees below zero and about two inches of snow, something quite unusual for this city. Business has been quite dull this week, due no doubt to the usual reaction after the holiday season and the bad weather combined.

Although the annual meeting of the American Carnation Society is going to be held so near to us it does not appear at this time that this city will be represented in St. Louis when the carnation men convene there.

Lon Foster, the newly appointed state vice president of the S. A. F. for Oklahoma, is very much pleased at the honor bestowed upon him by President MacRorie.

Westchester and Fairfield Hort. Society.

The meeting of this society was held in our new home in the Isaac Hubbard hall, Greenwich, Conn., Friday evening, January 14. There was a very good attendance of members present. Four new members were elected and several new proposals for membership were received and filed. The principal feature of the evening was the installation of officers for the ensuing year, which were as follows: W. J. Sealey, president; Owen A. Hunwick, vice-president; J. B. McArdle, secretary; Robt. Williamson, treasurer; P. W. Popp, corresponding secretary. Executive committee: Wm. Whitton, Oscar Addor, Anton Peterson, Thos. Ryan, John T. Burns. The treasurer's report was read, showing the society to be in a very flourishing condition financially. The ever increasing membership and the enthusiasm displayed by the members assures the society of a bright future. We take this opportunity of thanking our many kind friends who have in various ways helped us to make such a fine record, and we trust that our society will always merit a continuation of the same in the future. In the death of our honored member, Geo. Lander, Jr., of Greenwich, the society suffers the loss of a good friend and patron. Resolutions of sympathy were adopted to be sent to the bereaved family, a copy to be spread on the records of the society. It was voted to hold the summer and also the fall exhibition this year as usual, the location of hall and dates to be announced later. A committee was appointed to arrange for the annual entertainment and dance to be held in the near future, location of hall and date will be announced at the next meeting. A communication was read from the co-operative committee of the National Association of Gardeners, offering to this society copies of the fine essays read before the convention of the N. A. G. recently held at Boston. These papers are well worth discussing by the members and the offer was unanimously accepted. During recess Jas. Stuart and P. W. Popp entertained the members with a description of their recent visit to Boston. They voiced the sentiments of other members of our society who were present at the convention and feel deeply indebted to the gardeners and florists of Boston and vicinity for the fine entertainment provided, as well as to the A. N. Pierson Co. of Cromwell, Conn. A fine display was on the exhibition tables. The principal features were Carnation Pink Sensation, by Thos. Ryan; Euphorbia jacquinesflora, by Jas. Stuart; display of Carnation Princess Dagmar, Violet Princess of Wales, Cauliflower Snow Ball, from Wm. Graham; Narcissus Grand Soleil d'Or from P. W. Popp. The Grierson prize for the most meritorious exhibit was Southampton Horticultural Society.

The annual meeting of the Southampton Horticultural Society was held in Forester's hall, Southampton, N. Y., January 6, with a large attendance. The treasurer's report showed the society to be in a prosperous condition financially, due largely to the success of the flower show last summer. The receipts of the show amounted to $1,268.95, and the total receipts for the year were $1,813.46. The following officers were elected: Martin McLoughlin, president; Wm. A. Malcolm, vice-president; Herbert Wells, recording-secretary; John Johnson, treasurer; Stanley R. Sandler, corresponding-secretary.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY

Annual Meeting and Exhibition, St. Louis, Mo., January 26-27.
Next Meeting Place, Indianapolis, Ind., 1917.

The Exhibition.

The twenty-fifth annual exhibition of the American Carnation Society, held at the Planters' hotel, St. Louis, Mo., January 26-27, was a success in point of attendance, and considering the general shortage of stock throughout the country. The exhibit was not as large as in former years, but the quality of the stock was as good, even better, and this was particularly true regarding the newer varieties. The large banquet hall of the hotel was well filled with displays, which were arranged on two rows of tables running on all sides of the hall, with the center space left for the St. Louis florists to use for table decorations.

The eastern growers were the largest exhibitors and it was somewhat surprising to find that more growers from the middle west did not enter. The Co., Edwardsville, Ill.; Bassett & Washburn, Chicago; Chas. Weber, Lynbrook, N. Y.; J. D. Thompson Carnation Co.,

Joliet, Ill., and A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., were the leading exhibitors, and the varieties that attracted most attention were Bassett & Washburn's new red Belle Washburn, which won the society's silver medal and scored 88 points and the special S.
A. F. medal for undissemated variety of American origin; the Cottage Gardens Co.'s new Crystal White scored 90 points and was awarded the society's gold medal, and Cottage Maid, another one of their new varieties, won the Hitchings & Co.'s silver cup as a sweepstake in section A. In the preliminary competition for the Dorner

Memorial medal, the Cottage Gardens
Co.'s Crystal White, Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association's No. 1123, J. D.
Thompson Carnation Co.'s Superb, F.
Dorner & Sons Co.'s No. 125-(11) and 14809 and S. J. Goddard's No. 16 (12) qualified and attracted much favorable attention.

F. Dorner & Sons Co. won the Fred Dorner Memorial medal with Nancy in the 100 class of any undissemated seedling in cultivation not less than three years and which must score not less than 85 points. Chas. Weber was awarded the S. A. F. bronze medal for Laura Weber, which scored over 86 points. The Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association won first place in Class 6 with No. 24129, followed closely by E. G. Hill Co. with Champion. Other varieties that were very interesting to the growers were Arawana, Matchless, Alice Coombs, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Rosa-lia, Old Gold, Miss Theo, White Winsor, Enchantress Supreme and Aviator, which never looked so good as it did at this exhibition. Chas. F. Strout, of Biddeford, and Ernest Saunders, of Lewiston, Me., traveled a great distance to attend the show and carried off several prizes, notwithstanding the fact that their stock was on the way since early Monday morning. Anton Then, of Chicago, had a vase of his new seedling, No. 701, on exhibition, but did not expect to carry off any honors, for his stock suffered considerably from the breakdown in his heating system last week, and he was unable to secure enough good blooms to make a showing.

The St. Louis retail florists who had table decorations were C. Young & Sons
Co., Windler, Scruggs, Vandervoort &
Barney, Mullanphy Florists, Grimm & Gorly, Ayres Floral Co. and J. W.
Boerm, who used the novelties in their artistic arrangements which were greatly admired by the trade and the general public, who were admitted on certain hours each day. Guttman &

J. F. Ammann.

President-Elect American Carnation Society.

Raynor, of New York, had a splendid vase of the new rose, Prima Donna, on display and which made many friends. The stock came through in splendid shape and their variety is said to be a good keeper. Alex. Guttman also staged several vases of the new carnation Laura Weber for Chas. Weber, and it is certainly a splendid variety. The E. G. Hill Co. showed its new rose, Tipperary, and the baby rose, Tip Top, sometimes called Baby Doll. August Jurgens, of Chicago, displayed a new pink tulip named Prosperity and John Steidle of Olivette, Mo., a splendid vase of snapdragon and Carnation Sunbeam. The department of floriculture of the University of Illinois exhibited several vases of carnations and Sullivan & Raymond had a fine vase of Carnation Peace. J. A. Peterson & Sons, Westwood, Cincinnati, O., had a nice showing of begonias and the E. C. Amling Co., Chicago, a splendid collection of colored freesias, grown by Alois Frey, Crown Point, Ind. Fred. H. Lemon & Co., Richmond, Ind., featured Primula malacoides in their exhibit, and W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., had a splendid showing of cattleyas and several rare specimens of foliage plants.

The judges were C. W. Johnson, Eugene Dailedouze, Wm. R. Nicholson, Fred. Lemon, Fred. Meinhart and Nic Zweifel.

The Business Meeting.

The large meeting room of the Planters' hotel was nearly filled when President Joseph H. Hill called the meeting to order promptly at eight o'clock, Wednesday evening, and many new applications for membership were received. Following the address of the president and the report of officers, the selection of the 1917 meeting place was the next order of business. W. J. Vesey, Jr., in behalf of the Hoosier florists, invited the society to meet at Indianapolis, Ind., in 1917, and he was so ably supported by J. F. Ammann that no other invitations were tendered, with the exception of one from S. J. Goddard to hold the 1918 meeting at Boston, Mass. The officers nominated for the ensuing year were: J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, for president; W. J. Vesey, Jr., Ft. Wayne, Ind., for vice-president; A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., for secretary; F. E. Dorner, Lafayette, Ind., for treasurer. F. R. Pier-son, Tarrytown, N. Y., was nominated to succeed himself as director for five years, after which Theodore Dorner, Lafayette, Ind., was also placed in nomination for the same office. David S. Ward, Queens, N. Y., and John Hartje, Indianapolis, Ind., were nominated as judges to succeed C. W. Johnson and Eugene Dailedouze. George L. Peltier, of the horticultural department of the University of Illinois, Urbana, read a very interesting paper on "Carnation Yellows," which was followed by a discussion.

At the Thursday morning's session the selection of Indianapolis for the meeting of 1917 was confirmed and the officers nominated the previous evening were elected, Theodore Dorner being chosen as director for five years. C. W. Johnson and D. S. Ward were elected judges. The discussion of the Muncie and Peltier papers was continued. The committee, consisting of Theodore Dorner.

Elected Director American Carnation Society.

J. F. Ammann, D. S. Ward and S. J. Goddard, reported on the president's address and the secretary's report, recommending their adoption except as to the elimination of display cards on exhibits. Standard display cards five by seven inches, were adopted for all future shows. A number of members contributed to the National Flower Show premium list as follows: Eugene Dailedouze, $50; W. J. Vesey, Jr., C. S. Strout, J. F. Ammann, Cottage Gardens Co., F. Dorner & Sons Co., E. G. Hill Co., Halifax Gardens Co., Baur & Steinkamp, Wm. Nicholson, S. S. Skidelsky, Ernest Saunders, S. J. Goddard, Bassett & Washburn, $25 each; Guttman & Raynor, $10; F. H. Lemon, $10; Fred Lautenschlager, $5.

Carnations Comet and Superba were awarded preliminary certificates in class 48.

On Thursday the visitors were the guests of the St. Louis florists and were entertained with an automobile ride about the city, followed by an inspection of the Missouri botanical garden, the new conservatories being the chief object of interest. The banquet was held in the evening at the Planters' hotel.

President Hill's Address.

Ladies and Gentlemen, Members of the American Carnation Society:

As your presiding officer I bid you welcome to this, our twenty-fifth annual meeting. Just a quarter of a century ago, in the good, old Quaker city of Philadelphia, a small body of earnest carnation enthusiasts saw the possibilities of the flower from which we derive our name, and issued a call, which was sent broadcast over the land. All who were interested in carnation growing were invited to join them in organizing a permanent society. With your permission I will read their call of 1891.

"To American Carnation Growers: You are cordially invited to attend a meeting to be held at Horticultural hall, Philadelphia, Pa., Thursday, October 15, at 2 p. m., for the purpose of organizing a society of American carnation growers. All those who are unable to attend kindly send their names for enrollment. The object of this society will be to materially benefit carnation growers and to advance the popularity of the Divine flower, so that it shall stand second to none. Let us all step to the front and put our shoulders to the wheel." Signed:

From every section of the country, east, west, north and south, came applications for membership and at the close of that memorable meeting in Horticultural hall, there were enrolled 49 staunch champions of our fair flower. And thus was conceived and ushered into existence the American Carnation Society. It is fitting to mention at this time the name of Edwin Lonsdale, the first presiding officer of our body. During the past year he has answered the call and leaves a place in the ranks that is difficult to close. It is with regret and sadness that we are compelled to note the dropping off one by one of the "Old Guard" of pioneer florists to whom we all owe so much.

Now, gentlemen, are we, after an elapse of 25 years, putting the same amount of push and of strenuous effort into the work of our society as did the charter members? Are we carrying forward the work cut out for us with the same earnestness and unity of purpose that marked their early endeavors? To accomplish our work and to keep up interest in the society it is necessary for us to attend its conventions and its meetings even though to do so means a personal sacrifice. Wm. Scott once said at a carnation meeting: "These conventions are productive of the greatest good; we learn to know each other better, and one of the greatest pleasures of life is an exchange of ideas with our intelligent fellow man."

It is a noticeable fact in our profession that the man who attends conventions, flower shows and associations of florists is the man who is successful and progressive in his business. Your president would suggest to the society that we adopt a badge of neat design to be worn at our conventions, upon which can be written the name of the wearer. In this way we can more readily identify one another and get acquainted. This method was used at the Cleveland flower show last fall with success and satisfaction to all.

Our secretary has suggested that we abolish the use of individual address placards on our exhibits after the judges are through with their work. It is true that in rearranging the vases the cards are often lost or misplaced on some one's exhibit. We invite the society's deliberations on this point.

The cardinal principles of this society are to materially benefit carnation growers and to advance the popularity of the carnation. To do this it is absolutely essential that we co-operate, if so requested, with any well managed flower show, and towards this end the following are given by your presiding officer as suggestions: First, That any flower show management desiring our support must give us a positive guarantee that the premium money in the carnation section will be paid to exhibitors. Second, That the exhibition management choose two from our list of duly elected judges to serve with the third, who may be selected by them without restriction. Poor judging by inexperienced men tends to make dissatisfied exhibitors and consequently reduces the number of entries at succeeding shows. Third, That they be allowed to use the society's vases with the understanding that they reimburse the society for all loss and breakage and pay all the expense for packing, carriage, etc. These simple rulings will safeguard the American Carnation Society. Let us resolve to lend a helping hand to all flower shows no matter where held, and dismiss the idea of self aggrandizement from our minds and let us exhibit with the definite idea of bringing the carnation out of the background, and of putting it on the same high plane as the rose and the popular chrysanthemum.

It is an admitted fact that in most parts of the country the carnation is marketed in a crude way compared with the rose; the idea seems to prevail in many quarters that a carnation is a carnation regardless of variety, but it is not so with the up-to-date commission merchant; he knows the different varieties by name and can explain to the buyer why one variety has a higher market value than another or vice versa; so can the live retailer, and he in turn advises his customers to select the kinds that have texture and that last and give satisfaction. It would seem that the grower is in a measure responsible for the fact that some of the largest retailers sell a comparatively small quantity of carnations, because the grower insists on holding to the idea of quantity instead of quality. Stock that will not hold up in the retailer's display case will surely hurt the cause of the carnation generally.

To the grower who depends upon figures for facts, the apparently shy blooming varieties sometimes exceed in money returns the prolific kinds with their serious shortcomings. Let the varieties be known by their names and their characteristics, and their good qualities will eventually enhance their value, and make regular buyers of intelligent customers.

In closing I would like to say a few words regarding the National Flower Show to be held in Philadelphia, March 25-April 2. In addition to the generous cash premiums offered for carnations by the management, the society will award in a good many classes, Silver Jubilee medals to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of our founding. Let every grower here make up his mind to put up an exhibit at Philadelphia so that the carnation section of that grand show may be a credit to our favorite flower, and that our reputation of being the "live-wire society" of all the affiliated societies of the S. A. F. will not be open to question. We must with renewed vigor put our shoulders to that same wheel mentioned in the call of '91 sent out to the American carnation growers by that honored band of enthusiastic men in Philadelphia who saw the hidden possibilities of our Divine flower—the carnation.

Secretary Baur's Report.

Mr. President and Members of the American Carnation Society, your secretary begs leave to submit the following report:

While our membership has not shown as large an increase in the past year, as in the previous twelve months, there have been added to the roster, 22 new members, and besides these, six delinquents have been reinstated. Our membership now stands at 325 annual members and 12 life members, a total of 337 and an increase of seven over last report. Death has claimed one of our members, Wm. Murphy, of Cincinnati, O., having passed away September 27. Edwin Lonsdale, who was your first president, has also passed away at his home in California. We ordered a floral wreath sent to the funeral at Philadelphia.

The books of the secretary and treasurer have been audited, as has been customary. We are pleased to state that the society's finances are in a sound condition. All bills are being met as they fall due, and all accounts are being collected without loss. The secretary's books, up to January 17, when the audit was taken, show collections as follows:

Membership dues, $531.00; advertising, $326.72; miscellaneous, $98.18; total, $955.90, all of which has been turned over to the treasurer and his receipt taken therefor.

We are pleased to report that 24½ pages of advertising space in the premium schedule was taken by our members and friends. The schedule appeared a few days late, owing to the lateness of the board of directors meeting. The annual report was also printed and distributed among the members at the usual time.

Eleven new varieties were offered for registration by American growers and some 23 European varieties were added to the list. The name Peace, was offered by both American and European growers. It having been offered first on this side, the European registration was withdrawn.

The arrangements for this meeting were in the hands of our worthy vice-president, J. F. Ammann, who has worked diligently for the success of this convention. The entries for the exhibition are rather lighter than usual, due no doubt, to the scarcity of flowers and the high prices realized on high grade stock in the cut flower markets. The society owes a debt of gratitude to those growers who were willing to sacrifice their personal interests to help make this exhibition a success.

We suggest that in the future, no display cards be permitted on vases entered in the competitive classes. That display cards on non-competitive exhibits be limited to 5x7 inches in size, and that only one card be allowed to each exhibit, except by special permission. Besides the arrangements for table displays, permission was granted for the display of other made-up work. The enterprise of the St. Louis retailers along this line is to be commended.

One hundred and eighty-four of our members are also members of the S. A. F. We therefore continue to be represented on their executive board. The board of directors held the usual post-convention meeting at Buffalo last January. The midsummer meeting was postponed to November and was held in Cleveland, November 12. Arrangements were made to hold the Silver Jubilee at Philadelphia at the same time as the National Flower Show. The $1,500 appropriated for carnation premiums, by the national flower show committee, was spread over a schedule of premiums, which was submitted to the above named committee and same was approved by them. It was decided to have special Silver Jubilee medals struck, and to award one of these medals to each winner of one or more first premiums on carnations. W. L. Rock and F. C. W. Brown were invited to assist in judging the retail displays at the Philadelphia show, and both have accepted.

The board recommends that this society cooperate with local organizations in promoting local flower shows and suggests the following conditions: A flower show, which desires the co-operation of the American Carnation Society, shall agree to submit its schedule of premiums and the selection of its judges for the approval of the president and secretary of the American Carnation Society. They shall further agree to satisfy the above named officers of the proper underwriting of the show.

The trade press has kindly given space for all matter sent in for publication. To them is due our thanks.

Carnation Yellow.

Paper by George L. Peltier, Horticultural Department, University of Illinois, Urbana.

A study of carnation "yellows" was undertaken at the Illinois station in 1912, when little or no attention was given to this trouble by the carnation grower. However, since that time it has become so serious that it has been called by a number of carnation men one of the most serious diseases with which we must contend today. Although we have spent some time on holding an infected leaf up to the light the dots are more plainly detected. These spots become more distinct and turn yellow, while the tissue beneath collapses. The trouble is confined not only to the leaves, but in badly infected plants the branches and flower stems may be covered with the yellow, elongated spots.

Apparently several distinct forms of yellows can be recognized, which differ in general appearance and subsequent behavior. The early stages of the first type consist of these small dots, scattered irregularly through the leaf. At first they are a paler green than the surrounding tissue, but distinctly delineated upon it. The spots increase more or less rapidly until they reach a diameter of $1/32$ to $1/4$ inch. Most of these spots are approximately circular, but may be irregular in outline, rarely elongated. A single leaf may have from one to fifty or more spots, depending on the extent of infection. Another characteristic of this first type is that the spots do not tend to make the leaves brittle.

The development of the second form is similar to the one above, except that while still in the early stages the spots unite and become very much elongated, so that a single spot may be one to two inches or more in length. On badly infected leaves these elongated areas run parallel to the midrib and have a sort of flaky appearance. The leaves become very brittle and are easily snapped off. In the later stage the cells beneath the infected areas collapse, the spot becomes sunken and finally turns brown as the leaf dies.

A third form may be mentioned here which is found only on the colored varieties. Here the spots in the earlier stages are yellow, but as they grow older and larger the spots become colored, the intensity depending on the color of the flower. For example, old spots on the light pink or scarlet varieties are slightly colored, while in the dark red varieties the spots are deeply colored.

Microscopical observations show no rupture of the leaf surface and with a lens the bloom on the leaf above the spots appears to be undisturbed. No bacteria or fungi are present except when the surface or epidermis of the leaf is broken down. No insect punctures, as have been described for stig-

The Ash Sifter.

The lawn mower song, it is silent today,
A fact that should make me rejoice.
But what is that other wild music, I pray?
'Tis the ash sifter's clankerous voice.
I go to the cellar, my eyes fill with tears
As I put my old overalls on.
I think of the ashes of other cold years
And the crankings of winters long gone.
The ballads of sylvance my ash sifter plays
As I Guinea-like turn at the crank.
And I shouldn't complain, for I know that it pays;
Just look at my pile at the bank!
Each morn before breakfast I'll wander below,
Each night after tea I'll be there,
And my bent economical may know
By the dust in my rather thin hair.

this problem each season for the past four seasons, the cause of this disease remains unknown. However, at the present time we have several promising clews which may lead to its solution and control. It is not my intention, in presenting this paper today, to give anything new, but more to bring this problem of "yellows" directly before you and together to go over the situation and discuss the problem from all standpoints.

"Yellows" start in the young leaves and is first noticed as small pale green areas varying in size and shape. On monose, have been observed in the true "yellows", in fact no collapsed tissue can be traced to the epidermis except in the later stages, when the epidermis has been broken down.

This trouble should not be confused with bacteriosis and stigmomose. Bacteriosis is caused by a bacteria, while stigmomose is due to insect punctures. The spots produced are distinctly different from those of "yellows".

After examining many plants of all the standard varieties on the market, I can safely say that all varieties grown today have "yellows". The unable to tell whether a plant is entirely free from "yellows." A variety once affected with "yellows" has not been known to entirely recover, and there is always some of the stock so infected. The weeding out process is a slow one, but the returns should more than pay for the trouble.

It has been observed that seedlings rarely show "yellows". However, after cuttings have been propagated from seedling plants for two years they invariably show this condition. This brings out the interesting fact that the disease may first originate in the stock today is badly yellowed while the cuttings and layers from the same plant show little or no "yellows." There seems to be no question whatever that the disease can be communicated to healthy plants by grafting. A point which we hope to determine this year is whether this disease can be carried through the seed. We have made a number of crosses, with plants showing different stages of this trouble and hope to obtain some clew. As can be seen, the solution of carnation "yellows" is a long task and is just as slow as producing good commercial varieties.

To summarize: Carnation "yellows" is due to causes still unknown. It is increasing in seriousness rapidly and is found today on all the standard varieties on the market. Some varieties appear to be more susceptible to this disease than others. Cuttings from plants showing this disease and over-propagation tend to increase the trouble. Selection of cuttings from entirely healthy plants will help decrease the trouble. "Yellows" does not spread from plant to plant, but can be communicated to healthy plants by grafting.

Dreer's Nursery Additions.

The new warehouse and stable at the nursery of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Riverton, N. J., are complete, except for a few minor details. The warehouse is 40 feet wide and 140 feet long, and is located in a central position, easy of access from the greenhouses. The construction is of hollow tile with slag roof and the structure is fire proof, the floors being also of hollow tile, steel and concrete. The outer walls are finished in rough concrete stucco upon the tile, giving the building a neat and substantial appearance. The interior arrangements have been carefully planned for the purposes for which the building will be used. One end of the first floor, covering a space of 30x40 feet, has been made absolutely fire-proof and will be used for storing the Dreer fleet of automobile trucks and cars. The cellar and first floor are now being used for the storage of such bulbs as gladioli, dahlias, tuberous rooted begonias, amaryllis, cannas, etc., while the upper floors will be used for the storage of packing materials.

NEW WAREHOUSE AT DREER'S RIVERTON NURSERY.

question of the amount of loss resulting from this disease is hard to solve. As all varieties are more or less subject to this disease we can run no record tests to determine the actual amount of loss, so that we must resort to mere observations which is not always satisfactory. The direct loss, as figured from the standpoint of flower production, is not great. However, the quality of the flower is lowered directly as the vitality of the plant from "yellows" is lowered.

The indirect loss from "yellows" is considerable. Observation shows that this disease lowers the vitality of the plant, and with lowered vitality fungi, especially branch rot, attack the plant causing a very noticeable loss. Branch rot, which is primarily a wound fungus, cannot attack a healthy plant, but is able to kill a weak plant in a short time.

During certain seasons of the year this disease appears to be more noticeable than at others. In the cutting bench, cuttings showing "yellows", as a rule do not strike root easily, while apparently healthy cuttings taken from plants showing this disease root poorly. The disease is very marked when the rooted cuttings are potted up and for several weeks the young plants show considerable "yellows", which apparently disappears by the time they are planted in the field. During July and August the plants in the field again show this trouble worse. During the winter months "yellows" increases on the plants in the house until spring, when the disease is at its height. At the time of making cuttings the disease is evident and so can be avoided to some extent in the selection of cuttings.

Cuttings have been selected now through three seasons, and the results show that by selecting cuttings from healthy plants only, we can control the trouble to some extent. One objection to this method is that we are cutting bench where cuttings are without any vitality until the roots form; that a breaking down of some sort occurs in the tissue which later develops into "yellows". This point is one of the leads we intend to follow out in our work. Another factor which lowers the vitality of the cutting and so may induce "yellows" is over-propagation.

To determine whether "yellows" is in the "blood" of the plants a number of grafting experiments were carried out. Cuttings, layers, and shoots were taken from seedlings which had not, up to the time of experiment, shown any "yellows." The shoots were grafted on stock badly diseased. The grafted

NEW STABLE AT DREER'S RIVERTON NURSERY.

In designing this new building special attention was given to light and ventilation. This will be noticed by the numerous large windows shown in the illustrations herewith. The building is heated by steam, furnished from the central boiler plant of the greenhouses, so that there is no fire in the building and the hollow tile has been found very efficient in maintaining an even temperature, this being shown during the recent period of cold weather. When the outside temperature was 10 degrees, the two runs of one and a quarter inch pipe (280 feet), held the temperature uniformly at 43 degrees on the first floor, while the basement, without any artificial heat, did not drop below 42 degrees. There is now being installed in the building an improved system hydraulic elevator and electric lights. The new stable, which replaces an old frame barn, is also of hollow tile and stucco and presents a very pleasing appearance in its location at that portion of the nursery in which the rock garden and lily ponds are located. It is fitted up with every convenience and thoroughly up to the times.

Fertilizer Extravagance.

Referring to your recent editorial "A Farm Crisis," and the recent newspaper reports about the statement of the secretary of agriculture relative to the scarcity of potash for fertilizers there are two radically different points of view respecting this matter. The government has stated it from one point of view, but there is also another.

In "Soil Fertility and Permanent Agriculture," by Cyril G. Hopkins of the Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station, it is stated:

"On the other hand, where the ploughed soil contains sufficient total potassium to meet the draft upon it for, say 2,000 years, and where sodium or magnesium salts produce about the same effect as potassium salts, and where potassium produces little or no effect if applied in connection with liberal amounts of decaying organic matter, the conclusion may be safely drawn that the addition of commercial potassium is not essential in adopting systems of permanent agriculture, for even the slight erosion that occurs on nearly level lands will possibly provide an absolutely permanent supply."

I have heard the statement made that the German kali syndicate spends $1,000,000 per year in the United States in advertising potash. This creates a demand for potash in fertilizers and it is easier for the fertilizer manufacturers to put this in than to argue with the farmer about the matter, although they know that normal soils do not require this potash.

A number of our American soils are deficient in phosphorus. This can best be applied in the form of ground phosphate rock. The rock itself is a product of the United States. The fact that sulphuric acid is high need not keep the farmers from using sufficient phosphorus on their soils, because in the long run ground rock phosphate leads to a more permanent improvement of the soil than the temporary use of acid phosphate.

As to nitrogen in the soil, the cheapest form of nitrogen is that secured from the air by growing leguminous plants and ploughing them under. Such plants cannot be grown on soils which are at all acid. Before this can be done the soils will have to be limed.

Lack of lime is one of the most common deficiencies of most American soils, and it is the defect that can be most easily overcome of any.

If the scarcity of these chemical fertilizers have the effect of causing the farmer to build up his soil by systems of permanent agriculture, then instead of the scarcity being a calamity it will prove to be a blessing in disguise.—Henry Boyd in the New York Sun, January 12.

Seedsmen Hammon Gains Millions Mining

There was a flower and seed merchant in Oakland, Calif., not many years ago. He had a fair-sized bank account and he decided to go into the orange-growing business. He settled near Oroville, Calif. He became imbued with the idea that there was gold in the beds of the rivers of this state, reasoning that the placer gold of earlier days was not all that had been washed down by the waters of ages. He tried to interest friends and neighbors. They laughed at his notion. Times were hard with him, for about the only thing he possessed was hope, but that wouldn't pay for flour and beans. Finally folks intimated that perhaps the man was a bit light in the upper story, for he persisted in his foolish talk about gold in the sands. One evening when he was dejected his wife took him in hand. "You know folks are saying that you are crazy with your talk about the golden river; and, I don't like to say it, but I'm beginning to believe that they are right. Better stick to your oranges, seeds and flowers."

That's how things were with W. P. Hammon 16 years ago. Today he is master of dredge gold mining in California, and his fortune is rated at millions.

Tennessee State Floral Society.

The annual meeting of the above society, in conjunction with the annual conventions of the Tennessee State Horticultural Society, the Tennessee State Nurserymen's Association and the Tennessee Beekeepers' Association was held at Nashville, January 24, with headquarters at the Maxwell House, which was beautifully decorated by the local florists during the meetings, which continued three days. There were many visitors not only from Tennessee but from distant points as well.

At the meeting of the florists' society, which was called to order by President Thomas C. Joy, a well-balanced and very interesting programme was carried out. Chas. L. Baum, of Knoxville, in response to the president's address of welcome spoke on the subject, "See Who's Here and Why." An able address full of interest was made by E. G. Hill of Richmond, Ind., who took for his topic, "Roses New and Old and How They Originated." Cleveland Johnson, of Memphis, spoke on the "Florists' Outlook." "Efficient Heating" was ably handled by Geo. A. Kimmel of Chattanooga. "The Essentials of Hybridization" was well covered by Professor Floyd Bralliar of Nashville. L. J. Tackett, Ft. Worth, Tex., told what some of the things were that the Texas State Florists Association had accomplished. His talk was full of information and contained many helpful ideas.

A very able paper was that read by R. C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex., vice-president of the Society of American Florists and president of the Texas State Florists Association, the title of his discourse being, "What the Coming of the Society of American Florists to the South Means to Southern Florists." Dan McIntyre, one of the most experienced growers in the state gave his ideas upon "Greenhouse Construction" and Bruce Howell of Knoxville discussed the "Relation of the Growers of Ornamentals to the Florist" and showed how closely allied were these two branches of the industry. Karl P. Baum of Knoxville, spoke on the "Possibilities of Flower Culture in Tennessee." His paper called forth much interesting discussion. "Office Methods Which I Found Helpful" by John G. Haury, of Nashville, was listened to with much attention. At the night session, Frank A. Butler, superintendent of Nashville's park system discussed "Public Parks." Another fine lecture, illustrated with stereopticon views, was given by W. F. Bohlender, of Peter Bohlender & Sons, Tippecanoe City, O. Interspersed with these interesting sessions were many enjoyable social features, the local florists sparing no pains to have their visitors enjoy themselves and see what Nashville and her people are doing. A trip by auto through the city was part of the social programme and the various ranges and retail establishments were visited, followed by a dinner at the Maxwell House which was much enjoyed.

Splendid exhibits of nursery stock were made by the Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., of Louisiana, Mo., and the Vincennes Nurseries, Vincennes, Ind., the latter staging northern grown pecans and English walnuts. The Stark exhibit included a noteworthy display of Hood River grown apples. The latest improvements in greenhouse accessories and supplies made an exhibit of much interest. M. C. D.

Society of American Florists in the South.

A paper read by R. C. Kerr, vice-president of the Society of American Florists, Houston, Tex., at the annual meeting of the Tennessee State Floral Society, Nashville, January 24, 1916.

Surely I was very much pleased when on January 13 you invited me by letter to speak before the Tennessee State Floral Society, because of the element of cordiality that I perceived in that invitation and I want to assure you that I appreciate it as a privilege as well as an honor to be on this programme. My subject was left to my own choosing and I selected, "What the Coming of the Society of American Florists to the South Means to the Southern Florists." I have chosen this subject for two reasons: First, I have an inherent interest in and love for the S. A. F., and second, because I do not wish to miss an opportunity to offer a few suggestions leading up to our S. A. F. convention, which meets in Houston, August 15-17.

We florists are a very conservative people. We believe in holding on to the things that have been found valuable. Sometimes we hold on to some of those things until they have lost their real worth. The American people criticise very severely the Chinese people, because they have been holding on to the old things of their civilization, that they have cherished for generations. Progress in usefulness and in influence of any trade or profession depends more on the vigor with which new ideas are developed and used, than upon mere industry in following long established practice, and I believe from the present spirit of our society, shown at the Texas florists' convention and flower show, also at this convention, and the work that has been done and the action that has been taken by this and other southern societies that we are on the right road, and that we are broadening out.

I am glad to testify to the fact that the people of our entire southland, according to my observation, are doing the best that is within them according to the lights that are before them. I would not trespass upon local questions in your territory, but for the fact that I have had them brought to my attention in Texas, and our problems are almost identical with your problems in this state. That the florists of the south are waking up to the importance of organization is demonstrated by the activities of this society, the New Orleans Horticulture Society, the Texas State Florists' Association and other southern florists that are considering the matter of state and local organization at this time—and the florists of the south should be more strongly organized than any other section of the country, due to the many obstacles we have overcome. Our difficulties in our growing departments are many; our stores, especially in the lower southern states, were not up to the standard; many of our so-called large floral concerns have shown lack of good business management. These conditions are fast being remedied with modern stores, modern greenhouses, and best of all, modern business methods.

What is bringing about this change in conditions? Local and state organizations are being organized and florists are getting together, discussing these matters and exchanging ideas. You walk into a poorly kept store or a rundown greenhouse where everything appears to be some 10 years behind the times, and say something to the manager about taking an interest in some local or state organization, and his answer, invariably will be that he never attends a convention. He does not believe in organization and never attends or takes any interest in the flower shows. He cannot figure out in actual dollars and cents the good he can derive. That man is short sighted. He thinks he is economical, but he does not realize that he can bring back from a convention some good ideas, that if put into practice, will be money in his pocket.

Again, who are your progressive florists? I can pick them out. They are the men who take an interest in your local, state and national organizations. They also belong to the Chamber of Commerce, the Ad Club, the Merchants' Association and other commercial organizations. I say all these are business getters, to say nothing of the good to be derived by coming in contact with business men of other lines. Many lack up-to-date business methods, for many of our florists are prone to do the work of a two dollar per day man, instead of studying the business-getting side, such as the sales force, the advertising, the display, etc. For, in fact, the fundamental purpose of government, the very foundation stone upon which the success and prosperity of a people must depend, is the strength, vigor, the health of the people, who live under its flag. And our work brings us out into the open, in touch with all that is beautiful and good, and lifts our heart and soul to better and higher things.

This brings me down to the all important subject. The S. A. F. convention is to be held in the south. We want every one possible there and after you attend the convention and return home, see what it means to you, what you put in it, and what you brought back home to be put with your great storehouse of knowledge. Was it not all worth while in time, money and fellowship? Two years ago among many other southern and western florists, I was in attendance at the S. A. F. convention at Boston. We discussed the Society of American Florists, both pro and con. We all asked this question, "Why does not the S. A. F. come south?" Some of the old timers stated that they had only a small membership in the south and the south takes no interest in our society, nor are the florists of the south awake to the importance of organization. We southerners, among ourselves, talked it over and agreed with our brother florist that what he said was true, and we left Boston with the determination to go home and stir up interest in organization work and show the S. A. F. what we call value in co-operation; to let them and the world know that we were alive to our own interests; that we would stir up so much interest in this work that the grand old organization, the S. A. F., would stand ready for an invitation to visit the south.

The florists from all over the country have been watching the work of the southern florists for the past two years. At the San Francisco convention, the southern florists extended that invitation. It is needless for me to state the results—it was a landslide. Yes, willing, glad to come, to be in our midst. Now, fellow florists, it is up to us to show our mettle. To show them we appreciate being affiliated with them, our loyalty, and show them we are glad they are on their way to be with us. We must rally to the support of the S. A. F., show the florists of the country that we do nothing half-way; that we will make the convention come up to the standard in every way, and it will only take two things from you. Little to put in, but if left out would mean failure, and these two things—your membership in the S. A. F. and your presence in Houston. The Texas florists pledge the rest. Your membership and your presence, and that is asking very little of you, compared to the great amount of good returns we are going to derive from this great gathering of men of our profession. You will give your membership, and I know I can count on your being present, for we must attend these conventions as a labor of love, as the out-growth of deep-seated loyalty of citizenship, and as long as we feel this loyalty, as long as it will inspire us, we will receive many returns. We will have large audiences and a great deal of good will be done. I may be old-fashioned in that idea, but I love the idea of loyalty and patriotism, and we must not fail to find sufficient loyalty and patriotism to uphold the S. A. F., otherwise I will be sadly disappointed. Yet, at the same time, I am practical enough in my make-up, that should the time come that we cannot be loyal enough to give our presence, and if such a condition confronts us, we must be ready to meet it, and I believe we ought to hold this matter up as a great movement; an expression of the loyalty of the people of this country for the good of the whole people, without any regard for direct self returns. Of course, we get returns. Returns in the way of sociability and improvement and in the enjoyment of each other's society, but I mean without any narrow motive, and I believe that we are coming to the test of our loyalty and citizenship along this line. I believe we have to key ourselves up a little, or else we may find the S. A. F. waning.

We are going to have a record breaking attendance and I will tell you why. It is the one opportunity for the florists from the north and east, west and central states to see this grand old southern country, and I may say Texas—add Texas, also. It has been said that when the American Indian was being gradually crowded out of the northern states, there was one tribe that held its own better than the average tribe, but gradually, one by one, the great warriors of this tribe were stricken down, either by the gun of the white man or by starvation. The wild buffalo were also disappearing, and finally there was but one great warrior left. Brooding upon the many trials of his people, he finally turned his back upon his northern home and set his face toward the setting sun. He finally reached the borders of our Texas before it became a state. Awakening one morning, he looked upon the broad horizon; he saw a great herd of antelope and buffalo; he saw flowing before him a beautiful river and the whole earth seemed to him covered with beautiful flowers. There were thousands of blue bonnets; there was the red blanket, and as it seemed to him a thousand other beautiful wild flowers; and he looked up into the heavens and there was not a cloud in sight. His heart was so filled with delight in this new country, that he cast himself on the ground and exclaimed "Tejas!"—land of sunshine and flowers.

And Houston in that great state has many attractions and never fails to meet her visitors more than half way, so as to assure them a period of pleasant recreation, during such time as they may be permitted to devote to matters outside of the direct object of their visit. With the numerous points of historical interest within easy reach of our city, our entertainment committee arranging a most entertaining trip down our ship channel to the San Jacinto battle grounds; also other trips to our seashore attractions, which are likewise accessible, being only 25 miles away; with our continuous sea breezes blowing day and night, and to that famous summer resort, Galveston. These and many other attractions make the city an ideal one from the visitors' standpoint.

Right now we are planning the convention garden, which promises to be among the best yet displayed at S. A. F. conventions. George E. Kessler, the famous landscape artist of St. Louis, Mo., is acting in an advisory capacity with our own C. L. Brock, park superintendent to the city of Houston, who has this work in charge, and you may rest assured that a great treat is in store for you. Our Convention hall is one of the largest in the south and present indications are that it will be packed to the limit with exhibits. Our three million dollar hotel The Rice, will be the headquarters. So, you see it will be worth while to attend this convention in Houston.

Now, I want to make my last plea for your support with your membership and your presence and I know every florist here will be only too glad to render this assistance and give me his membership before leaving the hall. One thing about this movement is that everybody can work at it. It is one of the biggest propositions that can be conceived. We ought to go home from here with new inspiration, with a full realization of the splendid work which stretches out before us, and we ought to accomplish great results. And, in conclusion, fellow workers, let me say that notwithstanding the few suggestions I have made, the burden of my message to you today, is to put your numerical and financial strength in your local and state organization and to the mother organization of them all, the S. A. F., and you will get much in return.

Again thanking you for the privilege of appearing before your organization and with best wishes for its future. I hope to see each and every one in Houston this summer.

Boston.TRADE BETTER THAN YEAR AGO.

The past week witnessed a slight decline in the price of some lines of flowers, owing to an increase in the supply. The "January thaw" brought with it spring weather and did a great deal toward relieving the shortage. Roses held up very well the whole week, but carnations declined in price the last three days, $4 per 100 being about the limit on them now. Bulbous stock is arriving in large quantities, Dutch Spurs and Lorraine tulips being most plentiful. Spurs now sell for $3 and $4 per 100, tulips bringing $1 per 100. Calla lilies are very scarce for the season; the few flowers that come in sell readily for $2 to $3 per dozen. Freesias sell well at $5 and $6 per 100, there being some extra fine stock seen. Violets are not in such heavy demand as usual, 75c per 100 being about the limit. From all appearances, the outlook for the next month is very promising, as the retail trade on the whole is very good, far better than at this time last year, and there is no sign as yet of an abnormally heavy crops of any kind of stock.

CLUB MEETING.

The Boston Gardeners' and Florists' club held its annual "ladies night," January 18. There was a very good attendance, about 350 being present. The officers for the ensuing year were installed and the reports of the various committees were heard. President Metheven appointed the following committees: Entertainment—George Hamer, W. J. Collins, John McIntyre, Wm. Mix, Harold Edgar, Wm. Watson, A. E. Eisenhardt, P. A. Gavin and D. J. Creighton. Membership welcome committee—J. F. Briery, J. N. Ness, D. J. Reid, J. L. Russell, Edward Rose, John Reid, R. E. Montgomery and Frank Murray. Committee on exhibits—Robert Cameron, Kenneth Finlayson, Duncan Finlayson, James Wheeler, Wm. Downs, S. J. Goddard, F. E. Palmer, T. H. Westwood, Julius Huerlin, Alex McKay, Donald McKenzie, Chas. Sander and Eber Holmes. Guttman & Raynor, Inc., of New York, exhibited the new rose, Prima Donna, which received a report of honor and the two new carnations, Laura Weber and Peace, both of which were awarded honorable mention. The business meeting was followed by a very nice entertainment of music, speaking and vaudeville after which refreshments were served. The party then engaged in dancing for the rest of the evening.

NOTES.

E. K. Farr, of Stoneham, Mass., is cutting some very fine carnations at present. His White Wonder is the best seen in the city, the stems being exceptionally strong for this variety. He is also cutting some very good Spencer sweet peas.

Cahil & Beasley, of East Milton, Mass., are cutting some extra good pansies. Their high quality may well be imagined when they receive $3 per 100 for the specials. They have crops of sweet peas and irises coming in a little later.

Max Trockman, with H. M. Robinson Co. has announced his engagement to Miss A. Schaefer. The wedding will take place March 26. The couple will go to Philadelphia on their honeymoon.

Matthew Roan, of Waltham, Mass., recently purchased a "Buick Six" automobile. "Matty" is quite an automobile enthusiast and derives a great deal of pleasure from his new car.

Welch Bros. report a very good trade, and are very enthusiastic over the outlook. They are receiving a very fine line of stock at present, their roses being of exceptional quality.

John H. F. McDonald, the well-known Harvard square florist, is receiving congratulations from his many friends upon the arrival of an eight pound boy January 17.

Penn. the Florist, will discontinue the Bromfield store and devote all their energies to the new store at 124 Tremont street. January 28 is the date set for the removal.

Mrs. Thomas Cox passed away at her home in Dorchester, Saturday morning, January 22. Mr. Cox's many friends extend their sympathy in his bereavement.

Alex Guttman, of Guttman & Raynor, Inc., New York, was visiting in Boston for a few days this week.

The bowling league met Thursday evening, January 20, Bresnahan again carrying the individual honors with 114 for single string and 320 for the three. The standing of the teams is as follows:

Galvin ...	39	13	Market ...	36	16
Carbone ...	34	18	Zinn ...	24	28
Pansies ...	23	29	Flower Ex.	21	31
Robinson ..	19	33	Mc & Mc..	12	40

Lancaster County Florists' Club.

The third Thursday of each month and the one o'clock trolley car seem synonymous terms. This time it was all aboard for Strasburg, the home of good carnations, and the first stop made at Amos Rohrer's, where we found the stock in good shape, and a preference for White Wonder over Matchless. Mr. Rohrer grows quite a bit of mixed stock to supply the local needs of his borough, and it is in evidence all along the streets, almost every house having one or more windows filled with plants and flowers. The next place visited was that of Charles Herr, the place to see first-class plants and first-class flowers under any and all conditions of weather and this was no exception right now; good clean stock and good quality blooms, not so many of them as under good sunshine, but enough to satisfy any grower. Mr. Herr is just the opposite from Mr. Rohrer and is enthusiastic over Matchless and will plant no other white for the next few years. Enchantress Supreme is so satisfactory that he does not want any other in this color for some time to come and a very good looking bench of Alice is likely to be filled with Enchantress Supreme instead for next season. Champion is being tried out and gives good results, but it not to be compared to Beacon as grown at this place. It was the intention to visit the establishment of J. Wade Galey, a short walk from Strasburg, but the weather was hot, the clouds dripping with moisture, and the road muddy, so this trip had to be given up and we trolleyed back to Lancaster. We had with us as visitors S. S. Pennock and Ernest Hoehl, of Philadelphia, Pa.; James Brown, of Coatsville, and J. L. Lockard, from Mountville, formerly of York, Pa.

The meeting was called to order by President B. F. Barr at 7:30 p. m., and after the usual routine the election of officers was taken up, resulting as follows: Harry A. Schroyer, president; Elmer J. Weaver, vice-president; Frank L. Kohr, secretary; Harry K. Rohrer, treasurer. With the usual formalities, and the use of considerable flowery speech, the retiring president turned over his office to the incoming president, and Mr. Schroyer in accepting it, asked the hearty cooperation of each member of the club, and in the course of his remarks made the statement that Lancaster county grew as good stock as any place in the United States and sometimes a little better than any other place. This was corroborated later in the evening by Ernest Hoehl of S. S. Skidelsky & Co., who took off his hat to Lancaster county growers, and of course as a mere matter of side issue, later on took their orders for stock. The incoming secretary made his bow to the public and hopes to please every member of the club.

L. Landis, the retiring secretary, had served the club since it organized and helped to put it on the good solid basis it now is. The treasurer we all know is one of those faithful chaps who says little and does much, and guards the funds of the club with a watchful eye and a strong hand. On the exhibition table, through the courtesy of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., we had displays of Alice Coombs, Nancy, Rosalia, Miss Theo, Aviator, Belle Washburn, Nebraska, Old Gold and Seedling No. 360 of Roper's, all of which will be heralded at the meeting of the American Carnation Society in St. Louis, and none of which deserved any unfavorable comments, but Alice Coombs seemed to lead in favor, with Rosalia as a possible successor of Mrs. C. W. Ward, which seems to be deteriorating with many growers. S. S. Pennock gave us a short, but to the point, talk on the newer carnations, and gave a boost for the National Flower Show in Philadelphia, March 25-April 2, and on the strength of these remarks it is likely that there will be worked up a Lancaster day for the show and a special train run from this point. Mr. Hoehl told us of his trip through the east, where he saw some of the newer carnations growing and several members discussed carnations pro and con.

It was voted to allow employees to come into the club as associate members at $1 per annum. H. S. Williamson, the man who stands for everything progressive in Lancaster, joined as an amateur. The president then appointed his committees as follows: Programme—H. K. Rohrer, Thos. Fries, W. B. Girvin, W. A. Hammond. Show Committee—A. M. Herr, M. J. Brinton, A. F. Strickler, Walter Denlinger. Glad Hand Committee—J. H. Linky, E. P. Hostetter, John Shreiner, J. Ralph Hess. Membership—B. F. Barr, J. C. Siebold, J. L. Ranck. Visiting Committee—Elmer Weaver, Chas. Herr, Wm. Aherne, Ira Landis. Sport Committee—David Rose, Rudolph Nagle, C. S. Loeffler.

The next meeting, February 17, will be a lecture by Lord & Burnham Co., illustrated with lantern slides on greenhouse construction and every florist within reach of Lancaster on that date is invited to attend and meet the Glad Hand committee. The visit will be to the establishment of W. B. Girvin, at Leola, and the time from Lancaster, 3 p. m., Thursday, February 17.

ALBERT M. HERR.

John Bauscher's Fire Loss.

After an all-night fight, January 17, to prevent the freezing of stock at the range of John Bauscher, Jr., Freeport, Ill., the property caught fire the following morning and seven of the 15 houses and their contents were completely destroyed. The damage to the heating plant was also great, and the loss of plants by freezing in the eight houses that escaped the fire will make the loss, it is estimated, not less than $40,000. Approximately 60,000 feet of glass were broken. The fire, the origin of which is unknown, started in the packing shed, and as the range is situated quite a distance from the nearest fire hydrant, only one stream could be used, nearly 3,000 feet of hose being required. Only a small amount of insurance was carried, due to the high rate for the risk.

Horticultural Society of New York.

An exhibition was held under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York in the American Museum of Natural History, Central Park West and 77th street, January 19. The exhibits were largely from private estates and there were a number of excellent features, noteworthy being orchids from Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J. (J. P. Moosman, Gr.); Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y. (James Stuart, Gr.), and Lager & Hurrell, Summit N. J., commercial growers, all of whom took prizes. Henry Goldman, Deal Beach, N. J. (Anton Bauer, Gr.), exhibited for the first time, a seedling snapdragon. This is a fine production, as it now appears, with creamy yellow flowers, close and evenly distributed. It was awarded a special prize.

Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y. (P. W. Popp, Gr.), was awarded a special prize for a handsome vase of Buddleia Asiatica. William Shillaber, Essex Falls, N. J. (J. P. Sorenson, Gr.), won a special prize for a vase of pink sweet peas named Yarrowa. J. C. Brady, Gladstone, N. J. (Fred Hughes, Gr.), took special prizes for vase of Hoosier Beauty roses, vase of Double White Killarney roses, vase of Carnation White Wonder and vase of poinsettias.

In the classes for carnations, Mrs. C. Hermann, Tarrytown, N. Y. (Abel Weeks, Gr.), won first prize for 12 white. Henry Goldman was first with 12 Enchantress shade and first with 12 Mrs. Ward shade. J. C. Brady won first for 12 scarlet. D. G. Reid, Irvington, N. Y. (A. W. Golding, Gr.), took first for 12 crimson and first for vase of 50 blooms, one or more varieties arranged for effect with asparagus. P. W. Popp was awarded a special prize for six pots of Spirea rubrum and James Stuart received a certificate for a vase of euphorbia. A meeting of the society was held at 3:45 p. m., after which William N. Craig lectured on the "Home Flower Garden."

Oklahoma City.

There has been an unusually heavy demand for funeral flowers from towns throughout the state and this has tended to keep the city florists quite busy this week. Saint Valentine's day is beginning to be featured in the florists' advertisements in the daily press. This is good business, as February 14 has developed into a good flower day in this city.

NOTES.

A postal census just completed shows this city to have a population of over 80,000 people. Almost every grocery store is handling flower seeds and, during the proper season, the city is overrun with tree agents representing nurseries located in other states. Some day some enterprising seedsmen and nurserymen will locate here and build up a fortune, for neither of these branches of the trade have been developed in proportion to the growth in population. It may not be generally known, but is a fact, that the population of the state of Oklahoma now exceeds in number the population of the state of Kansas.

Furrow & Co. are sending in from their Guthrie greenhouses a very fine line of bulbous plants and cyclamens. This firm has completed the surveying of their newly acquired property in the city and as soon as weather conditions will permit they will commence the erection of a range of greenhouses.

January 22 the Stiles Co. conducted a bargain day sale on red geranium plants. They filled their show window with the geraniums, and these all being in full flower they made quite an effective display. The sale proved quite a success.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Louise Witterstaetter.

Death wrote "finis" to the life story of Mrs. Louise Witterstaetter, mother of Richard Witterstaetter, well-known florist of Cincinnati, O., January 20, after a brave fight against the overpowering odds of time. She had reached the good old age of 88 years. This good and noble woman passed into eternal rest as peacefully as the angel of rest touches the orbs of an infant.

In life, "Grandma" as she was known among her neighbors as well as her grandchildren, carved her name on the imperishable tablets of memory. She was beloved by all and she endeared herself with kind words and a tender heart to all with whom she came in contact. The funeral was held from her late residence, Monday, January 24, to St. William's church. The floral tributes were beautiful and numerous.

Released! Released! set free at last!

Her inner "soul" that long has sought the air,

The infinite air from which the spheres draw breath—

Has found its freedom in the ultimate "There!"—

Has left its place on the wings of Death.

Edward Welch.

Edward Welch, for the past 35 years a well known and prominent florist of Hartford, Conn., died at his home in that city January 19, of pneumonia, after an illness of four days. He was in his fifty-fourth year. He was born in Simsbury, Conn., the son of Andrew and Margaret Welch. When a mere boy he was growing flowers, and when 21 years old he went to Hartford and started in business as "Welch the Florist." For a number of years he had a store and greenhouse in Windsor avenue. About 12 years ago the retail department was removed to Asylum street. Two years ago, he sold the store to his son, Andrew W. Welch, who removed the business to the Majestic theatre building, also on Asylum street. The father continued in charge of the greenhouses.

Mr. Welch was a man of genial and kindly disposition, broad minded and charitable. A devout Roman Catholic, he was generous and open handed to the needs of his church. In the fraternal orders to which he belonged, he was extremely popular on account of his good humor and ready wit. He was a member of Green Cross council, Knights of Columbus; Hartford Lodge No. 19, B. P. O. E.; Samuel Colt court Foresters of America and the Third Division, A. O. H. His wife, who survives him, was Miss Ellen M. Pattison of Simsbury. He is also survived by four sons, Edward J., Andrew W., G. Francis and Donald Welch.

Thomas J. Dixon.

Thomas J. Dixon, for the past 50 years in business as a florist and gardener at the corner of Tilden and Canarsie avenues, Brooklyn, N. Y., died at his home, January 19, from infirmities of age. He was 82 years old. He was born in Westmeath, Ireland, and came to this country when 19 years old. He worked for a time on a private estate at Red Bank, N. J., but soon went into business for himself. His business was largely funeral work and the care of lots in Holy Cross cemetery, near which he was located. He was an upright man and had many friends. He is survived by a widow, one daughter and two sons. His funeral was held at Holy Cross church on the morning of January 22.

Bernard Schramm.

Bernard Schramm, pioneer florist and nurseryman of Toledo, O., died at his home in that city, January 18, aged 78 years, after a brief illness. He was born in Statzheim, Alsace-Lorain, and came to this country in 1853, locating in Philadelphia, where he spent some time with his uncle, Peter Kiefer, hybridizer of the Kiefer pear. In 1863 he went to Toledo, where he organized the Humboldt Nursery, and achieved an enviable reputation as a nurseryman of exceptional ability. He was also among the first to engage in the florist business in Toledo, the establishment now being conducted under the name of Schramm Bros. being established by him in 1881. Mr. Schramm was a successful business man in every sense of the word, and his death marks the end of a long and honorable career.

Hugo Hoffman.

Hugo Hoffman, for a number of years in the wholesale cut flower business in New York, died January 14; he was about 55 years old and a widower without children. Over 20 years ago he was a member of the wholesale firm of Hoffman & Hart, which for a time had a good business. After the dissolution of that firm, he was in business for himself for several years. He was later employed by J. K. Allen; also by Reed & Keller, the supply firm. Of late he has been connected with a moving picture concern. He was a native of Germany.

Henry J. Huesman.

Henry J. Huesman, the oldest and one of the best known florists of Reading, Pa., passed away January 19, at his residence, 631 Schuylkill avenue, aged 71 years. For the last 37 years, Mr. Huesman conducted a floral establishment at Schuylkill avenue and Greenwich street. His death was due to asthma and heart disease. Mr. Huesman had hosts of friends in that locality and was well known among his fellow craftsmen throughout that section.

ANOTHER below zero snap is at hand, when perishable shipments must be held back.

Illinois State Florists' Association.

CONVENTION BOOSTERS.

On the call of Chairman John Staack of the general committee of arrangements the various general committees in charge of the local arrangements for the coming convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association, to be held in Moline March 7-8, met at the office of Julius Staack & Sons, Moline, Tuesday, January 18. Notwithstanding the inclement weather there was a good attendance at this meeting, mainly due to the great interest taken by members in the forthcoming convention. Davenport, Bettendorf and Rock Island members being as unselfish and as enthusiastic in their efforts for the success of this meeting as are the Moline florists, each of the cities named being largely represented on the various committees having charge of the arrangements for this meeting.

The name, Tri-City, is somewhat misleading, as properly it should be Quad-City, Bettendorf, Ia., which boasts several of our hardest working members, being directly across the Mississippi river from Moline, with Rock Island adjoining us on the west and sustaining the same relation to Davenport, Ia., that Moline does to Bettendorf. These four cities have a population of about 125,000, intelligent, progressive, music and beauty loving people. As an evidence of this it may be mentioned, that during the recent holiday season one local firm disposed of at good prices, one entire car-load of holly, and at that had to disappoint some late would-be buyers.

These cities are all linked together by as fine a street car service as there is in the west. We are connected on the south in Illinois, with Galesburg, Monmouth, Aledo, etc., by the Rock Island Southern interurban electric. With Clinton, Ia., on the north and Muscatine, Ia., on the south by the I. & I. electric road. With the outside world the Tri-Cities are connected by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, the Rock Island lines including the Rock Island and Peoria and the Milwaukee and St. Paul railways, all these lines reaching each of our cities. For the creature comfort of our guests we have in easy reach 12 first class hotels.

At this meeting it was decided to hold weekly meetings of all committees in charge of the arrangements. The chiefs of the various committees are as follows:

General chairman of all committees—John Staack, 2702 Sixth avenue, Moline, Ill.

Chairman entertainment committee—C. O. E. Boehm, park superintendent, Davenport, Ia.

Chairman hall committee—Wm. Knees, Sr., 1827 Fifteenth street place, Moline, Ill.

Chairman publicity committee—W. C. Wilson, 3107 Park, Sixteenth street, Moline, Ill.

Chairman privilege committee—A. Anderson, 1136 Thirteenth avenue, Moline, Ill.

Recording secretary—Wm. Knees, Jr., 1827 Fifteenth street place, Moline, Ill.

Prices Advancing.

A horticultural manufacturing concern which is raising prices on its goods says: "The truth is that the cost of material has advanced very much recently and since the war commenced the price of labor has gone up with us from $1.60 to $2.50 per day, which we are now paying, and it has come to a point where some of our specialties are most unprofitable. We do not know what we can do otherwise than advance the price or else discontinue their manufacture. Other people seem to be advancing prices as necessity requires. For instance, the Packard Car Co. quoted us $2,600 on a car in November, and after considering the matter we decided to purchase in December and they put the price up $150 higher, stating that the actual cost of the materials in the car had advanced in that short time to this extent; consequently we were obliged to pay $2,750, although the previous quotation had been given and was being considered when the price was advanced. In twine which we use in connection with wrapping the price was advanced from 15 cents per pound to 20 cents per pound last week and that without notice. The dealers who supply us with automobile tires have advised us that they would accept no more orders at prevailing prices and were re-arranging their schedules, and would quote an advance price within a few days. We merely mention these matters to show what we are up against in the matter of manufacturing. The cost of labor with us is of course the greatest item of expense."

State Florists' Association of Indiana.

The February meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana will be held Tuesday, February 1, with F. Dorner & Sons Co., at Lafayette. Indianapolis florists will leave traction terminal station on the 8:15 limited car. Remember the date, members and visiting florists, and join the party.

CHARLES H. TOTTY, - - - MADISON, N. J.

Cleveland.

Stock is coming in a little more plentiful the latter part of this week, due to the warmer weather and a few days of sunshine, but it has not improved the quality to any extent. Roses still remain far short of the demand in all colors and grades. Carnations are more abundant and the prices have dropped a cent and more on the different grades. Reds seem to predominate. Freesias, sweet peas, snapdragons (white, yellow and Ward color), daffodils, Paper White narcissi, tulips, calla and Easter lilies, orchids, violets and lily of the valley are a part of the daily receipts. The demand has dropped off somewhat, there being considerably less funeral work the past week. Greens are plentiful.

NOTES.

On Wednesday evening, January 19, the establishment of Charlesworth &

Son, 10601 Euclid avenue, florists, and Wood & Co., seedsmen, who are located next door, were destroyed by fire. L. Charlesworth, who lived in apartments over his store, lost all his household effects, only partly covered by insurance, and his store was very badly damaged. He is at work cleaning things up and expects, temporarily at least, to continue business at the old stand.

Martin L. Reutenik, president of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, who lives on Schoaf road, has been elected president of the Lincoln Savings and Banking Co., 2820 West Twenty-fifth street. He is one of the best known market gardeners of the middle west and has been mayor of Brooklyn Heights for a number of years.

Miss Elsie D. Nosek, youngest daughter of Mrs. A. Nosek, florist at 5307 Broadway, will be married to F. H. Gehrke, January 25, at St. Peter's Lutheran church.

FLOWER SHORTAGE BREAKING.

Following a record-breaking January in the way of scarcity of stock and long prices, there are signs of a break in the market. The sunshine of the past week has been favorable to the maturing of sweet peas, carnations and other standard blooms. This will be in the nature of a relief to florists, who have had their orders to big growers turned down, and have undergone much difficulty in taking care of the public. While the bulk of the trade has been funeral work, a very large demand has been in the way of flowers to be sent to sick friends.

Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass.

Many customers who found the price of cut flowers prohibitive would be persuaded to substitute a plant, at a price corresponding to what they had in mind upon coming in for carnations or roses. Trade is still very active. Easter lilies, always in demand for funeral orders, can hardly be obtained at all in the case of florists who do not grow them. The outlook is regarded as being very good for St. Valentine's day flowers.

NOTES.

Opening of a new $550,000 home by the Athletic club last week, with incidental private and public receptions, gave Columbus florists considerable business. The club contract was in the hands of the Livingston Seed Company, including palms, azaleas, roses and other flowers for the six floors of the building. There were also a number of private orders from friends of the club or groups of members. One table piece, supplied by T. J. Ludwig, cost $75.

The Franklin Park Floral Company and Underwood Brothers, who depend upon a public service company for their heat, had a hard time saving stock one night during the zero weather of last week, when the plant was out of commission for a time. Both suffered more or less damage before improvised relief measures could be put into force.

SCARCITY OF FLOWERS CONTINUES.

During the past week the scarcity of flowers has been even more marked than the previous week, although the temperatures have moderated considerably. Dark weather has generally prevailed, with an occasional sunshiny day. The demand continues to be very brisk in all lines and out-of-town flowers have to be shipped in in order to fill the numerous orders for decorations, weddings, parties and funerals. Prices are holding up very well, roses especially, the Shawyer and Russell

PLANT A LIVE ONE

AVIATOR

Best Scarlet Carnation Ever Offered

AVIATOR is an unusually productive carnation and will produce 30 blooms per plant per season, with a heavy crop for Christmas. We have already cut on an average of over 14 blooms per plant from stock benched September 5, 1915, and are still cutting heavily every day. Our records show that AVIATOR is the best money maker on our place and is a variety that every grower should buy if interested in greater profits. Color is an intense scarlet and the flower has a fine full center. Stem is thin, wiry and stiff, and the calyx non-bursting. Every break develops into a perfect flower in a remarkably short time. Place your order right now for AVIATOR and get on the band wagon so that when the music starts up next season you will be among the successful ones to gather in the coin.

ROOTED CUTTINGS, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

varieties bringing $1.50 to $4 and $5 retail. The blooming plant trade is remarkably good at present.

NOTES.

Miss Helen Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, O., and Miss C. B. Flick spent two days in this city last week, Miss Flick coming to decorate the Anthony hotel ballroom for a musicale, which was one of the leading society events of the season. American Beauty roses in profusion were arranged in an artistic manner, with palms and ferns. The young ladies who acted as ushers carried American Beauty staffs, tied with Beauty ribbon. The entire arrangement was elegantly carried out. Miss Patten suffered a painful fall in the hotel and sustained an injury about the knee cap. She reports business at Toledo very good, her force being kept very busy with a heavy demand for funeral work.

A handsome decoration for a dinner-bridge party last week was executed by A. J. Lanternier & Son at the Commercial club. The ball room was decorated in southern smilax and many tall palms, while Shawyer roses were used effectively in tall vases and on the elegantly appointed dining tables.

F. J. Knecht & Co. are cutting some fine Russell roses. Their crop of roses and carnations have been shortened considerably by the weather conditions.

NEW CARNATION

Cottage Maid

Sport of Mrs. C. W. Ward.

Did You Go to the Carnation Show at St. Louis? If So, Did You See Our Beautiful New "COTTAGE MAID," Queen of the Novelties.

The public here in New York is crazy over the color of this beautiful new carnation. It is a clear shell pink, deep in the center and lighter toward the edge. It is a color your trade demands.

Its plant is identical with its well known and widely grown parent "Mrs. C. W. Ward" and it has the same wonderful keeping and shipping qualities as this variety. In fact at the Cleveland Show this fall "Cottage Maid" besides the first prize in its class, won the prize for the vase of carnations in the best condition at the end of the Show. And these flowers were shipped from New York.

We have grown this variety for six years and tried it out thoroughly. It is not our policy to let buyers of our novelties do the experimenting.

We believe in "Cottage Maid" and we are going to back up our belief by planting 50,000 of it next year for blooms besides the stock plants. It will be Sent out next winter. Send in Your Order Early.

And keep your eye on "CRYSTAL WHITE," our sensational pure white, which is larger and more productive than "Matchless." It will probably be disseminated in 1917-18.

STOCK IS A TRIFLE MORE PLENTIFUL.

Stock is more plentiful this week than it has been for some time, which is due principally to the warmer weather that set in Friday, January 21. The annual midwinter mild weather is continuing at this writing, bringing an unseasonable temperature of 41 degrees above zero around 9 o'clock in the mornings. The lowest point reached during the night so far this week was 37 degrees above zero, five degrees above the freezing point. The warm spell, though unseasonable, is not unusual in this city at this time of the year, for we have had similar warm spells almost every year in January. High marks of 65 degrees above zero were recorded January 1, 1876, and January 23, 1909. Southeasterly winds were the cause of the warm weather. Extreme cold weather prevails throughout the far northwest and is spreading over the northwestern and north-central states, and is expected to reach this vicinity about the middle of this week. Should the weather man's predictions come true, this vicinity will experience another cold spell and a sudden shortening up of stock. Carnations especially are more plentiful and have dropped considerably in prices since last week, but are cleaning up nicely each day. Roses are none too plentiful and prices are holding quite firm. American Beauty roses are in short supply and command good prices. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses in the longer stemmed grades are more plentiful, but clean up well owing to the shortage of American Beauties. Gardenias and orchids are seen in large numbers at a few of the stores and are in fair demand. Violets are in good supply and the receipts of sweet peas are larger, but there is no surplus when the stores close at night. Lily of the valley cleans up quickly each day at the advertised quotations. Lilies are more plentiful and the same holds good for tulips, jonquils, Romans, Paper White narcissus and freesias. Some fine colored freesias are now being offered, but the receipts are limited and disposed of early at $5.00 and $6.00 per 100. Green goods are plentiful, especially smilax, which is not moving as briskly as it might. White stock in general is a trifle more plentiful and prices are a little lower, there is no great surplus and a few real brisk days would find the market pretty well cleaned up each day at an early hour. Wedding work is plentiful and the demand for funeral flowers keeps up surprisingly good. Property loss estimated at millions, thousands of men, women and children driven from their homes, pollution of water of this city, and appeals for aid from territory within a radius of 50 miles, is a brief summary of the flood that swept the northern part of the state early January 20 without warning. A steady rain of 16 hours' duration falling on the ice-glazed surface of the earth and snow-choked sewers and ice-blocked streams was the immediate cause of the record-breaking torrent. Trains were marooned and some of the boiler pits at many of the greenhouse establishments were flooded, and while for a time things looked serious to the growers no damage was done to the crops, although fire engines were hired to empty the pits at several of the places.

NOTES.

Percy Jones is handling an unusually large quantity of bulbous stock particularly tulips, jonquils and Paper White narcissus. The firm has installed a new system of checking up the sales and stock and can tell in a minute what stock of each kind from each grower is left, who the stock was sold to, when and how much it brought and what salesman sold it. Mrs. L. M. Jones, secretary of the firm, devised the new system which Manager Van Gelder believes is the only one in use in this city if not the entire country in the wholesale commission business today.

Peter Reinberg is cutting from a good crop of American Beauty and White Killarney roses, which are in good demand and clean up early each day. Felix Reichling says that the shipping trade is keeping up remarkably well and is considerably ahead so far of January of last year. The demand for rooted carnation cuttings and young rose stock is also brisk and new orders are being booked every day.

O. B. Miller, with W. J. Miller & Sons, Pontiac, attended the automobile show, now being held in the Coliseum, and pronounces it one of the finest exhibitions of its kind that he ever had the pleasure to attend. He placed an order with Bassett & Washburn while he was here for rooted cuttings of their new red carnation, Belle Washburn, which was his best seller last Christmas.

The John C. Moninger Co. received an order this week from Ludwig Stapp, of Rock Island, for three new houses, 34x300 feet. Several other nice orders have been taken since January 1 and everything points to a banner season for inquiries never were more numerous so soon after the holidays as they are right now.

BULB STOCK WANTED

I can handle more bulb stock to good advantage and would be pleased to hear from growers who have a surplus of any kind to dispose of. My wholesale store is located on the main floor and is the best location in the Great Chicago Market. Tulips, Freesias, Narcissi, Jonquils, etc., are particularly desired but would gladly receive any other seasonable stock. Do not take the time to write but start shipping immediately. Checks weekly.

M. N. Angelsberg, head gardener at the Calvary cemetery in Evanston was a visitor in the market this week. He is one of the oldest florists in the city and is well and favorably known in these parts, where he has been employed for the past 24 years.

R. C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex., attended the automobile show at the Coliseum, January 25, and left the same evening for St. Louis with the local delegation to attend the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society.

A. E. Hunt & Co. are busy filling orders for daisy plants and nearly every mail brings in new ones. The varieties offered are Etoile d'Or, Chicago White and Boston Yellow, which they grow on a large scale for the local market.

At J. A. Budlong's store stock in general is in large supply and no trouble is being experienced in filling all orders, according to Manager Schupp, who predicted the present market conditions several weeks ago.

Wietor Bros. are cutting a large supply of carnations, but the demand is so good that they clean up splendidly each day. The outlook for a large supply of stock for St. Valentine's day at their greenhouses is very bright.

The Raedlein Basket Co. is having a heavy call for Kewpie baskets for St. Valentine's day, which are most appropriate for the occasion and a style that everyone has bought who had occasion to inspect same.

The building at 37 West Jackson boulevard in which George Perdikas had a branch store was torn down this week to make room for a new skyscraper. His main store is at 407 South Wabash avenue.

The E. C. Amling Co.'s daily shipments include some very fancy colored freesias grown by Alois Frey, of Crown Point, Ind. A bunch of Yellow Garza was also on exhibition here this week.

A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s wholesale store had a narrow escape from being destroyed by fire, Wednesday evening, January 19, when the Bentley, Murray & Co.'s printing establishment located on the third floor of the same building was badly damaged. Mr. Vaughan had just reached his home in Oak Park when he received word of the fire and hurried right back to find that the firemen had it under control and had stopped it from spreading to any other part of the building, although for a time it appeared as if the whole structure was doomed.

P. Clausen & Son, of Albert Lea, Minn., has placed an order with the A. Dietsch Co. for two new houses, each 28x130 feet. The Dietsch Co. also received an order from H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, Can., for two new houses, each 25x125 feet, to be erected for a party at St. Paul, Minn.

John Poehlmann was able to walk around in his room in the hospital this week and is getting along as well as can be expected. He is now allowed to receive visitors and everyone sincerely hopes that he will be able to return to the store soon.

GOOD WEATHER BRINGS IMPROVEMENT.

With the return of a fair amount of sunshine, and the temperature reaching as high as 43 degrees, the local market can be termed as being in a reasonably fair shape, which has effected a decided relief from the greatest flower shortage Pittsburgh dealers have ever experienced. Roses remain quite scarce, but other varieties of stock are doing much better. Carnations, lilies and bulbous stock, such as narcissi, tulips and daffodils are in good supply. Some may think that the wholesaler chuckles with glee because of the higher prices he is forced to ask in times of extreme scarcity, but the wholesale man would much rather have a little more stock to sell at lower prices to satisfy his trade and avoid being "censured" by many of his customers who may think they are not getting a fair allotment in their daily supply. We may now look forward to a great decline in prices, if the present brand of weather stays with us a few more days.

NOTES.

The Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club announces as a feature of the next meeting, February 1, at Fort Pitt hotel, an illustrated lecture, entitled "The City Beautiful" with lantern slides, by Fred F. Bigger, to be followed by a discussion on "Civic Pride." President McCallum is very enthusiastic over the excellent programme arranged, and urges all, whether members or non-members, to attend and bring their friends.

The Western Pennsylvania Horticultural Society announces a meeting for January 25 in their quarters, the Chamber of Commerce, Keenan building. John K. M. L. Farquhar will give an illustrated lecture on travels through Japan and China.

George Marshall and wife have returned from their honeymoon in the southlands, after an exceptionally fine trip, having visited numbers of the old historical towns and cities of Florida.

STOCK SCARCE AND PRICES HIGH.

The shortage of stock continues and the rose problem is getting worse instead of better, offerings being made in dozen lots instead of by the hundred. Fancy prices are the rule. Carnations are increasing in numbers, but not enough are arriving to supply the call. There was quite a lot of decorating for social events and the orders for funeral work have been heavy; in consequence the trade has been kept busy. Great preparations are being made for Valentine day business.

NOTES.

H. Kusik & Co. report that orders for wire work at their establishment last week, were the heaviest in the history of the concern. They are handling some fine rose stock. Carnations and sweet peas are more plentiful.

W. J. Barnes is getting ready for Valentine day trade and will have a good supply of pot plants on hand for the occasion. His bulb stock is making good headway.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. is cutting between 3,000 and 4,000 carnations daily. Funeral work has been heavy, as have been orders for decorations.

Patrick Larkin has been busy with funeral work and corsages, but the limited supply of stock has been hard to contend with.

Samuel Murray reports A1 business. His window display of orchids last week was very artistic and attracted much attention.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. are cutting heavily on carnations, but the rose supply has shortened considerably.

The Sunny Slope Seed Farm of Independence, Mo., is sending in some very fine Butterfly sweet peas.

Stevens, the Florist, will have about 9,000 lily plants in shape for Easter in addition to his other stock.

The Costello-Moore Floral Co. reports a good demand for pot plants. Business in general is good.

The stork made a call at the home of Richard Jarrett, January 22—girl, seven and one-half pounds.

Gilday & Skidmore will open their new flower shop on East Eleventh street about February 1.

T. J. Noll & Co. report good shipping business. Mr. Noll was on jury service the past week.

A. F. Barbe is cutting carnations in good quantities. His spring stock looks well.

M. Elberfeld of the Alpha Floral Co. is spending a few weeks in New Orleans.

Arthur Newell had a heavy call for funeral work and stock exceptionally scarce.

JEFFERSONVILLE, IND.—Fire, resulting from a defective flue, damaged the greenhouse and garage of Otto H. Wathen on Utica pike, to the extent of $5,000, January 16.

BUSINESS BECOMING NORMAL.

Now that the days are growing noticeably longer and with prospects of sunny weather, the strained market conditions no doubt will again get back to a normal state. The end of last week already witnessed an increased supply of carnations, and with this line nearly normal, one has occasion to hope for the best. The sun, which has been retired since December 1 must, according to rules of nature soon make up for lost time. According to observations made by the writer, many crops are waiting for this bright weather, and when it does come, it will mean a big cut from all sources. It is quite noticeable that the funeral work is not quite so plentiful, although there is enough.

NOTES.

Early January 17, one of the coldest mornings of this winter, all the stock and about half of the greenhouses of the Chas. Zepnick range on the Chicago road was destroyed by fire of unknown origin; while the blaze started in the boiler room the boilers were found in good condition after the fire was extinguished; it's a case of complete loss as there was no insurance. Chas. Zepnick is the father of Robert, who conducts a retail store at 147 Lincoln avenue.

A visit to the bedside of Alfred Schiller at the St. Joseph hospital found him in good spirits; three days after the operation he was seized with a hiccup, which lasted four days and four nights, taxing his strength to the utmost, since then he is reported as getting along favorably.

Reports from the Radium hospital, where Walter Holton, of the Holton & Hunkel Co. underwent an operation for tumor of the stomach January 18, were very favorable, when inquiry was made January 23.

The greenhouse, 20x190 feet, also office and service building erected by the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., Chicago, for President Underwood, of the Erie Railroad, adjoining the southern line of the Wauwatosa cemetery, which was completed a short time ago, is nearly all filled with plants at this time; in way of construction everything is up-to-date, concrete being used wherever possible. Jno. Dunlap has charge of this place, plus the conservatories adjoining Mr. Underwood's summer home.

The Cudahy Floral Co. has let the contract for three houses, each 30x165 feet, which will be devoted to carnations. The large house in which they now grow their carnations will be devoted to roses. Gust Rusch & Co. report a steady cut of blooms from this plant.

The A. F. Kellner Co. had several hundred dollars worth of decorative plants frozen on January 16. Same were used for a church decoration on the upper east side on that day, and it being Sunday were to be called for the following day.

Gust Pohl, who grows a large quantity of stevia every year, has good reasons to smile these days, for with the pronounced shortage in other lines the returns have been very satisfactory since the holidays.

The growers near Watertown, Wis., who consign those fine sweet peas to the local market, complain of the dropping of the buds of late.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. claims pot plants to be a good proposition these days, owing to the high prices of cut flowers.

Thursday, February 3, is regular meeting night of the Milwaukee Florists' Club; every one ought to be there.

The Mueller Greenhouse Co. is consigning a heavy crop of Beacon carnations to the Holton & Hunkel Co.

The Russell roses cut at the Brown Deer plant of the Holton & Hunkel Co. are something to be proud of.

Frank Sylvester, with J. M. Fox & Son, spent last Sunday with his folks at Oconomowoc, Wis.

Nebraska State Florists' Society.

The Nebraska State Florists' Society held its annual meeting at Lincoln, January 18-20, in conjunction with the Nebraska State Horticultural Society. The horticultural display was a pleasing feature of the convention. Owing to a heavy snow storm the attendance of the florists was not as large as usual and the banquet was omitted. The present officers were retained for the ensuing year. Those present at the meeting called at the ranges of C. H. Frey and Frey & Frey and were well received. C. H. Frey's new red carnation Nebraska was much admired.

Minneapolis.

There has been little improvement during the past week as far as the supply of stock coming in is concerned, nearly everything for which there was a call arriving in limited quantities, but as the local florists are very accommodating, all orders were filled and no sales had to be turned down. Roses are holding stiff at prices ranging from five cents to twenty cents, carnations are quoted at from four cents to six cents and jonquils and Paper Whites at four cents. Orchids vary from $6.00 to $9.00 per dozen; lilies, 12 cents; tulips, four cents; violets, $1.00 per 100, and sweet peas sell at from 75 cents to $2.00. Smilax and asparagus ferns are in good supply.

NOTES.

Rice Bros. bowling team defeated the L. S. Donaldson floral department team two games out of three at the Elks' club alleys, January 20, after which the ladies present rolled some scores that shaded some of the men's scores by quite a margin—especially that one score of 92 pins. On Thursday, January 27, the St. Paul florists and the Minneapolis team will roll three games on the Elks' alleys.

O. H. Carlson is planning to build several new houses this spring. Several other large growers are contemplating building from 10,000 to 50,000 feet of glass during the spring and summer.

See W. D. Desmond for tickets for the dance of the Minnesota State Florists' Association, which will be held February 1. You are invited.

Oscar Amundson has had his store painted and re-decorated, and everything is now in readiness for the opening of the spring business.

C. W. Crum has returned to this city to take charge of the floral department at the R. M. Chapman Co.

H. B. Whitted had several large funeral orders last week which called for quantities of fancy stock.

Merriam Park Floral Co. is cutting some fancy cattleyas, which find a quick sale.

Rice Bros. are getting some choice roses, but the supply is not equal to the demand.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. is cutting some fancy rubrum lilies. T. C. R.

TRINIDAD, COLO.—The range of the Park Floral & Garden Co. has been leased for five years by W. P. Woolridge.

NOTICEABLE INCREASE IN SUPPLY.

The supply of stock in the market is heavier than it was a week ago, but is not as yet large enough to cause an easy market. Roses continue scarce and are far from being able to take care of the demand for them. Carnations are now coming in better than for some time. This applies both to their quantity and quality. Fair weather for several days should bring in a heavy cut. Easter lilies are not very plentiful. Lily of the valley continues scarce. Both double and single violets are plentiful, while sweet peas may be had in fair quantities. Bulbous offerings include narcissi, daffodils, jonquils and freesias. Other offerings include callas, rubrums and primroses. The supply of greens is sufficient for all present needs.

NOTES.

Edward E. Lester, of the J. M. McCullough Sons Co., and Mrs. Josephine McCullough were named executors and trustees of the estate of the late Albert McCullough.

P. J. Olinger has been on the sick list for the last few days.

C. E. Critchell has been having a very fine lot of orchids.

Visitors: Robert Newcomb, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; J. Bayersdorfer and Paul Berhowitz, of the H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; H. F. Winters, of the Winters Floral Co., Charleston, W. Va.

Mrs. Louise Witterstaetter died last week at the home of her son, R. Witterstaetter, in her eighty-eighth year. The funeral services were held at St. William's church and burial was at the mausoleum in the new St. Joseph's cemetery. There was an unusually strong attachment between the deceased and her son and he has the sympathy of his friends, who mourn with him in his great loss.

BUSINESS ABOUT NORMAL.

The volume of business has been about normal for the season, there being considerable work for funerals and several important weddings. In spite of soft, mucky weather, the quality of the stock has been very good; there is an increase in the supply all along the line with the exception of American Beauty roses, which are now very scarce and command almost Christmas prices for that matter, all roses are held at stiff figures, Ophelia particularly commanding a good price, as it is the first selection of almost all buyers. There appears to be enough roses to go around and yet the market seems bare most of the time. Cattleyas are shortening up, the crops going off for the present. There are quantities of gardenias, a boy with a tray of very good looking stock being seen in nearly every block of the shopping district—10 cents for one, 3 for 25 is the price. There appears to be enough lily of the valley, but it runs higher than ever before at this season. Golden Spur daffodils are now seen in quantity. Sweet peas are not any too plentiful. Both calla and Easter lilies are moved without difficulty. Lilac is not quite equal to the demand; it is fine.

MICHELL'S ADDITIONS.

Beginning on January 1, William Saville, lately with Charles L. Stanley, Plainfield, N. J., took charge as superintendent of Henry F. Michell Co.'s growing establishment at Andalusia, Pa. The firm has just completed three new houses 25x125 feet, which are to be devoted to pot roses for spring trade, also a connecting house, 35x143 feet, into which 13 other houses open. A King-Richon heating system has just been installed to heat all the houses from a central point. A new office building and garage will be built this spring. The firm is also buying a three-ton Packard truck to run from the growing establishment to the store in Philadelphia, and as a further proof of its progress it has leased an additional 10 acres of land, which now gives it 60 acres under cultivation. We wish Mr. Saville full success in his new and much larger sphere of activity and do not doubt but that he will achieve it.

NOTES.

Rose gardens are to be a feature of the great show. Among the local exhibitors, W. K. Harris and the Robert Craig Co. have both entered. A. R. Pierson will try and reproduce his last New York success and there will be others. The posters, posterettes and smaller cards are now going out and in a week or so the advertising campaign will be in full blast. It is said that no previous exhibition of any kind will have had the publicity that is planned to exploit this great exhibition.

The growers are much encouraged with the outlook so that new houses maybe looked for from now on. Samuel Lilley has contracted with the King Construction Co. for two houses, each 35x250 feet and a corridor propagation house, 12x133 feet. George Burton is also at it again and a large house for American Beauties is under way.

J. Otto Thilow, who is about to take a short trip to the tropics, left New

At the Berger Bros. market, spring flowers are leading items. Freesias, yellow and white daisies, and violets are seen in quantity, as are extra choice carnations.

Gardenias, cattleyas, white lilac and violets are being featured by the Leo Niessen Co. Rooted carnation cuttings are also a feature.

Special carnations are the feature with Edward Reid. His Wards, pink and white, are exceptionally fine.

PRICES CONTINUE FIRM.

There has been little change in the wholesale district since our last notes were written. Prices are generally firm. Special American Beauty roses, in some instances, sold at the rate of $1 each toward the latter part of the past week, but the buyers hate to pay it and most of the stock sold for less. As we forecasted a week ago, American Beauties are scarce, and this being the season of all the year when they are likely to be in demand, it is not surprising that the price is high. While much has been said and written about the high price of flowers, there is this to remember, that for about nine months previous to this shortage they had been reasonable, often very cheap. The long continued bad weather and consequent shortage has nearly knocked the conceit out of some of the buyers. For a long time, to drop into the parlance of the street, they had been having a "soft snap" and did not appreciate it, but now they are beginning to see the light. Prices on all roses show a tendency to advance if bad weather continues. Carnations seem a little more plentiful, but not enough as yet to affect the price, which is $4 to $6 per 100. The bulbous stock is selling well. There is no stability in the violet prices, but some special stock has sold at 50 and 60 cents per 100. Orchids remain plentiful and cheap. Wallflowers are something of a factor in this market, there being quite a steady demand for them. Lily of the valley has been rather scarce and some special stock has sold for $6 per 100.

January 24.—There is little change in the condition of the wholesale market, though there is a downward tendency in the ordinary stock of carnations and in the yellow narcissi. In addition to the trumpet majors, the Golden Spurs are now coming in and the supply may be expected to increase, but as we believe that many poor bulbs were distributed among the growers last fall, we will not expect them to be very cheap. While $5 per 100 is about the best for the average grade of carnations, there are fancies, such as Matchless and Cottage Maid, that bring $8. Rose prices are firm, and so are lily of the valley and lilies. Some very fine snapdragons and stocks are now on the market. There is no improvement in orchids.

NOTES.

John G. Carlaftes, well known in the retail trade of this city, has just opened a very fine store at Tremont avenue and the Southern boulevard, near 177th street, Bronx borough. The store is in a fine location and two large show windows make it very attractive. Its mirrors, ice box and other furnishings are all up to date, and it is well stocked with cut flowers and many fine plants.

We regret to learn that Miss Mabel Conkling, for several years bookkeeper for H. E. Froment, has been compelled to resign her position (temporarily at least), on account of ill health. Miss Conkling was popular with the patrons of the store and we hope she will soon be restored to health. She has been succeeded by E. G. Brower.

There was a meeting of the New York Florist Club's premium committee at Secretary Young's office, January 18. There was a full attendance and encouraging reports were made, and it now appears that the committee will succeed in raising a substantial sum for premiums for the spring show.

The annual entertainment and ball of the Greek-American Florists' Association will be held in the Terrace Garden, 58th street, near Lexington avenue, on the evening of February 24. As the Greek-Americans always stage an excellent entertainment at a very reasonable price they deserve patronage.

T. E. Langton, 196 Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn, one of the oldest retailers of that section, has been suffering from blood poisoning in one of his hands and the trouble seems very stubborn. As a consequence he has given up business and offers his store for rent.

Nicholas Flessas, 1430 Amsterdam avenue, has been quite busy with funeral work. This store is made quite attractive with hanging baskets of ferns and other plants. Mrs. Flessas takes an active part in the management of the store.

Simon Hefeale and wife, 3361 Third avenue, are the oldest florists in Bronx borough, having been there over 50 years, but both of them are yet active in the business. They have, however, good children and grandchildren to help them out.

Edwin Anker, of Traendly & Schenck's staff, and Miss Elizabeth Beppler were married January 19. It was a church wedding, and there were appropriate decorations; also a large number of friends to witness the interesting event.

W. J. Boyd, greenhouse manager for Mrs. D. Y. Mellis, Snyder avenue, near Holy Cross cemetery, Brooklyn, has been visiting his old home, Rochester, N. Y. The stock at this range looks fine, many bedding plants being noteworthy.

A very attractive feature of Richard Weber's department store, 413-419 East Tremont avenue, is the floral department, Charles L. Bartels, proprietor. He has good business, having many decorations for the "movie" artists.

Although there is a general scarcity of roses there are some ranges that are exceptions. L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., during the past week sent about 40 boxes per day to H. E. Froment, 148 West 28th street.

Eugene Dailledouze is attending the carnation convention at St. Louis. In the meantime he has fine crops of roses, carnations, mignonette and other stock coming on. Paul and Henry Dailledouze are at Camden, S. C.

Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., visited this city January 20 and went on to Mt. Kisco, N. Y., where he acted as toastmaster at the annual dinner of the Mt. Kisco florists and gardeners.

Herman Weiss, recently with D. C. Arnold & Co., has opened up in the wholesale business at 106 West 28th street, with a good stock of carnations, narcissi and other flowers.

Adam Trepel, who manages his brother, C. C. Trepel's, 28th street store, has been quite ill with the gripe, but was able to visit the store January 22.

DEMAND FIRM WITH PRICES HIGH.

Business has held up well during the past week notwithstanding the fact that prices are high. Roses hold firm, but carnations, jonquils, narcissi, sweet peas and tulips are within the reach of all who want them. Easter lilies are quoted at from $15 to $18 per 100. Orchids are plentiful, as are gardenias.

NOTES.

J. H. Small & Sons recently had one of the most elaborate decorations that this city has seen for many years. The entire Pan-American building was decorated in honor of the president, American Beauty roses and orchids being used in profusion. Many of the guests said the arrangement was the finest they had ever seen.

Jonquils are plentiful at the Leo Niessen Co.'s establishment. Extra fine narcissi are also seen here. We regret to see Manager Snell walking with a cane on account of foot trouble.

Joseph Merritt, the fern and dahlia specialist, has been on the sick list for the past few weeks with the gripe.

Geo. Lavelle is cutting some fine Spencer sweet peas in addition to calendulas and snapdragons.

Buffalo.

COLD WAVE AND SUPPLY SHORTENS.

Buffalo's winter last week was just what we were looking for and it arrived O. K. They say the better the day the better the deed, and it started on Sunday, and by Monday we had everything coming our way from above, with the temperature hugging the zero mark like a hobo around a stove in a flag shanty. By Friday it moderated but no sunshine—just rain. As we had been without rain for about a week it seemed unusual. The weather began to clear Saturday, January 22, and at this writing, January 24, bright sunshine has continued all day. Bulbous stock came in quite plentiful, tulips and hyacinths in pot plants and cut flowers being seen but there are not enough to supply the demand. Roses of all varieties are scarce and only fair in quality. American Beauties are almost entirely off crop. Carnations are still scarce but show some improvement. Sweet peas, mignonette, freesias and violets are to be seen. There is no scarcity in the supply of the last named.

NOTES.

Orleans county has a very pretty town by the name of Medina, which is looking for a city charter, but its hopes are shattered. Wm. Ehman, Jr., who with his father comprise the firm of Wm. Ehman & Son, of Corfu, journeyed to Medina last week and stole Miss Norma Snyder's heart and took her to Corfu, making Medina's population minus by one. Mr. Ehman is a member of the florists' club and the congratulations of that organization are added to those of a host of friends that wish the couple much happiness.

The growers in this vicinity had a hard time of it during the recent cold wave. Jerry Brookins, of Orchard Park, N. Y., had one large house that he found it impossible to keep the steam in, due to a shortage of gas. The heating equipment in the other houses was taxed to its full capacity and he and his night men were constantly on the job.

The only one of the local trade that can furnish lilies so all comers can have a few is L. H. Neubeck. He works his plants hard in order to try and accommodate all.

David Scott, of Corfu, N. Y., will be cutting a fine lot of stock from now on. He never has any difficulty in disposing of his flowers for they are always in demand.

The local delegation to the American Carnation Society's meeting and exhibition at St. Louis, Mo., this week was about a dozen strong.

S. J. Rebstock has opened a flower store on Grant street. This should prove a good location and we trust "Steve" will find it so.

Had stock on the market been as plentiful last week as the bulb agents every one would have been entirely satisfied.

The death of one of the members of a prominent German family resulted in a lot of funeral work for H. Keitsch & Sons.

W. Gulliksen, 130 Summit avenue, has been very busy with funeral work. Though he grows quite a lot of stock at his Secaucus, N. J., range, he is a constant buyer in the New York market, which shows that he does business.

Joseph Bauman has given up his retail store, 308 Summit avenue, and has joined his father, Henry Bauman, who is a grower of ferns. He has erected a neat store at the range and will also do a retail business.

The greenhouses of Emil Leuly, formerly a fern grower, but who has gone out of business, are being wrecked and the material removed. It is expected that the land will be sold for residence or business houses.

The Rosery Flower Shop is about to open another good retail store at 23 Summit avenue. It is well located and should be successful.

John Tschupp has a great stock of geraniums coming on. He is also cutting fine narcissi.

Burpee's Seeds Grow

Burpee-Quality Seeds Help Solve the Market Problem

It is our pleasure to record a greatly improved market condition, and we confidently predict that 1916 will prove a most prosperous season for the Market Grower.

Many causes contributed to the unsatisfactory vegetable market of 1915, and it is also true that these same causes created a most profitable market for Staples, such as Wheat, Corn, Oats, etc.

During 1915 we attended many meetings where market growers gathered to formulate plans to overcome the then prevailing unfavorable conditions. Much good resulted from these conventions, as they have proved beyond question that inferior produce in large quantities, dumped without thought of quality or condition, has done more to demoralize the markets than any other factor.

The discussions at these meetings have brought the invariable conclusion that Quality Produce did sell—and sell well—at the highest price obtainable.

Quality Produce can no more be the harvest of inferior seed than high-bred cattle can be the product of inferior or diseased stock.

Burpee's Seeds are known the world over as the American Standard of Excellence. When you buy Burpee's Seeds the element of doubt is removed so far as is possible by human care. A careful canvass of our Market Grower friends has brought this answer: "Yes, we certainly grew first-class crops from Burpee's Seeds."

The conclusion is inevitable: Burpee's Seeds grow Quality Produce, and Quality Produce brought good prices. Burpee's Seeds help solve the market problem.

Did you use Burpee's Seeds in 1915? If not, we earnestly solicit your orders for 1916. The profit is mutual.

Burpee's Annual for 1916, our complete retail catalog of 182 pages, has already been mailed. If you have failed to receive it, please write us at once and a duplicate copy will be forwarded.

Sincerely yours,

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Boigiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20-22, 1916.

ONIONS for eating at Chicago are quoted at $2.50 to $3 per 100 pounds.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The Harvey Seed Co. has filed plans for a warehouse to cost $2,300.

LYNN, MASS.—Jas. J. H. Gregory & Son, of Marblehead, now have a branch seed store here.

CLEVELAND, O.—The premises and stock of Wood & Co. were damaged by fire and water January 19. The loss is covered by insurance.

WACO, TEX.—The Mel L. Webster Co. and the Park Seed Co. were the heaviest losers in a fire that caused $18,000 damage, January 11.

A BANKRUPT sale of all the stock, fixtures, real estate, good will book accounts and all other personal property of the Griswold Seed Co., Lincoln, Neb., is scheduled for January 29.

THERE is said to be a movement toward the selection of Chicago permanently as the place of the annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association on account of its central location.

CHAS. R. KIMBERLIN, of Santa Clara, Calif., passed through Chicago, west-bound, January 22. He says 12 inches of rain instead of four inches does not look favorable for onion and carrot seed. Onion bulbs, whose roots decay now because of excess moisture, may root again if dry weather follows soon. Australian Brown and Yellow Globe sorts have been good sellers this season.

SENATOR ACKERSON has filed in the New Jersey senate a bill (S. 11) to regulate the sale of agricultural seeds and to provide standards of purity and germination. This is the old Iowa type of seed bill, discarded for the label law of more recent seed legislation. The bill affects all classes of seeds and is highly objectionable to the seed trade and of little protective value to purchasers of seeds.

VISITED CHICAGO: J. S. Michael, of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia.; J. W. Edmundson, of the California Seed Growers' Association, San Jose, Calif.; C. R. Kimberlin, of the Kimberlin Seed Co., Santa Clara, Calif.; L. M. King, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; Thomas W. Chisholm, representing the Braslan Seed Growers' Co., San Jose, Calif.; O. H. Drew, Los Angeles, Calif.

THE Western Seed & Irrigation Co., Fremont, Neb., writing one of its correspondents, says: "We feel that the winter shelled corn will not keep and the probabilities are that cash handlers will buy from hand to mouth on account of the keeping qualities of winter shelled corn. On the other hand the large crop in the south will be pretty well taken care of by February 15 or the first of March, as it will not keep in the warm southern climate and the damage from weevil."

Weights and Measures Bill.

There was a hearing before the house committee on coinage, weights and measures at Washington, January 20, to consider Congressman Dillon's bill (H. R. 150) relative to establishing standard weights of commodities, including peas, beans, etc. Curtis Nye Smith and a number of others attended in the interest of the seed trade.

The object of this bill, as stated by Mr. Dillon, was for congress to exercise its constitutional right to establish standard weights per bushel for certain commodities, including various kinds of seeds. At present there is such a variation of these standards in the several state laws that both the buyer and seller engaged in interstate transactions are hopelessly confused. If congress passes this bill all standards of state laws on the subject will be abolished, and a federal uniform standard established.

The seedsmen are not opposed to clearing up this conflict of laws. Indeed, they welcome it. Their objections were made to the inaccuracies of the bill. For example, all peas are to be sold at 60 pounds per bushel, whereas wrinkled peas are universally bought and sold at 56 pounds; all beans at 60 pounds per bushel, whereas some varieties are sold at 57 pounds, etc. Amendments were offered the committee to correct these mistakes of the bill, doubtless unintentional, and due to the failure of the author of the bill to appreciate the many kinds of seeds introduced to commerce since the enactment of these ancient state laws.

Seed Corn Warning Issued.

A warning was issued January 19 to the farmers of the country by the United States department of agriculture regarding the selection of seed corn. The department declared that the testing of seed corn for germination was an absolute necessity this year in many sections. In a number of districts the last corn crop from which seed for the coming planting will be taken was late in maturing or so moist when harvested as to call for special precautions. The department said in its notice of warning:

"If a farmer finds his seed is bad he should take steps at once to meet the difficulty. The purchase of seed should not be delayed till spring, especially when so much corn in various sections has been damaged. The farmer should secure his seed from well known sources, buy it upon a germinating guaranty basis and get his seed or typical samples early enough to make his own germinating tests.

"It is probable this year that many farmers who have not followed the wise practice of selecting enough special seed from good crops to last them in an emergency for two or three years, will have to buy seed. In buying seed farmers should try to secure corn of varieties known to prosper in their section. The safest seed would be that carefully selected from good corn grown in the immediate neighborhood, but, at any rate, effort should be made to obtain seed grown in districts where climate, soil and farming conditions in general are similar to those at home.

"If the farmer happens to have a stock of seed left over from the 1914 crop, and doubts the seed saved from his 1915 crop, he would do well to test the older seed also, and then use whichever shows the greater vitality. Seed corn if properly cared for will retain its vitality for several years. Many farmers, knowing this, always select an extra amount of seed from any unusually good harvest."

Potato Stocks on Hand January 1.

Unusually small stocks of potatoes were held on January 1 in the important potato-producing states, according to reports of correspondents of the bureau of crop estimates. This is the reverse of conditions a year ago. Then, stocks were unusually large and southern potato growers who compete in the spring months with stocks carried over in the northern states were warned to expect the low prices which prevailed last spring. Supplies on hand January 1, 1916, for market, are estimated to be about 38 per cent smaller than a year ago, 15 per cent smaller than two years ago, 30 per cent smaller than three years ago, but 16 per cent larger than four years ago. These figures indicate that southern growers need not fear a burdensome competition with northern stocks of potatoes this spring. The United States seldom imports or exports relatively a large quantity of potatoes. Therefore, the European war has no material direct influence upon the potato market of the United States.

California Lima Beans for Export.

California produced 2,775,000 sacks (80 pounds each) of dry edible beans last year. Over half the yield—1,500,000 sacks in 1914—consists of limas, which are in demand not only in the United States, but for export. A Ventura report says bean associations there have recently received inquiries in regard to limas from Australia and Japan, two new consumers. Lima-bean growers are forming co-operative sales organizations this season throughout California. Several in Ventura county have entered into an agreement to sell their 67,000 sacks (80 pounds each), while another Ventura organization has been formed to dispose of 50,000 bags. Some of the associations are building warehouses and cleaning plants, one at Garden Grove costing $4,000.

President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky.,

Next annual convention will be held September, 1916.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Howard W. Selby of this city has been elected president of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association for the ensuing year. J. R. Bechtel of State College is the newly elected secretary.

READING, PA.—The second annual convention of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers' Association was held here January 18 in conjunction with the fifty-seventh annual meeting of the Pennsylvania State Horticultural Association.

CLEVELAND, O.—Martin L. Reutenik, president of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, and for a number of years mayor of Brooklyn Heights, a suburb of this city, has been elected president of the Lincoln Savings and Banking Co.

Vegetable Show at Detroit.

The first annual exhibit of vegetables by the Detroit Growers' Association, held in Goeschel's hall, 968 Gratiot avenue, was attended January 22 by more than 175 persons. There were 150 different collections of vegetables in the exhibit, and Detroit amateur gardeners found a wealth of information systematized for them.

Addresses were delivered by Prof. C. W. Wait, secretary of extension work of Michigan Agricultural College; Prof. E. D. Whelan, of M. A. C., and A. M. Brown, of Grand Rapids. Mr. Brown urged closer co-operation of the growers with the farmers, and Prof. Whelan spoke on methods of conserving and protecting vegetable crops. Prof. Wait told of the dependence of the growers on close relationship with one another in promulgating instructive information for the benefit of all. The members of the association held a round table discussion.

Parcel Post Marketing.

Farmers' Bulletin No. 703, recently issued by the United States department of agriculture, contains valuable information and suggestions for persons desiring to buy or sell produce by parcel post. The increased cost of living has caused many persons to look to securing produce by parcel post as a means of relief, and some have been disappointed because of unsatisfactory results arising from various causes. Physically the transportation of practically all kinds of produce is a possibility; economically it is frequently not justifiable. A thorough study of the possibility of marketing farm products by parcel post is being conducted by the department of agriculture with the intention of publishing the results in a series of bulletins, each dealing with a specific phase of the question. The first of these publications, "Shipping Eggs by Parcel Post," was issued as Farmers' Bulletin 594. The present bulletin contains general information which has been accumulated in the course of these investigations and which should be of use to those producers and consumers who are interested in the more general phases of the subject.

Persons desiring to market by parcel post should acquaint themselves with the time at which mails are dispatched from their post offices so that they may regulate the preparation and mailing of parcels accordingly. On rural delivery routes this suggestion can not always be followed. In some cases certain patrons can intercept the carrier, on his return trip, at no great distance from their homes, while others may find it convenient to take the weekly shipment direct to the post office themselves when going to town on their weekly shopping trip. Where it is possible, perishable shipments should be made so as to reach destination for delivery during ordinary delivery hours. Postmasters will give information as to the postal requirements for mailing the various kinds of produce.

Parcels containing perishable articles must be marked "Perishable"; eggs must be marked "Eggs"; any parcel containing glass must be marked "Fragile." Articles likely to spoil within the time reasonably required for transportation and delivery are not accepted for mailing. If desired, a receipt can be secured from any postmaster, acknowledging the mailing of a parcel, on the payment of 1 cent. For 3 cents a parcel may be insured against loss if not valued at over $5.

The list of fruits, vegetables, and other products treated in this bulletin is not exhaustive, but probably covers those most likely to be handled by parcel post.

Eastern Nursery Stock Quarantine Proposed

In order to protect the white pine forests of the country from the disease known as the white pine blister rust, it is proposed to place a federal quarantine on shipments of five-leaved pines and cultivated black currants from several eastern states. A public hearing on this question will be held by the federal horticultural board at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, February 4, at 10 a. m. The states which it is proposed to quarantine on this account are New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York and Pennsylvania.

Dwarf Apple Not Commercially Promising

After 10 years' experience in different parts of the state, the New York agricultural experiment station (Geneva, N. Y.) in Bulletin No. 406, gives several reasons why dwarf apples are not considered commercially promising. To test the practicability of such dwarf trees, the station set three orchards of dwarfs, half-dwarfs and standards intermingled, in three localities in the state.

The objections are many: High first cost, since dwarf trees usually cost more per tree than standards and it requires from four to nine times as many trees for the same area; uncertainty of securing the desired dwarfness, since much confusion exists in dwarfing stocks; liability of dwarf trees to winter injury or winter killing, to breaking off at the union or to overturning by winds; extra labor to maintain dwarfness by removal of scion roots and to prevent weakening by suckers; and troubles due to shallow-rooting habit, such as susceptibility to drought, difficulty in giving thorough cultivation and root injuries in cultivating.

Before considering dwarf apples for anything more than home-ground or garden use, the fruitgrower should study this bulletin with care. A request and your name on a post card addressed to the station will secure a copy.

Prairie Spirit in Landscape Gardening.

This is the title of a new publication issued by the Department of Horticulture, University of Illinois, Urbana, and describes more than $6,000,000 worth of work done by landscape gardeners in the prairie style of landscape gardening since 1901. It is an extra large 36-page circular by Wilhelm Miller, and while the publication is too expensive for unlimited free distribution it will be sent free upon request to Illinoisans who will do some ornamental planting within a year. Copies cannot be sent to all citizens of other states, but those who wish may apply for same.

The park will be in a beautiful spot in the southwestern part of the city and will have a base ball grounds attached. Walks in the form of horseshoes among the handsome evergreen trees, some of which are more than 100 years old, will be a feature. An automobile driveway is also planned.

THIS is probably the best time of the year to take up the matter of new greenhouses, as well as additions to present ranges, and it is for this reason we suggest that you write us regarding your requirements.

Remember, we are greenhouse men as well as manufacturers and operate our own foundry, machine shop and wood mill, which have been designed, erected and equipped for the fabrication of greenhouse material.

If You Do Not Find What You Need in Our Ready Reference Department, Write Us About It.

Range of Greenhouses Furnished for Cook County, Illinois, at Oak Forest Infirmary. Peter Reinberg, President of the County Board.
Henry A. Zender, Superintendent of Public Service.

Invariably when we take a prospective customer into one of our new all steel greenhouses, an expression of pleasure and astonishment escapes him. "THAT CERTAINLY IS A DANDY HOUSE," he says.

It is the truth: the houses are properly designed according to engineering rules; they are strong, yet light and, best of all, they COST NO MORE than the old, so-called "iron frame" houses.

The best insurance policy on a greenhouse is strength and durability. The light question is important, but surely strength comes first.

Rest assured that when Cook County, Illinois, purchased the above pictured greenhouses from us, they investigated the "STRENGTH AND DURABILITY" question thoroughly.

Just put it up to us to convince you. Estimates and sketches free.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Sweet Peas.

A bed or bench of sweet peas sown at this time will produce a nice crop of flowers in spring when the winter blooming plants are nearly through flowering and the blooms beginning to grow small and before any outside can be had. The newer Spencers make splendid varieties to plant at this time, and while they will not bloom as early as the winter blooming varieties, yet will flower before the warm summer weather, and the beautifully formed flowers make a welcome change. Select a bench with plenty of head room, for these easily grow to a height of six or eight feet under favorable conditions. The seed can be sown six inches apart in rows, with about three feet between rows, and lightly covered. It is just as well to sow two or three seeds together and when they begin to grow, thin out to one plant. The beds must be watered sparingly until the plants are large enough to twine on the supports, for they damp off easily even when five or six inches high if overwatered. As soon as the tendrils on the vines appear provide some support for them to twine upon and keep the plants growing erect throughout their culture or crooked stems and worthless flowers will be the result. A cool house is far better for these plants than one having a warm temperature. Aphis is often troublesome in growing sweet peas and a spray is far better with these plants than fumigation.

Chrysanthemum Stock.

This is the time to look over the chrysanthemum stock to see how the cuttings are breaking. There may be some varieties that are not throwing as many cuttings as they should or some that are not in good health and there are yet some growers that have stock plants for sale, so where from either cause it looks as if the supply might not be sufficient, new stock should be purchased at once. Where the stock plants are in good health but there are not enough to furnish the requisite number of cuttings, the early cuttings may be taken and rooted and these grown in flats until it is time to propagate the plants for blooming, and cuttings made from these. There are also some varieties of which good cuttings can be procured at this time, but after the first growths are removed do not break satisfactorily. These should surely be taken now and grown on in flats. Notable as one of this class is Miss Virginia Poehlmann, and some varieties, such as President Roosevelt, are short-jointed and slow in their growth, so early cuttings are preferred. It is a good time now to look the stock over and be sure of good plants and enough of them for another season.

Stocks.

The demand for flowers at Memorial day is in many cases for bunches or sprays to lay upon the graves of the departed relatives and friends, and as much show as can be made is often the object, therefore the grower must have a quantity of what are called the cheaper flowers and stocks are one of the best at this time, for they are large and prominent, make up well in bouquets or sprays, and are quickly and easily grown. The seed should be sown by February 1 to be sure to have them in flower by the end of May. The seed germinates quickly and as soon as large enough should be potted. Many grow them in flats but to have them early, pot culture is better, for they do not receive such a severe shock when transplanted in the benches. The planting in the benches should be done in the month of March and the plants can be grown in two ways, to the single spike which will produce a much larger, handsome bloom, or to eight or ten lateral spikes. The former method allows of planting from three to four inches apart, while in the latter the plants should be set eight to nine inches each way. Growing the latter way, that is to eight or ten spikes, is the culture most often practiced, and in order to cause the plant to branch, as soon as the terminal flower forms it is rubbed out, and the laterals will grow at once. To have these laterals in bloom for Memorial day the terminal bud should show by the last of April, which will allow about four weeks for the growth of the laterals and the finishing of the bloom. Constant fumigation will be necessary to keep the plants clean of aphids, which very rapidly accumulate on the succulent growth unless kept in check.

Hydrangeas.

The plants of hydrangeas that are to be in bloom for Easter should be started at once, for it is much better to grow them along slowly than to wait and bring them in later and force them much harder. This will give the plants more natural conditions and they will finish with shorter-jointed growths, being not nearly so tall, and well furnished with large heavy foliage completely covering the stems. The plants started at this time should be first placed in a greenhouse having a night temperature of 40 to 45 degrees and if the buds and stems look very dry, frequent syringings of the branches will quickly make the buds fill up. After the first leaves are fully formed the plants can be moved into a warmer house and they should come along nicely for Easter—a house with carnation temperature should bring them in bloom by that time, but if the buds are not well set early in March a still warmer temperature will be required. If grown in a warm temperature keep a sharp lookout for red spiders, which gather on the blooms and quickly ruin them.

Hybrid Roses.

Well grown plants of hybrid perpetual roses are always good property at Easter and they are very easily brought into bloom when the date of that festival is in April. Pot grown stock is surer of the best results, but dormant stock of many varieties will produce nice plants if properly handled. The plants should be cut back to two eyes on each growth and started in a cool house, one with a night temperature of 40 to 45 degrees being preferred, from the first to the twentieth of January. Frequent syringings will swell the wood and cause the breaks to open evenly. When the buds form, the plants should be watered with liquid manure at least once a week. They will probably not have to be carried to a warmer house, but if it is found they are not going to be in bloom in time a little warmer temperature will hurry them along. There are a few varieties that make fine pot plants, those most generally known being Magna Charta, Mme. Gabriel Luizet and Frau Karl Druschki.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Boost Valentine's Day.

The importance of Christmas and Easter as floral holidays comes as second nature to the florist—he knows there will be a very large demand on these occasions and plans for it months ahead, so that when the weeks and weeks roll by and finally the eager buyers appear, everything is ready for them and a splendid business is the reward.

St. Valentine's Day Hamper.

St. Valentine's Day Corsage Bouquet.
Violets and Elgar Roses With Cupids on Ribbon.

While Valentine's day may never reach or become as important a factor to the florist as Christmas or Easter, it should receive very serious consideration. Enterprising, up to date men are impressed with its importance, but to most retailers it is just a busy day. Sentiment is the key note of this "Lovers' day. Nothing carries sentiment, or is so appropriate for the purpose, as flowers. So with this fact before them the trade should get together and boost the business of this day and make it one of the greatest floral holidays. There are many acknowledged good things which are passed by unnoticed, because attention is not called to them. Let this not be the case with Valentine's day this year. Make a noise about it; arrange to have the stock, then advertise; wide awake members of the trade in a community should get together and use papers collectively or if not advertise individually; circularize your trade; make your windows do double duty; be prepared for a large trade and it will come to you.

The accompanying illustrations are of a few arrangements appropriate to the day. The heart-shaped basket made quite a hit last season when nicely filled and decorated with arrows, ribbons, heart-shaped motto cards and cupids. There is no question but it belongs to the day. The heart-shaped hamper is also very appropriate, but no illustration can do it justice, as it must be seen on all sides to get the proper effect. The small, outline hearts, made of red Japanese frieze, trimmed with silvered burrs and ruscus, red ribbon, with heart cupids, is a very pretty novelty, suitable for the windows of the limousine or for milady's bureau or writing desk. When the hearts are gilt or silvered, they are decorated with natural flowers and cupid ribbons and make a pretty valentine that can be mailed in an appropriate box to carry quite a distance.

The corsage bouquet of violets, sweet peas, miniature roses, orchids, lily of the valley, pansies, etc., should all have the valentine touch, with the appropriate cupid or heart-shaped motto cards attached to the ribbons. The special heart-shaped box for the delivery of the corsage is very necessary.

These are but a few of the many forms and arrangements that will be found appropriate and effective. Plants in flower make acceptable valentines when in fancy jars or pot covers or nicely papered with crepe or white proper with an inside layer the color of the flower, and tied with a "valentined" ribbon.

To make a success of Valentine's day, the florist must believe in it; he must be awake to its importance; he must be prepared with a good stock of cut-flowers and accessories and full of enthusiasm for everything that will tend to make it one of the important floral days of the year. K.

Niagara Preservation Difficulties.

The Legislative Water Power Investigating Committee, which just now is looking into the possibilities of developing 2,000,000 more horse power of electric energy at Niagara Falls, had a stormy session at the Hotel Biltmore December 22. J. Horace McFarland of Harrisburg, Pa., president of the American Civic Association, appeared as a witness and vigorously opposed the plan on the ground that it would involve the destruction of all the scenic beauty of the falls.

After a series of tilts with Senator George F. Thompson of Niagara, chairman of the committee, Mr. McFarland openly charged that Senator Thompson and the committee were not after facts, but were looking for testimony which could be distorted into an excuse for a development that would be of vast local importance to the city of Niagara Falls at the expense of the state and nation.

Mr. McFarland in turn was questioned sharply regarding his own interest and the interest of the American Civic Association in the preservation of the scenery at Niagara. In the course of this examination members of the committee more than suggested that the association was composed of, and maintained by, persons who were chiefly interested in leaving the present power monopoly at Niagara Falls undisturbed by competition.

"You are planning to kill a goose that has been laying golden eggs for the state of New York," said Mr. McFarland after he had filed his formal protests against the plan to divert more of Niagara's water for power purposes. "The scenic beauty of Niagara is worth $25,000,000 a year to this State in the money spent by tourists from all parts of the world, who come to view the glory of the falls. Niagara as a spectacle will produce more revenue than it possibly could as a producer of power. There is available at the outside 1,000,000 additional horse power, which would mean a gross revenue of $12,500,000 a year. You will not contest that statement."

"I will, absolutely," retorted Senator Thompson. "There is five times that amount of power available. The value of the power that should be developed from Niagara is nearer $1,000,000,000."

"You are not after facts. You are here to create testimony which can be utilized as a basis for a development that will benefit Niagara Falls locally," said the witness angrily after Senator Thompson had shut him off from making a statement that he desired to make.

Mr. McFarland insisted that to develop 2,000,000 horse power more at Niagara it would be necessary to divert 105,000 cubic feet a second, or half the complete volume of water which at present is running over the crest of the ledge.

"If you do that there will be no American falls left," said the witness hotly. "And besides, the beauty of the falls is not in the height of the sheer drop, it is in the volume of water. More than half of all the fresh water in the entire world is tumbling down that precipice."

"I will contest that statement," said Senator Thompson, and President McFarland replied that with less than four per cent of the total volume of water in the cataracts at Niagara running through the channel on the American side, it was clear that diverting one-half of that volume would dry up the American falls. Senator Thompson said he would not permit any such statement to go on the record.

"Ah, you are afraid!" cried the witness as he was interrupted and called to order brusquely by Senator Thompson.

"I am chairman of the committee," the Senator said. "I am not going to put on the record testimony manufactured in the offices of certain power companies who are not willing to base their conclusions on real facts. You are supposed to be an expert on scenery, but not along the lines of the testimony you are attempting to give now."

"Then I want to be put on record as refusing to answer any further fool questions—especially as the chairman is attempting to dictate the answers."

You can't take half the water out of Niagara Falls without drying up the American falls. They are partly dry now," said the witness, with acerbity.

"Well," replied Senator Thompson, in a similar tone, "Niagara Falls is Exhibit A in this inquiry and will always be on tap to prove or disprove your assertions."

President McFarland said that, when he visited the Falls about five or six weeks ago, he had found the scenery less impressive than it had been on his earlier visits. He was asked to give an estimate in figures to define the shrinkage in the volume of water and the decline in scenic beauty.

"You cannot put your love for your wife into figures," said Mr. McFarland, archly. "I found the Bridal Veil considerably thinner than it had been on former visits. I found dry spots on the crest of the American falls. From 300 to 500 feet was so dry that you could have walked over it. Fifty-two thousand cubic feet per second are diverted now—almost 25 per cent of the total volume that once flowed over the ledges. You get an idea of the volume diverted when you stand on the Iron Bridge and watch, below, the exhaust from the power plants on either side. It would be an insult to your intelligence to suggest that all that water could be taken out without reducing the scenic beauty of Niagara."

The witness said that Canada had "four-flushed" the United States when the treaty was made and that the Province of Ontario was the chief beneficiary from what the witness insisted on calling "the wanton destruction of Niagara."

"You cannot have Niagara as a scenic spectacle and as a producer of power at the same time," Mr. McFarland said.

It was Assemblyman Simon P. Quick of Broome county who brought the disinterestedness of Mr. McFarland and of the American Civic Association into question.

"If you are going to charge me with ulterior motives get right to it," said the witness. Then he told how the American Civic Association, now composed of 2,500 members, had been financed out of his own purse, and how the association had ended with being $4,000 in his debt. And he said that was before Niagara power projects became a matter of contention. The witness admitted he had been active in aid of the Burton bill, enacted by congress in 1906, which members of the committee insisted was a "grab" measure in favor of monopolistic power concerns at Niagara Falls.

"We would like to have you furnish the committee with a list of your members," said Vice Chairman William S. Coffey of the committee. "We have heard rumors up-state that a great many of your members were interested in power companies which were anxious to keep competition away from Niagara."

"I have been treated as a horse thief and a liar," retorted Mr. McFarland, with a show of anger. "You have imputed all sorts of yellow motives to me. All the rumors you have heard are the sheerest babble and nonsense, and I challenge you to disclose their source."

"Well, we are going to the bottom of your deep interest in this matter," shouted Assemblyman Quick as a parting shot.

Under the treaty, which since has expired, 56,000 cubic feet per second could have been diverted from Niagara. About 52,000 cubic feet have actually been diverted. It has been testified by experts before the committee that the crest of the falls is about five-eighths of an inch below its earlier level as a result of the volume diverted at present.

On this basis fully 32,000 cubic feet more, it is estimated, could be taken out and the crest would be lowered only an inch. The water on the crest is said to be some eighteen feet deep at the Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side and about eighteen inches on the American side.—New York Times, December 23.

American Carnation Society Exhibition.

NOTES ON NOVELTIES.

The most notable feature of the twenty-fifth annual exhibition of the American Carnation Society, held at St. Louis, Mo., January 26-27, was the large number of new seedlings shown—not since the society held its exhibition in Pittsburgh in 1910 have so many seedlings of such high quality been displayed.

F. Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind., had the largest number of seedlings on exhibition, some of them being remarkable improvements over existing standard varieties of the same color. Rosalia, in color and the general appearance of the flower is a greatly improved Rosette; it has fine stem, and the vase of blooms which won first in the class of 100 dark pink was one of the best exhibits at the show. Seedling No. 113-11 has the makeup of being a good commercial crimson; the flower is not of great size, but is well formed and is carried erect on stiff stems, and the vase of 100 blooms made a fine showing. Old Gold, as the name implies, is a deep golden yellow with crimson markings. It is a very showy fancy variety of good form and fine stem. Seedling No. 125 (11), flesh pink, looks to be one of Dorner's best achievements, a wonder in size, form and substance. It is as large as Pink Sensation, but with a fuller center and looks in every way to be one of the coming big varieties. Seedling No. 148-09, also a flesh pink, shading to salmon, is another beauty of fine form, good substance and strong, stiff stem. Besides the foregoing seedlings, F. Dorner & Sons Co. exhibited a vase of 100 blooms of the variety, Nancy, the light pink novelty which they are disseminating this year. It was awarded the Dorner Memorial Medal and the Fred Burki special premium for the vase of carnations holding in best condition to the end of the exhibition—a remarkable record.

Seedling No. 16 (12), crimson of fine form, large size, stiff stem—a very promising crimson variety—was exhibited by S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass. His exhibits of standard varieties are also worthy of special mention, all of his blooms averaging a very high grade of quality, especially his vases of Rosette, Good Cheer, Beacon, Yellow Prince and Pink Sensation.

Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., was awarded the A. C. S. gold medal for Crystal White, a wonderful white carnation. It has size, stiff, strong stem, pure white color and lots of substance and is fine in form. It is altogether a magnificent variety and scored 90 points. Cottage Maid, color, flesh pink, was another fine variety staged by the Cottage Gardens Co. The vase of 100 blooms of this variety was a big attraction, both for the florists and the visiting public. First prize vases of Matchless and Mrs. C. W. Ward were other fine exhibits from the Cottage Gardens Co.

Seedling No. 360, deep pink, shown by A. Roper, Tewksbury, Mass., is on the order of Good Cheer, but deeper in color; a very striking variety with strong, stiff stems. He also had vases of fine blooms of Alice Roper and Commonwealth, two good light pink varieties.

Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, again won the S. A. F. silver medal with their premier red carnation, Belle Washburn, also the A. C. S. silver medal with the same variety. This fine carnation has won the favor of the growers and will be planted in large numbers for next season. The cuttings are having a big sale.

Arawana is a crimson variety of good form, color, size and substance, with long stiff stems. It was exhibited by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., and is to be sent out in 1917.

Laura Weber, color of Enchantress Supreme, was awarded the S. A. F. bronze medal. It is a big, bold flower of fine form and color and carried on stiff stems. This variety, together with Peace, a large white of irregular form, was exhibited by Guttman & Raynor, Inc., New York.

Seedling No. 1 (12) exhibited by the floricultural department, University of Illinois, Urbana, was one of the big attractions of the exhibition. It is a big, bold, light pink variety of fine form, good calyx and lots of substance. A nice feature of this exhibit was the half open buds exhibited with the flowers.

The variety, Nebraska, was not shown in the general competition, but a fine display was made of it arranged as a table decoration by one of the local retail florists.

Aviator, the commercial red, and Superb, a fine, salmon pink variety, was exhibited by J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill. Aviator is one of the brightest red or scarlet carnations, and Superb is a fine formed light pink carried on long stiff stems.

Anton Then's red seedling, No. 701, suffered in comparison to the vase he exhibited at the Chicago fall show. It was in great shape there and we expect to see it so again.

Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, Morgan Park, Chicago, won first in the class of 100 red or scarlet with seedling No. 24-12-A. A fine commercial red that has been a steady producer during November, December and January when the prices have been high. Seedling No. 1-12-B, deep pink; Seedling No. 39-12-A, deep pink; Seedling No. 31-12-A, crimson, and Seedling No. 140-09-A were other good ones on exhibition from Mount Greenwood.

The E. G. Hill Company, Richmond, Ind., exhibited Alice Coombs, Matchless, Good Cheer, Champion, Mrs. C.

W. Ward and Pocahontas in fine shape. This firm also had a fine display of the yellow rose, Tipperary, and Tip Top or Baby Doll, the miniature rose.

Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., set their crimson variety Pocahontas up another notch or two; their vase of 100 blooms was one of the best exhibits of this color the writer has ever seen.

The variety Enchantress was shown in better shape at this exhibition than it has been at the last two or three A. C. S. shows; the 50 blooms shown by the Alton Floral Co., Alton, Ill., and those by the M. F. Widmer Floral Co., Highland, Ill., were very fine and worthy of special mention.

Miss Theo, a rose pink variety, appears to be a very promising commercial variety. It has good color, form, calyx and stem. It was shown by Littlefield & Wyman, North Abington, Mass.

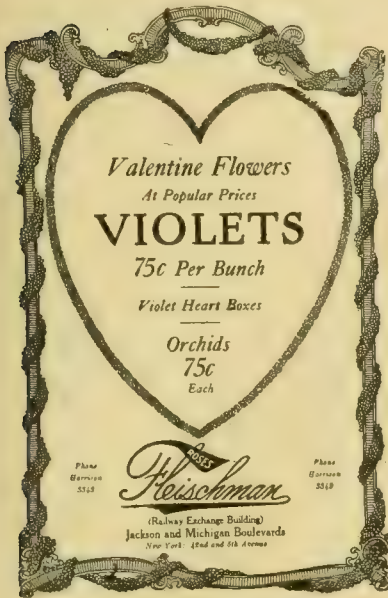

When we come to sum up the varieties generally on exhibition, we note the falling away of the varieties Pink Delight, Gloriosa, Rose Pink Enchantress, Victory, The Herald, Philadelphia, Rosette and all of the Lawson family, and the prominent varieties we find to be Mrs. C. W. Ward, White Wonder, Matchless, Good Cheer, Pocahontas, Champion, White Enchantress, Enchantress Supreme, Enchantress, Alice, Benora and Yellow Prince.

The miscellaneous displays at this exhibition did not form so prominent a part as in other years, but there were some that were worthy of special mention. W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., staged some grand flowers of cattleyas; also samples of Anthericum Mandianum, Dracaena Rothianum, Selaginella Mandianum and Polypodium Mandianum. J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati, Ohio, had their usual fine display of begonias and pandanus. Baartman & Koning, Sassenheim, Holland, staged a pink tulip, named, Prosperity, a fine color for cut flower trade. Fred H. Lemon & Co., Richmond, Ind., staged Primula malacoides rosea, a very fine color of this variety of primulas. The collection of colored freesias from Alois Frey, Crown Point, Ind., attracted much attention from the growers present.

St. Louis Banquet to Carnation Men.

The banquet was held in the Planters Hotel, Thursday evening, January 27, about 100 people being present. J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, president-elect of the American Carnation Society, acted as toastmaster and the principal speakers of the evening were George Asmus, Chicago, chairman of the National Flower Show committee; Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind., president, and W. J. Vesey, Jr., Ft. Wayne, vice-president elect of the American Carnation Society. Wm. R. Nicholson, of Boston, Mass., and R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex., vice-president of the Society of American Florists, also gave an interesting talk and the toastmaster then thanked the members of the St. Louis Florists' Club and all the other local people for their untiring efforts which had much to do with making the exhibition such a great success and the members' visit such a pleasant one. Owing to the late hour only the speakers mentioned above were called upon. The banquet was a delightful affair and there was an artistically arranged vase of carnations on each table. The orchestra rendered splendid music and all those present joined in singing several of the songs, starting off with America. Fred H. Lemon then presented the report of the committee on final resolutions.

FINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. President, your committee on final resolutions begs leave to report as follows:

We believe that we express the opinion of all of the visiting members of this society when we say that this convention is notable for the quiet efficiency with which all the arrangements have been carried out.

We thoroughly appreciate the efforts of the local committees in charge. We particularly wish to express our approval of the tireless activity of our fellow member, president-elect, J. F. Ammann. The visit to the wonderful Botanical Gardens is an experience long to be remembered. We wish to voice our unqualified approval of the arrangement which keeps all features of the convention in one thoroughly modern hotel. We have been impressed with the spirit of hospitality of the St. Louis florists and this same spirit has been reflected by the hotel management.

We desire to thank the exhibitors in competitive classes, especially those brave men from New England who are the backbone of this society.

We also appreciate the exhibits which have been made at this convention by florists not directly interested in the carnation. These exhibits help greatly in adding interest to the public. We desire to thank our efficient officers. We also wish to take occasion to approve of the arrangements which brought to us the experimentors from the Illinois State University. Work on this line is of very great practical value and we look forward to a continuation of these reports next year.

Again thanking the local members of our trade for their cordial hospitality.

Signed FRED H. LEMON,

Charles H. Totty's New Roses.

Though there are already a number of very good roses in the trade, new and good ones should continue to interest both the trade and the public. With the many varieties that we have, it is unnecessary to enlarge on the shortage that has been seriously felt throughout this winter, neither need any apology be offered for calling attention to new and promising varieties. There are few earthly things, roses included, that are perfect, and we look forward to the day when a better rose will be placed on the market than any that have yet been brought out. As the agent in this country for the productions of the famous Dicksons, Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., is one of the men, who aside from financial considerations, which however cannot be entirely ignored, is trying to bring the rose nearer to perfection.

Calling recently at the Totty range, we had an opportunity to observe a number of his newest productions, the rose, Cleveland, being a very important one. It will be recalled that this rose was named by popular vote at the great Cleveland flower show, held not long ago. It is very promising and fits the descriptions of it that have been written from time to time.

Prince Charming seems to be a rose that will become popular for bedding. It makes vigorous, branching growths, has very attractive foliage and is a free bloomer. The flowers are of medium size, the buds well formed and the color described as "deep reddish copper, with old gold base."

Nellie Parker is another rose that it seems should be popular. It is a vigorous grower, the foliage is attractive and the color of the flowers a "pale creamy white, with deeper cream center." This rose is considered by experts to be an exceptionally fine production.

Gorgeous, a Dickson rose, is said by the originator to be the "most striking rose in existence," and many will agree with him. Floral artists, who must be good judges of color, grow enthusiastic over it. This rose is a decided novelty.

The New York Tribune of January

30 had a page of fine illustrations of what it terms, "Advance styles for 1916 blooms." Prominent were Gorgeous and Ulster Gem, both of which will be sent out by Mr. Totty in May. The chrysanthemum, Mrs. Gibson, which the Tribune calls a "phenomenon", is also given a prominent place on the page, and there is a cluster of the new pompon, Nippon, which is very attractive. All these, and many others, may be found in his catalogue for 1916.

Rose grafting has been very successfully carried on at this range this season, there being now about 120,000 grafted plants. In addition to the new productions previously mentioned, there is a good stock of Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia and other popular roses, that are now well known to the trade. About 200,000 chrysanthemums have been propagated and potted off and the work is yet going on, and likewise the propagation of roses.

School Gardens.

Paper by Mrs. Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa., presented at the annual meeting of the Ladies' Society of American Florists, San Francisco, Calif., August 18, 1915.

A school garden has been defined as a plot or section of ground where children may be taught how to care for growing plants. This plot or section is not necessarily a part of the school, but may be in the form of the public garden or playground, or even in the home yard or garden. Frederick Froebel, the founder of the kindergarten, says, "It is of the utmost importance that children should acquire the habit of cultivating a plot of ground long before the school life begins. Nowhere as in the vegetable kingdom can his actions be so clearly traced by him, entering in as a link in the chain of cause and effect."

Children will take an active interest in anything which they can watch develop. The planting of seeds takes on a new mystery when the seed is "mine", and great is the joy when the first tiny green leaves appear. It is necessary that the child be taught that the proper care must be given to the little seedling as well as to the larger plant and that this care must be exercised continuously. What is more disappointing than to have a fine lot of plants in good condition, and by forgetting the necessary drink of water, to find them looking as if they were dead? Here is where the school garden steps in and the child is taught to till the ground, plant the seed, watch against enemies of all kinds, and to give the plants the proper amount of water and sunshine.

In many places, especially in large cities, there is not sufficient available space to give even a small plot to every one who applies, but in nearly every school yard there is a portion covered with grass. Here many lessons of responsibility, care of public property, etc., can be taught by allowing the children to look after this spot of green, keeping it free from paper and weeds and where there are flowers, keeping them in good growing condition. I know of no better place to teach a child "property rights" than right in the garden. If this lesson were impressed on a child from the time he is wanting to take or use everything in sight, regardless of ownership, when he comes where there are other children that have equal rights there will not be the constant harassing of others. In a garden in which each child or set of children, can have a plot, this cannot be too strongly emphasized, for what child though careful or careless, will not resent, and justly too, the injuring of his plants in any way?

If you members of the Ladies' Society of American Florists are living in a town in which you do not have school gardens, "Get out and push." Get the parent-teachers' association, the civic club, or any other club that is interested in child welfare, at work, and have these gardens. Too much cannot be said about the help which they give the children and the idle ground is made to "blossom like a rose" instead of producing the usual crop of weeds.

In my home town, Lancaster, Pa., the first garden was started by the principal of a public school, and she has practically reformed the neighborhood in which this school is situated. The school was built on the edge of a public dumping ground. A fine large building with an unusual amount of ground space. The teacher started by beautifying the lawn. The children became so enthusiastic, they got the fathers to hunt up the proper authorities and have the dump closed. At the back of the building some ground was procured and a tennis court and baseball diamond were laid out, for this teacher believes that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." The remainder was laid out in sections and the children of the higher grades were given an opportunity to have vegetable gardens as well as flower gardens. Now this school, which stood for two months stark and bare on the edge of a dump, is the whole year round, a source of beauty and joy, not only to the children, but to the whole neighborhood and the passerby.

Since this fine example has been set, public gardens have been open in four sections of the city; in which for the sum of five cents any boy or girl can rent a small plot on which can be raised plants according to the individual taste. How the children enjoy these gardens, the work, and the chance of showing them off! What splendid opportunity to get in close touch with nature! Here the lessons of neatness, neighborly kindness, helpfulness, fair play and the love of labor are the more firmly impressed because of the spirit of recreation which enters into all the work.

May I appeal to you, florists, florists' wives, daughters and mothers to become interested in this work and help put it in practice in your home town? This will not be wasted energy; for every garden opened will be the means of keeping many uncared for children off the streets and teaching them clean living. The florist clubs can assist you very much to carry out this movement. The Lancaster Florist Club gives nearly all the seeds used in our public gardens. Each year they make a liberal donation of both flower and vegetable seeds to the persons having the work in charge. We cannot afford to look only on the dollar and cents side of our trade, but if we can implant in the hearts of the boys and girls the love of plants and flowers, it will eventually make returns to some florist, and what helps one is, in nearly every case, of benefit to the trade at large.

In one of the trade papers, I saw the following and treasured it, never expecting to use it in a talk to our society, but hoped at some future time to use it in the parent-teachers' association work; however, I pass it along and hope it will help you in some way if you become interested in the work.

"A prize has been announced by the Home Yard and Garden Association of Bridgeport, Conn. This prize will go to the person making the best development of a flower garden, or porch, the small garden will have as good a chance as the large one, or even a porch development may win it, if the person competing has no place to plant but a porch."

The aim of the movement is to get everybody to plant something, however small the space may be. There is nothing so conducive of live interest as a prize for the reward of competition. While many persons will beautify their properties for the love of the beautiful, it usually takes more than that to beautify a town.

If I have been instrumental in inducing at least one person to undertake this work, it will be well worth the effort of trying to comply with the president's wishes in sending you this talk. Mr. Benjamin Hammond of the S. A. F. & O. H. has for a long time been interested in school gardens and to those members who will undertake the spread of the work I would recommend consulting him.

New York Florists' Banquet.

The first annual dinner of the Associated Retail Florists and the Greek-American Florists' Association of New York was held at the Hotel Breslin in that city, January 31. There was a large attendance and it proved to be a very interesting and enjoyable social event. An excellent orchestra furnished music and there were vocal numbers by professional entertainers which were exceptionally fine. After full justice had been done to the viands set before the company, President M. A. Bowe of the Associated Retail Florists introduced Leonard C. L. Smith, a business partner of Secretary W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., as toastmaster, and he amply filled the bill.

Addresses were delivered by Max Schling, D. J. Pappas, president of the Greek-American Florists' Association; Charles H. Brown, Secretary Siebrecht, George Hanges, and G. E. M. Stumpp. The various speakers voiced the sentiments of co-operation, progress and harmony. Letters expressing regret at their inability to be present, were received from Charles Thorley, Alexander McConnell, Charles A. Dards and Fred, Smythe, of Wedley & Smythe. After the speaking was ended there was a social hour, when friend met friend and old acquaintances were renewed. We may add, that in this free America, and particularly at a time when much of the world is racked with dreadful passion, it is particularly pleasing to see men of different birth and ancestry meet together in such good fellowship.

Tennessee State Horticultural Society.

The opening session of the annual meeting of the Tennessee State Horticultural Society was called to order on the morning of January 25, at Nashville, S. N. Varnell taking the chair in the absence of the president, R. S. Walker, whose annual address was read by Secretary O. M. Watson. In his address, President Walker recommended that the florists' society, the horticultural society and the nurserymen's association of the state consider amalgamation into one great whole, with proper division as might be necessary. The papers and discussions, like those that marked the annual meeting of the florists of the state, held the day previous, were all excellent, among the speakers and their subjects being the following: J. W. Eakin, horticultural agent for the N. C. & St. L. R. R. in a discussion on the outlook for better apple growing in Tennessee; C. A. Mooers, agronomist, East Tennessee University on, "Relation of Green Manures to Trucking"; O. M. Watson, horticulturist at the same institution on "Sweet Potato Growing in Tennessee." The storing of fruit was discussed by I. C. Murphy, Columbia; John Mir of Hendersonville and J. D. Ellis of Dayton, and many interesting points were brought out. Other speakers were Professor C. A. Keffer, Professor G. M. Bentley, and Wm. Schoenfeldt, all of Knoxville. Many fine displays of fruits were made.

Minneapolis.

Stock in general is very scarce, and from present indications it will be some time before the supply will equal the demand, as most of the houses have a heavy covering of snow and the thermometer continues to hover close to the zero mark. Business the past week has been brisk, with many orders for funerals and weddings.

NOTES.

The next meeting of the florists' club will be held at the Nicollet hotel, February 8 at 8:00 p. m., and the Minnesota State Florists' Association will meet at the same place February 15.

With stock bringing high prices several of the growers wish they had increased the capacity of their ranges last year instead of waiting.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. has a lot of young stock coming on in fine shape.

H. B. Whitted had several large orders for weddings which called for quantities of orchids and gardenias.

Will Bros. will increase their capacity this spring, but as yet have not decided how much they will build.

Jake Kohlsted of Amundson's force is on the sick list, suffering with a bad case of the grippe.

K. Lindskoog reports a heavy week's business on funeral orders.

Visitors: E. H. Goldenstein, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; A. C. Vanel, of the A. Verduyn Nurseries, Lisse, Holland; H. E. Philpott, Winnipeg, Can.

Minneapolis Bowling.

The bowling teams of the Minneapolis Florists' Club and the St. Paul Florists' Club met on the alleys of the Elks' Club, Minneapolis, Thursday, January 27. About 50 members of the clubs with their wives and friends were present and a banquet followed the match. Arthur Rice was on the coaching line for the Minneapolis team and helped his team pull out a winner by 89 pins, the first time Minneapolis has defeated St. Paul in 10 years. Captain Desmond was high man with a score of 203 pins. After the match, E. H. Goldenstein of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, and Theodore Wirth, rolled a game, the former carrying off the honors. DINNER OF THE NASSAU HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY AT THE ORIENTAL HOTEL, GLEN COVE, L. I., JANUARY 25.

Morris County, N. J. Florists' Society.

The twentieth annual dinner of the above named society was held in Piper's hotel, Morristown, N. J., on the evening of January 27. A large company of members and a number of invited guests gathered around the festal board. Frank Traendly, of New York, was toastmaster. We believe that this was a new role for Brother Traendly, but he rose up nobly to the emergency and, so to speak, "caved in the emergency's head." The banquet room was very handsomely decorated. On each table, as a centerpiece, was a large and beautifully flowered begonia of the Lorraine type. The sideboards were banked with other flowering plants, roses and carnations. A pleasing feature of the decorations was a fine display of the new red carnation, Belle Washburn, a large box of which had been sent for the occasion to Charles H. Totty by Bassett & Washburn, of Chicago, the disseminators. In addition to a large vase on the sideboard, one flower was placed at each plate. There was a standing toast to the president of the United States and America and the Star Spangled Banner were sung. There were other songs and speeches. One clever entertainer appeared in Highland costume and was appropriately encored. There were songs by William Collins, a popular seed drummer. The list of speakers included: Ex-Mayor Geo. W. Downs of Madison, Mr. Aukbrook, a popular editor of Madison; Walter F. Sheridan, New York; W. H. Duckham, C. H. Totty and Arthur Herrington of Madison; President Thorne and Secretary Reagan of the society; A. T. Boddington, New York; George Strange, Orange, N. J., and Mayor W. G. Badgley of Chatham. The event was very enjoyable.

Boston.BUSINESS SUFFERS SETBACK.

During the past week trade has fallen off and business is very quiet. Prices have declined on most lines of flowers. Roses have remained the steadiest of any of the flowers, prices on Ophelia, Russell and Hadley being practically the same as last week. White and Pink Killarney have met the least demand, but on the whole the rose trade may be considered very good in view of the fact that the business otherwise has slumped to such a degree. Carnations are becoming very plentiful and prices have gone down to $1.50 per 100 in some cases; $2 per 100 seems to be about the average price, although some flowers bring $3. Sweet peas are also seen in large quantities, there being a good demand for them at 50 cents to $1 per 100. Violets sell slowly, 40 cents and 50 cents per 100 being the best prices. There is an exceptional large quantity of mignonne in the markets and the demand is very light. Large spikes that should bring 8 to 12½ cents have to be sold for 50 cents per dozen. Snapdragon seems to be losing its popularity; although there are not many flowers being grown this year, the price and demand is not up to standard. Freesias are coming in good supply, and bring from $4 to $6.

NOTES.

F. W. Fletcher & Co., of Auburndale, Mass., are sending to the Boston Flower Exchange a good cut of their celebrated Freesia Purity. The flowers are without doubt among the best seen in this city. Mr. Fletcher is spending the winter at his estate in Florida.

E. R. Farr, of Stoneham, is building a new greenhouse, flat rafter type.

42x200 feet. He is cutting an extra fine lot of carnations at present, White Wonder and Beacon being exceptionally fine.

H. Shedd, of Tewksbury, has a fine crop of carnations coming. His establishment is in fine condition, the plants being exceptionally healthy and have a fine growth coming for future cutting.

J. Hannon & Son, of Dorchester, are leading in the supply of spurs coming to Boston. Last week they shipped 30,000 blooms and will have as many if not more for the coming week.

P. Welch reports business as being fairly good, despite the local drop in trade. He is receiving a fine supply of American Beauties at present; also a nice lot of bulbous flowers.

Max Laken has left the employ of H. M. Robinson & Co., where he has been for the past five years and is now working as traveling salesman for McAlpine & McDonald.

Louis Cohen, of the New England Florists' Supply Co., is back attending his business after a severe attack of grippe.

F. L. W.

Montreal.FUNERAL WORK HEAVY.

Funeral work has been the most important item in the trade lately, the funerals of several prominent men having created a heavy demand for flowers, but due to the shortage of good stock and the consequent high prices, the profits were not what they should be and extra help had to be secured to handle the last rush as many of the designs were elaborate. Trade in cut flowers is very satisfactory, roses and carnations being the principal factors. Daffodils have made their appearance and will soon be in heavy supply and out point the carnation. The plant business except in ferns and fern dishes is very quiet. Some very nice cinerarias are shown, also cyclamen, but they sell slowly.

NOTES.

The Montreal Horticultural Society held its annual meeting January 24. There was a large attendance and the secretary-treasurer, A. J. Bowles, presented his report showing the society to be in a good financial condition.

G. A. Robinson has successfully passed through an election campaign in which he defeated his opponent by a large majority for the office of alderman of Outremont.

John Eddy and W. H. Horobin were the winners in the monthly euchre of the Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club.

F. V. C. Nielsen is very successful with mushrooms and is cutting large crops daily.

Wm. C. Hall and E. J. Hayward have returned from a trip to Ottawa.

J. L.

The Late Carlman Ribsam.

Carlman Ribsam, of Trenton, N. J., died January 30. He was 80 years old last August. He came from Germany and was established in all branches of the florist business in Trenton 48 years ago. The seed end of his business is now being run by his son Martin Ribsam, while Joseph has the florist and nursery business. The other son Nicholas is in Pittsburgh. He leaves besides these three sons, a widow, 74 years old.

Twenty-five years ago the Ribsam business at Trenton was considered one of the most thoroughly representative of all lines of the trade and among the most up-to-date in the country.

Chicago Novelty Show.

The annual novelty exhibition of the Chicago Florists' Club will be held at the next regular meeting, February 10. Growers are invited to send exhibits of such novelties as they wish to show the trade and shipments may be addressed to A. T. Pyfer, 30 East Randolph street, Chicago, all charges prepaid.

E. G. HILL flowered 1,300 seedling roses this season, among them many varieties of high promise.

LAFAYETTE, IND.—A Purdue student died here of feticemia. She opened a pimple on her face with a needle which had been used in her work with plants.

OFFICIALS of the Armour Fertilizer Works, the United States Smelting Co. and others have discovered a practical way to secure potash from alunite, which contains from 10 to 12 per cent potash and is found in considerable quantities in Utah and Nevada. The daily output, 18 tons, is being sold at $200 per ton.

COPPER SULPHATE used as a plant disinfectant, recently advanced from 14 to 22 cents.

American Sweet Pea Society.

We are in receipt of the preliminary schedule of the American Sweet Pea Society's exhibition, to be held at Bar Harbor, Me., next June. Copies of this list can be had on application to H. A. Bunyard, secretary, 40 West Twenty-eighth street, New York.

We have also received copy of the advanced premium list of the California exhibition of this society, to be held at San Francisco in June. Copies of the latter list can be had on application to Frank G. Cuthbertson, 749 Front street, San Francisco, Calif.

Advertising Helps Salesman.

Advertising educates the salesman and all employes of the firm, according to C. E. Raymond, vice-president of the J. Walter Thompson Advertising Company, who spoke on "A Broad View of Advertising" at the weekly luncheon of the Executives' club in the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, January 28.

"Advertising gives the salesman a pride in the name of the house he is working for," said Mr. Raymond. "It gives him courage he otherwise might not have.

"The salesman is the point of contact between you and your trade. He is the man who hears all the knocks; it is he who has to meet competition, and it is he who has to overcome difficulties. Too often he becomes discouraged and wonders if his house is what his boss tells him it is.

"Advertising properly done, advertising wisely done is becoming a bankable asset. The business man and the banker are gradually coming to know this," he said.

Four-Year Garden Course for Girls.

To meet the demands of thousands of southern girls who have been successful in raising a tenth-acre of tomatoes and who want to continue the representatives of the United States department of agriculture and the state colleges in charge of the canning clubs in the fifteen southern states have worked out what might be called a progressive, four-year practical garden and canning course for girls. The purpose of this course is to start the girls with one crop and from year to year add new annual crops, encourage them to run winter and glass-frame gardens, and finally in the course of their work lead them to plant perennial small and orchard fruits. It is hoped that under this system the girls will gain knowledge of how to handle a wide variety of garden vegetables and trees and that the member by the time she gets ready to go to high school or college will have a garden of perennial fruits that readily can be cared for by other members of her family.

New York State's Fertilizer Bulletin.

Owing to the war, conditions in the fertilizer industry and fertilizer trade have been greatly affected, and prices raised. This makes it more necessary than ever for the purchaser of commercial brands to be sure of their quality; and the best guide to this is the reliability of the manufacturer or other guarantor, as shown by the analyses of the brands by experienced, disinterested chemists. The official sampling of the brands by agents of the commissioner of agriculture of the state of New York and the analysis of the samples of the state experiment station (Geneva) make it possible for every purchaser of fertilizers in quantity to have such a guide; for the results of this co-operative inspection work for 1915 have been published in Bulletin 410 of the station, which is now to be had on request.

T. E. Mills Honored.

With the thermometer registering 40 degrees below zero on January 27, T. E. Mills, president and general manager of the State Nursery & Seed Co., Helena, Mont., met with a warm reception when he entered the packing shed and found all of the employees of the concern gathered for the purpose of presenting him with a grievance in the shape of a handsome chest of silver containing 56 pieces handsomely engraved, together with their best wishes on the occasion of Mr. and Mrs. Mills' silver wedding anniversary. In the evening the Mills home was the scene of a pleasant gathering, many friends having arranged a surprise, and games, dancing and music adding to the enjoyment of all present. Mr. and Mrs. Mills were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts in silver, tokens of the esteem in which they are held by their many friends.

MacLellan's Calendar.

Alexander MacLellan, of Newport, R. I., has issued a neat calendar in which verse takes the place customarily given to pictorial display. The verses are reproduced herewith:

True Blue.

All shades in the spectrum ran riot one day
Were kaleidoscoped in every which way
Each claiming beauty tried others to out-shine
To settle their dispute joined in glass of wine.

Their eyes being opened drove them to despair
For as each viewed their fellows, all seemed wondrous fair
But red vain of itself claimed kin with the Sun
And had not the red Dragon great victories won?

Yet the blue of the Gentian and blue of the Skies
Are ever first premium no matter what tries
Then yellow-shade of the Moon, the Queen of the night
Has been to all lovers a perfect delight.

Now in their right order the colors we see Arranged for their beauty—just as they should be
First the blue at the top—then red comes to view
And the yellow comes third—if your order be true.

My Wish For You.

May Christmas joy each day of year
Be ever nigh your heart to cheer,
With friendship's ties strong, firm and true
In heart entwined to bear you thru.

Newark and Irvington, N. J.

Newark and Irvington are so near to each other and such good neighbors that we include both in these notes, but they are separate municipalities.

At the range of E. W. Fengar, Irvington, there is now a fine crop of carnations, and Edward Persson, the clever foreman, deserves much credit for bringing them along. We visited this range last fall shortly after the stock was housed. The season had been wet and some of the stock had suffered, but it has come out all right. The Pink Delight, White Wonder, Enchantress and others are all very fine. A limited area was planted with Good Cheer, and we call it a very fine production. Alice also looks well. The red, Champion, seems prolific at this range and has a much better color than Beacon. A great stock is being propagated, of carnations, chrysanthemums, geraniums and other bedding plants.

One of the picturesque figures of Newark is Karl Voight, who has greenhouses on 18th avenue, near Woodland cemetery. He was a Newark florist 60 years ago, that is, when many who are now grandfathers and grandmothers were kiddies. He is now 80 years old, but looks as jolly as Santa Claus is pictured on the Christmas cards.

August Bergerow, 16 Girard place, has been a Newark florist for 44 years, but is yet active. He has a neat range and grows a variety of stock. It is not generally supposed that he needs to work, but he can't quite drop the habit. His son, A. C. Bergerow, has a prosperous store at 946 Broad street.

At Philips Brothers, 938 Broad street, we were shown a large sheaf of telegrams and letters, all out of town orders that had been received in the last two months. Philips Brothers are certain it pays to advertise in THE AMERICAN FLORIST. They have recently had several fine wedding decorations.

W. J. Strahan, manager for Wolfinger, states that January has been an exceptionally busy month in their store with a big demand for funeral work. The orders have come in so fast that they have had to work overtime to fill them.

A brother of Edwin Persson has bought a vegetable range on Union avenue and will remodel it to grow cut flowers. He is also likely to erect new houses in the near future.

George Muller, 435 Clinton avenue, is one of the busiest of the Newark retailers. He has a good store in a good location and handles fine stock.

J. D. Kroehl, Jr., has a good store at 20 Belmont avenue, opposite the Kruger Auditorium, with greenhouses at Union Hill, N. J.

Charles Luthy, 363 Springfield avenue, has a neat retail store and is a genial and companionable man who makes friends.

The S. A. Rogers Nursery Co. has recently opened a store for the sale of cut flowers at 14 Branford place, Newark. A. F. F.

Essex County Florists' Club.

The Essex County Florists' Club held its monthly meeting on the evening of January 20 and elected officers as follows: Henry Hoernecker, president; John Pfeuffer, vice-president; Edward Jacobi, Jr., secretary; Edwin Persson, treasurer. The next meeting, February 17, will be ladies' night. There will be a cabaret dinner at the Kruger restaurant and this implies music and dancing. The Kruger Auditorium, where the meetings are held, is located on Belmont avenue near Springfield avenue, Newark.

ROCHESTER WHITE

GLADIOLUS

The Only Pure White of Commercial Value

The value of this variety is its color. The purest white ever offered. Its general growth, vigor and erectness give it first place among the standard varieties.

There is no question about this variety being not only the best white, but the only white Gladiolus of commercial value to-day.

The facts that the petals are pure white clear into the throat, and that the anthers and pollen are white, place it in a class superior to any other so called white variety. In usefulness this variety will answer perfectly in the place of any solid white flower, and can be used for every purpose heretofore exclusively supplied by Lilies.

The plant is strong and vigorous and grows very erect. The spikes are well supported and large, averaging three feet in height. The green foliage is broad and clean. Productive in both bulb and flower. Rochester White has won all the premiums offered for the best white, wherever exhibited, for the past four successive years.

F. DORNER & SONS CO., Lafayette, Ind.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The members and friends of the Nassau County Horticultural Society to the number of 75 gathered at the Oriental hotel, Glen Cove, Tuesday evening, January 25, to celebrate the society's tenth annual dinner. The tables were beautifully decorated with plants of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, Primula malacoides, freesias, narcissi, etc. Because of illness, our president, James McDonald, was unable to be present and Vice-president Joseph Adler presided. Mr. Adler made an address of welcome to the guests and members and bade each one to do his full share toward disposing of the dinner which was to be served. His bidding was strictly carried out, as the menu was a most excellent one.

When the cigars were reached Mr. Adler introduced Charles H. Totty as toastmaster of the evening and a most efficient one he proved to be. His numerous anecdotes and verses which he favored us with throughout the evening were enjoyed by everyone. The first speaker called on by Mr. Totty was James Cocks, supervisor of Nassau County, who ably responded to the toast "Our Country." John F. Johnstone spoke for the Nassau County Horticultural Society and said that among other things that we as a society are proud of is the fact that one of our members, John W. Everitt, has had the honor of being chosen president of the National Association of Gardeners.

The toast, "The Trade Press," was eloquently taken care of by William Stuart, while J. Austin Shaw fairly outdid himself in the response he made to the toast, "The Ladies." The seed trade was spoken for by J. A. Deamud, George Burnett, Wm. J. Collins and W. A. Sperling. William Duckham responded for the Morris County Horticultural Society and also requested the support of our members at the coming spring show in New York. Thos. Lee represented the Tarrytown Horticultural Society and James Duthie the Oyster Bay Society. Other speakers were County Attorney, Charles McCarthy, Frank Boune, Lester Ortig, Dr. Connolly and John F. Davis. Interspersed with the speeches, vocal selections were rendered by Wm. J. Collins and others.

A pleasant feature of the evening was the presentation of a pair of gold cuff buttons to Ernest Westlake in appreciation of his efficient services as presi-

Paterson, N. J.

The park board of Paterson, of which Edward Sceery, the florist, is president, passed its first reading, a shade tree ordinance, January 12. The proposed ordinance is along the same lines as that of Newark, N. J. Carl Barnwart, secretary of the Newark shade tree commission, was at the meeting and explained the workings of the Newark ordinance. Mr. Barnwart said the city of Newark had provided the park commissioners with a large plot of ground on which they are now growing trees, which were purchased several years ago and that they are doing well. He said it was possible to buy trees for 25 cents each, if bought in carload lots. The proposed Paterson ordinance forbids the following: To cut, break, climb, injure, kill or remove any tree or plant in a public highway or any tree or plant in a public park; the proximity of wires or other conductors. Allowing gas, brine or liquid dye to reach trees, is also forbidden.

Oklahoma City.

Snow and very cold weather is remaining steadily with us. Pioneer settlers say that there has not been such severe cold since 1896. In spite of bad weather conditions florists say that business is keeping up well and averaging up with other years.

NEW CARNATION

Cottage Maid

Sport of Mrs. C. W. Ward.

COTTAGE MAID CLEANS UP AT ST. LOUIS

Besides Winning First In Its Class, This Queen of Novelties Won The Sweepstakes For The Best Vase In The Show.

The public here in New York is crazy over the color of this beautiful new carnation. It is a clear shell pink, deep in the center and lighter toward the edge. It is a color your trade demands.

Its plant is identical with its well known and widely grown parent "Mrs. C. W. Ward" and it has the same wonderful keeping and shipping qualities as this variety. In fact at the Cleveland Show this fall "Cottage Maid" besides the first prize in its class, won the prize for the vase of carnations in the best condition at the end of the Show. And these flowers were shipped from New York.

We have grown this variety for six years and tried it out thoroughly. It is not our policy to let buyers of our novelties do the experimenting.

We believe in "Cottage Maid" and we are going to back up our belief by planting 50,000 of it next year for blooms besides the stock plants. It will be Sent out next winter. Send in Your Order Early.

And keep your eye on "CRYSTAL WHITE," our sensational pure white, which is larger and more productive than "Matchless." It will probably be disseminated in 1917-18.

Catalogue describing this and all other novelties and standard varieties of ROSES, CHRYSANTHEMUMS and CARNATIONS, will be mailed on receipt of your address.

CHARLES H. TOTTY, - - - MADISON, N. J.

Kansas City.

Regular winter weather with the temperature ranging from zero to 32 degrees with sleet and rain have made deliveries hard during the past week, but trade has been excellent, funeral work being especially heavy. Stock continues scarce in some lines, roses especially, but they were good in quality and consequently high in price. Carnations are arriving in greater numbers and sweet peas and violets have taken a slump. Narcissi, jonquils and tulips are also arriving with longer stems.

NOTES.

H. Kusik & Co. have a big supply of carnations daily but rose receipts are limited. The out-of-town demand and supply department business have both been brisk. Henry Kusik and his bride have returned from their honeymoon and are receiving the congratulations of their many friends, also the groom is being complimented by the "boys" on his excellent judgment in the selection of the cigars which he passed around.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports a very good trade, orders for funerals being especially brisk. Mr. Parker of this firm is confined to his home with pneumonia and Miss Brown, another one of the staff, has a bad case of the grippe.

Visitors: Phil Foley, of the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., Chicago; C. H. Perkins, of Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.; John Jufferman, of P. Van Deursen, of Sassenheim, Holland.

The stork is still making headquarters in this city. On January 24, he called at the home of A. E. Odoms, who is employed at the greenhouses of W. J. Barnes. Miss Odoms weighs nine pounds.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. is cutting quite a number of roses but not enough to supply the demand. The call for pot plants is very heavy, the stock being sold as fast as it arrives at the store.

W. J. Barnes is showing a fine assortment of pot plants, especially noteworthy being rhododendrons, cyclamens, begonias and cinerarias. He is still cutting heavily on carnations.

Arthur Newell had a heavy run on funeral orders but was handicapped somewhat on account of the shortage of stock. He is using boxwood and leaves in quantities on wreaths.

T. J. Noll & Co. are now handling thousands of carnations daily. They expect a big trade in violets to meet the St. Valentine's day demand.

Eric Frandsen & Co. were completely frozen out last week, due to water running into the boiler pit, making it impossible to fire.

ROSES ARE STILL SCARCE.

Roses of all kinds are very scarce and clean up quickly each day at an early hour at high prices. American Beauty roses were never in such short supply and this is particularly true in the shorter stemmed grades. Carnations are more plentiful, but are moving well and clean up nicely. Violets are plentiful and are selling well. Lily of the valley is none too plentiful and commands high prices. Bulbous stock is seen in larger supply and some very good freesias, tulips, jonquils, daffodils, Romans and Paper White narcissi are obtainable. Sweet peas are in good supply, but there is no great surplus when the day's sales are over. Lilies, orchids and gardenias are among the offerings and the same holds good for stevia, although the receipts of the latter are gradually diminishing. Snapdragons, calendulas, mignonette, daisies and pansies are included in the offerings, but clean up quickly. Business has been very good and stock in general cleans up nicely and when the day's sales are over there is very little stock left. Green goods are plentiful and in good demand. Everyone is now making preparations for St. Valentine's day, which will no doubt call for a large supply of stock and clean up the market completely in all lines.

NOTES.

The A. L. Randall Co. has leased the entire third floor of the Le Moyne building and have an option on the fourth. It is understood that this firm is willing to sublet a part of the second floor which they now occupy to any local wholesale florist, so as to concentrate as much business as possible in the one building. The other firms now located in the Le Moyne building are the E. C. Amling

Co., Chicago Flower Growers' Association, Bassett & Washburn and J. A. Budlong.

George Weiland of Evanston has purchased 19 acres of land adjoining the Stielow greenhouses at Niles Center, where he will build a new range of greenhouses. Work will be started immediately on the first house and the rest will be added as rapidly as possible. The new plant will be devoted exclusively to roses and the output will be consigned to the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, of which firm he is an officer.

The Ickes-Braun Mill Co. was awarded the contract for the material and M. Winandy, Jr., the contract for the erection and cement work on the new range of the National Flower and Plant Co., in which S. Freund is interested.

Other Green Goods Market Rates.

The Tonner sisters, Olga and Lillian, have gone into partnership and leased larger quarters in Room 205 in the Atlas building, where they will conduct both a wholesale commission cut flower and supply business. The Tonner family has been represented in the local wholesale cut flower market since 1890, but this is the first time that they have taken out a lease in their own name and intend to enlarge their business as rapidly as possible. Miss Olga Tonner has been engaged in the cut flower business for many years, and Miss Lillian Tonner was formerly in the employ of the A. L. Randall Co., during which time she had charge of their supply department. They expect to occupy their new quarters in about another week, when further particulars will be announced.

Pyfer & Olsem, of Wilmette, have leased the Peter Nepper greenhouses, consisting of 100,000 feet of glass, which will be devoted exclusively to carnations and be under the able supervision of Peter Olsem. The stock will be consigned to A. T. Pyfer & Co., which will come in handy now that they have increased their floor space and their rapidly increasing business demands more stock. Miss O. A. Tonner has occupied a part of A. T. Pyfer & Co.'s store for some time, but will move into new quarters soon, which will give the Pyfer Co. considerable extra space, which it has needed for some time.

Mrs. Horton, of Bassett & Washburn, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of her husband whose death occurred at Correnzo, New Mexico, last week from pneumonia contracted looking after some mining property there. The funeral was held from the family residence in Evanston Wednesday afternoon under the auspices of the Masonic lodge of which he was a member. Burial was at Rose Hill cemetery.

H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, Can., was in the city this week on business and left February 1 to attend the Elks' ice carnival now being held in St. Paul, Minn. Mr. Philpott has been receiving a complimentary copy of the Milwaukee Free Press since the affiliation banquet of the Chicago Florists' Club and the Cook County Florists' Association, but does not know who to thank for the interesting Christmas present.

At Wietor Bros. store carnations continue to arrive in larger quantities, and while they are cutting a good supply of roses there is still a scarcity. N. J. Wietor says it will be several weeks before there will be any great quantities of roses to speak of and what stock is being cut now is bringing good prices. This firm has a nice lot of carnation cuttings in the sand and is booking orders for same.

Bassett & Washburn are booking a large number of orders for Belle Washburn carnation cuttings every day and are well pleased with the amount that have already been sold. This variety made a remarkable showing at the St. Louis, Mo., exhibition of the American Carnation Society last week, and is the only variety that ever won two silver medals two years in succession.

The E. C. Amling Co. well remembers St. Valentine's day last year for that was when fire completely destroyed their old building, but the way the firm looks at it now is that they were driven out of a good location into a much better one. This house is showing a splendid supply of colored freesias, which they figure will be a big seller for Valentine's day.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report trade as good with a grand clean-up in stock each day. Carnations are more plentiful at this house and the outlook for a large supply of violets and spring stock for St. Valentine's day is very encouraging.

Allie Zech and M. H. Mann, of Zech & Mann, have returned from St. Louis, Mo., where they attended the annual exhibition and convention of the American Carnation Society, held January 26-27.

Philip C. Schupp, manager at J. A. Budlong's store, reports an exceedingly brisk demand for lily of the valley, which is in short supply and commands top-notch prices.

George Reinberg is cutting a good supply of calla lilies which Manager Northam says are bringing much better prices than last year's January and February crops did.

Miss Greeley, of the John Kruchten Co., who has been on the sick list since the holidays, has recovered and will be back on the job next week.

Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, has returned from a business trip to St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo.

The annual novelty exhibition of the Chicago Florists' Club will be held at the next regular meeting, February 10. Growers are invited to send exhibits of such novelties as they wish to show the trade and shipments may be addressed to A. T. Pyfer, 30 East Randolph street, Chicago, all charges prepaid.

Fred O. Otto, 2128 North Kedzie avenue, was shot by a man who is said to be an ex-employee, January 22, sustaining four slight scalp wounds.

Chas. Wolf, of Downers Grove, will give up growing sweet peas in the future as the crops have been very unsatisfactory this season, owing to the unfavorable weather conditions.

Dan Simonds, of the Ogden Floral Co., 1917 West Harrison street, has been on the sick list for nearly a week.

THE SIGN OF QUALITY

John Poehlmann was taken home from the hospital last week and is getting along very nicely. August Poehlmann and Adolph Poehlmann have both been confined to their homes with the grip for nearly a week. August Poehlmann in speaking of business conditions says that the cut flower trade is on a par with 1914 and that the supply department shows a 40 per cent increase over last year. One order for young rose plants was booked last month which called for 85,000 plants, mostly grafted stock. The demand for grafted plants seems to be about 65 per cent better than own root stock where the buyer has his choice.

Peter Reinberg is cutting a good supply of roses and carnations and the outlook for large cuts for St. Valentine's day is very encouraging. This firm will have the Misses Tonner for neighbors who will occupy the room next door east of them. Mr. Reinberg and Henry Zender occupied a prominent seat on the stage when President Wilson spoke at the Auditorium, Monday evening, January 31.

John C. Schubert, who succeeded to the historic Gallagher business, corner of Wabash avenue and Madison street, died January 26. Mr. Schubert was prominent in local politics but has not been identified with the trade recently, the floral business passing to John Mangel some years ago.

Weiland & Risch are booking orders right and left for their new pink rose Champ Weiland and have only a limited supply of grafted plants left to offer. Many of the local florists will grow this variety next season, especially those who have had an opportunity to inspect it growing.

Visitors: Alex Guttman, with Guttman & Raynor, New York; Blaine Wilcox, with J. F. Wilcox, Council Bluffs, Ia.; H. V. Hunkel, of Holton & Hunkel Co., Nic. Zweifel, Gustav Pohl, Schroeder, Milwaukee, Wis.; John Evans, Richmond, Ind.; Samuel Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York; E. J. Fancourt, representing Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Wm. R. Nicholson, S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass.; Alex Montgomery, Natick, Mass.; A. Roper, Tewksbury, Mass.; W. J. Palmer, Buffalo, N. St. Louis.

STOCK MORE PLENTIFUL.

Business has been none too brisk the past week due to the rainy weather, consequently stock is more plentiful and prices are considerably lower. Roses are still on the short side, and while at times certain other items are scarce there is nearly always enough stock on hand to fill the late orders. Carnations especially are seen in larger numbers, which also holds good for freesias, narcissi, tulips, sweet peas, violets, lilies, snapdragons, etc. Sales during January, 1916, compare most favorably so far with January of last year and the outlook for a continuance of good business is very bright and everyone is busy making preparations for a brisk St. Valentine day's trade.

NOTES.

H. G. Berning is handling a large quantity of choice single violets in addition to a complete line of other stock and will have a large supply to offer for St. Valentine's day. Mr. Berning reports business as good and has noticed no decrease in sales since the wholesale stores closed on Sunday and the new credit system went into effect. Several of the Chicago wholesale florists who attended the exhibition here this week believe in Sunday closing and will no doubt soon follow suit if there is any possible way to do so.

The Mullanphy Florists, Inc., have one of the best corner locations in the city and the proprietors are Wm. A. Seeger, Nat M. Kingsley and Martin J. Seeger. Mr. Seeger says that business has been good right along with a heavy demand for funeral work. Miss Betty Carlson, A. M. Elleson and Julius Schaeffer, who were formerly employed in Chicago retail stores, are on the Mullanphy staff in addition to several other efficient salesmen, salesladies and designers.

C. A. Kuehn has been on the sick list for several days, but is again attending to his duties at the store. He is the oldest wholesale florist in this city and has about as nice an establishment as one can find devoted to the wholesale end of the business. He carries a nice line of stock and experiences no difficulty in disposing of it, the demand especially around the holidays being exceptionally good.

Grimm & Gorly have a splendid store and do a large business which is due principally to the able management of Frank X. and Vincent Gorly.

Subject to Market Changes.

M. W. Uhl Schmidt, manager of the East St. Louis store, was present at the time of our visit and they were seriously thinking of making some important changes to their store at the time. They occupy the whole building and it is surprising what a large stock of supplies they carry.

George Waldbart, who has been in business here since 1878, is on the job every day at his store and believes in paying strict attention to business, and is usually the last one to close up at night. He can well remember the day when there were no wholesale houses in this section of the country and he could not secure his stock as quickly and choose from such a variety as he can today.

George H. Angermueller is busy getting a stock of wire hanging baskets ready for the spring trade and will have more than ever to offer this season. He says that he sold an unusually large number last year, but is increasing his output so that all orders can be filled in full promptly. Mr. Angermueller does a large local supply business and also has a big mail order trade.

The local dailies devoted considerable space to the annual exhibition and convention of the American Carnation Society, held here last week. The exhibition hall was open to visitors on certain hours each day and quite a number took advantage of the opportunity to inspect the newer varieties that were on display and were each presented with one to wear.

Miss M. S. Newman has been in business here for 21 years, during which time she has built up a splendid trade. She took over the Armstrong business and is ably assisted at the store by Philip Rehn and several others. Miss Newman had a pleasant visit this week from Miss Belle Miller, the popular florist of Springfield, Ill.

Fred C. Weber says that next September will mark his fiftieth year in business in this city and he has every reason to feel proud of his establishment, for it is well kept up and it is very noticeable that he handles the best of stock. He had a nice window showing of spring flowers and white lilac at the time of the writer's visit.

C. Young & Sons Co. have a splendid establishment and do a large business. This is one of the oldest firms in the city and have a reputation of square dealing of which anyone might well be proud. Their competitors seem to be their best boosters, for everywhere one went everyone was handing a bouquet to the Youngs.

Mrs. A. Waldbart, wife of the pioneer florist, died last week and the funeral was held from the home Thursday, January 27, when the remains were laid to rest in Calvary cemetery. The floral tributes from the trade were many and beautiful and the wholesale as well as retail houses were well represented.

Tom Carr, everyone knows Tom, has the following on the back of his card: Hawker—Buy a flower, sir? Billion—No, thanks. Hawker—Buy one for your wife, sir. Billion—Haven't one. Hawker—For your sweetheart, then. Billion—Haven't one, either. Hawker—Well, buy one to celebrate your luck.

Richard A. Tubbesing is well pleased with business at the Ayres Floral Co. and is a promising young fellow of whom more will be heard in the future. This store, like all other St. Louis establishments, is nicely kept up, and a visitor cannot help but be attracted by its inviting appearance.

The Townsend Floral Co. is enjoying a splendid retail business and has two delivery cars on hand, a Premier and Ford, which come in very handy at times. J. B. Reindfleisch has charge of the delivery system and conservatory which is always kept nicely stocked with plants.

Fred. Lautenschlager, with Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, called on the growers here this week and did a nice business. His firm was the only one to have an exhibit at the annual convention and exhibition of the American Carnation Society held here last week.

Some of the visitors wanted to know why Milwaukee should be jealous of St. Louis. Some found out the reason, but it is a pleasure to report that even though some visitors remained over until Sunday that it was not because they had too large a sample of it.

F. H. Weber has a nice establishment at Boyle and Maryland avenues which one might call a combination store and conservatory and which is always kept as clean as a whistle. He uses fine stationery and shipping tags and fills quite a number of telegraph orders.

F. J. Foster is figuring on moving to a better and larger store on Olive street soon for he is not quite satisfied with his present stand. Mr. Foster is an old Chicago man and was formerly in the employ of the Arms Floral Co. there many years ago.

D. Scott Geddis, manager of the cut flower department of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney, reports business as good, which is not at all surprising when one has occasion to visit this store and see what a large line of stock is carried.

Ostertag Bros. are always ready to fill telegraph orders and make a special effort to get out all orders on time. A good supply of stock is carried and their service is of such high order that it is bound to give satisfaction.

The Wm. C. Smith Floral Co. is satisfied with business conditions and has no kick whatever to register. This firm handles a large quantity of the A. A. Arnold Co.'s folding boxes and reports a brisk demand for same.

Frank A. Windler and A. W. Grumb of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. are well pleased with business and are showing a very fancy grade of sweet peas.

SUPPLY BECOMES MORE PLentiful.

While market conditions remain about the same as a week ago, with roses still short of the demand, carnations are more plentiful and good sized orders are taken care of in full. Freesias are in good demand. Sweet peas are arriving in greater numbers and the quality is good. Orchids have also been quite plentiful. A few daisies and calendulas are to be seen, but the supply is limited. Paper Whites, daffodils and Lorraine tulips are in good demand, as are callas. Easter lilies are scarce. Asparagus plumosus and Sprengerii and Adiantum ferns were short of requirements this week. Inquiries for supplies for St. Valentine's day show a lively interest in being taken in the occasion by local florists.

A baby girl arrived at the home of Harry Daw and wife, January 23. Congratulations.

Westchester and Fairfield Society.

The annual entertainment and dance of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society will be held in the Town Hall, Greenwich, Conn., Wednesday evening, February 16, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The popularity of these entertainments in past years guarantees a large attendance. The members of the society, their families, and friends in the trade are cordially invited to attend. Refreshments will be served. Do not stay at home on account of the "kiddies." Bring them along.

STOCK IS SCARCE.

The heavy rains of the past week have hurt all outdoor stock. Lath house carnations are in bad condition and will be until new bloom comes on. Roses are scarce, but the quality seems good. Some fine white and pink Killarneys are seen; also Shawyer. Narcissi are now on and are selling well. Roman hyacinths are showing up and a few Easter lilies are now seen. Business is confined mostly to wedding and funeral work. A late arrival of rhododendrons were on sale this week, but plant sales have not been very brisk of late. However, with improved weather conditions more flowers and plants will be sold over the counter than for the past two weeks.

NOTES.

The Redondo Floral Co. is now located at 218 West Seventh street in the Hotel Lankershim building. This is one of the oldest firms in the city and by painstaking work and conservative management they have built up a trade in cut flowers and plants that is second to none. By their removal they get into the heart of the shopping district, where they will, no doubt, build up even a larger trade than they formerly enjoyed.

One of the largest stocks shown the past week was that of J. M. Wolters, 627 South Hill street. Some beautiful specimens of heather were displayed, besides a full stock of roses in variety, in addition to all other flowers and plants usually shown at this time of the year, including Easter lilies.

Seedsmen in this vicinity are feeling good these days. They believe that on account of the unprecedented rains, that every foot of available land in southern California will be planted to something this spring and they are looking for a busy season.

The Broadway Florists have been favored with some big wedding orders of late. A church wedding at Ontario, Calif., and one in Los Angeles, which was held in one of the city's big banquet halls, took several loads of flowers and plumosus.

The Los Angeles Floral Co.'s business has been interrupted by the recent storm, on account of their inability to receive or ship stock, as all railroads were tied up and more or less demoralized for several days.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—In a will filed here, February 1, Suzanne Blanche Wolfskill, who died recently at Pasadena, Calif., bequeathed $50,000 to the family of the mother of her late husband. The mother's maiden name was Ashcroft, but as the maker of the will did not know where the family resided the money will be placed in trust here until claimed.

PADUCAH, KY.—John Van Aart has returned from St. Louis, Mo., where he attended the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society and was well pleased with the varieties on display. He is going to build a new range of houses consisting of 25,000 feet of glass this spring and is now asking for bids on the materials. Mr. Van Aart placed an order with Bassett & Washburn while he was in St. Louis for 2,000 rooted cuttings of their new carnation Belle Washburn, which attracted so much favorable attention at the exhibition.

PRICES DROP AS SUPPLY INCREASES.

Stock in almost all lines is much more plentiful while the demand has fallen off, in consequence of which prices have taken quite a tumble, carnations and violets taking the lead in the decline, the difference being as much as from 50 to 100 per cent over the figures of two weeks ago. The quality of almost everything is all that could be desired, carnations being now at their best. One great factor has been the weather, which has been almost summer-like in its mildness, the temperature from Monday until Saturday running well above 60° each day, even reaching 70° one day. It has been the warmest continuous period of weather for January in the record of the weather bureau for this city. This condition brought on the crops very fast and was hard on the stock when in the stores, roses opening up very quickly. American Beauties are now off crop with nearly all the growers, which gives the Russell an added importance. The Killarneys are now much more plentiful, there being more of the shorter grades so popular with most buyers. Daffodils are seen on every hand and prices have declined 75 to 100 per cent. There will be a large demand for them at the low prices. Easter and calla lilies are holding up very well, realizing high prices. Cattleyas are plentiful, but said to be nearly cut out and likely to be much scarcer. Lily of the valley is shy. Freesia is plentiful and lilac cleans up daily. Sweet peas are to be had in variety in all grades; the best are wonderfully fine.

CLUB MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the florists' club held February 1, was a record breaker both in the attendance and the grand exhibition of carnations and other flowers. The committee had called it "carnation night" and the 50 or more vases, many of them containing 50 or more blooms of a variety, certainly proved their assertion. They came from all over the country—as far west as Nebraska. Chicago sent several vases and Connecticut and Massachusetts growers were well represented with vases of splendid blooms. Local growers and nearby towns turned out well, many pet new ones being in varying quantity. Among the varieties were Nebraska, Belle Washburn, Red Wing, Red seedling P. J. Olinger, Miss Theo, Matchless Morning Glow, C. W. Ward, Gloriosa, Laura Weber, Pearl, Benora and sport of same, Rosetta, White Wonder, Alice, and a number of superb flowers of seedlings and the favorite bread and butter sorts of today. There were also vases of the new roses, Prima Donna, Mrs. Bayard Thayer, Red Russell and Mrs. Moorfield Storey, also fine vases of the popular yellow, Mrs. Ward. A handsomely arranged basket of carnations by Vollers House of Flowers, was a feature. There were also well flowered acacias from Zeigler & Son, cyclamen from the Robert Craig Co. and a fine box of mixed flowering and foliage plants by W. K. Harris. The Strafford Greenhouses' collection of popular sorts of carnations was much admired, as was the fine vases of favorites and a lot of very promising seedlings.

R. T. Brown, who was to review the new carnations in a prepared paper, was unable to be present. Addresses were made, however, by a number of the visitors. Professor F. L. Mulford of the test gardens at Washington, D. C., told of the work they were doing with the rose and other plants and the great possibilities of the future along these lines. Robt. Simpson, of Clifton, N. J., said that Ophelia was the most profitable rose he had ever grown. He thought well of the new light and dark sports of Russell and predicted a future for Prima Donna. A. J. of the recent national carnation meeting at St. Louis and the great enthusiasm he found there for the coming national show, which he said was sure to be a record breaker. L. J. Reuter said the meeting with its great show of flowers and splendid attendance was an inspiration to him. No other city, from what he had seen, had anything on Philadelphia. He guaranteed the support of the whole country in the coming show. Mr. Therkildson told of his publicity work and urged all who could in any way help in the movement to get busy at once. He especially wanted photos of anything meritorious. Eleven new members were elected and 10 new names submitted for membership.

NOTES.

Chairman Therkildson of the publicity committee of the National flower show is busy distributing the various posters and window cards. Every florist, in and out of town in this and adjoining territory, should give these cards as good a space as possible in his store and also see that his trade knows all about the great show weeks before the opening date. E. J. Fancourt, chairman of the trade ticket committee, is getting a number of quite large orders from the craft. They will be ready for delivery about March 15 and should be early placed in good hands, so that the opening days shall show a splendid attendance. Sub leases have reduced the cost of the improvement in Convention hall to $1,300—there is still a chance in the coming six weeks, for an additional lease or two.

was held on February 1 and much routine work in connection with the coming show was gone over. Judges were appointed and details of the schedule arranged. It was decided to have a booth with an attendant to exploit the society and its work. A new bulletin is also to be sent out which will be the most complete ever issued by the society. Benjamin Hammond, H. O. May, S. S. Penneck, Robert Simpson, L. J. Rueter and Prof. F. L. Mulford were in attendance.

Walter Davis met with a painful accident January 26, an inexperienced chauffeur in a Ford car knocking him against a wall. He received a painful crack on the head and a badly bruised body. He was taken to the hospital, where it required several stitches to mend his scalp. As an exponent of peace he finds the Ford a failure.

Gardenias are a bone of contention. More have been coming to the market than were required for the regular channels and the balance was sold to the "outlaws" at ridiculously low prices. The legitimates kicked hard and in consequence the "powers that be" have promised to insist on at least a fair price for the surplus.

Choice freesias, daffodils and sweet peas are leaders in the Berger Bros. market. Easter lilies and callas are also seen in quantity.

The Leo Niessen Co. is handling gardenias in quantity and the stock is fine. Lilac and orchid sweet peas are also features.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Cut Flower Co. is pushing a line of choice carnations. Single violets are also a specialty.

The Robert Craig Co. is still showing splendid cyclamens, their later crop producing an abundance of fine flowers.

Edward Reid's Sunburst roses are splendid stock. Orchid sweet peas are also a feature. K.

New York.

SUPPLY HEAVIER BUT PRICES FIRM.

Relating to the volume of business, it is enough to state that though there is a perceptible increase in the supply of tea roses and carnations, prices have not fallen to any extent. The supply of sweet peas and much bulbous stock is heavier and the prices are somewhat lower. Good Spencer sweet peas can be bought wholesale for $1.50 per 100, narcissi $3 to $4, tulips $3 to $4. Lilies and lily of the valley remain firm. Orchids continue very cheap and violets are not doing as well as they were a week ago. Gardenias are more plentiful and the inferior grades are cheap. American Beauties are scarce. There has been a period of unusually warm weather. On January 27 the mercury registered 66 degrees in this city. January 28 was almost as warm, but there was wind, which made it more endurable, the point being that people wearing heavy overcoats and furs do not like to lay them aside in January. The volume of funeral work continues quite heavy and there is a strong demand for short roses. Violets are now being much used in casket covers.

February 2.—Following a period of warm, rainy and foggy weather, the supply of stock has increased with no corresponding demand and in consequence there is a great slump in the market. Carnations at this writing are quoted at from $1 to $3 per 100, with fancies selling at $4. The weather continues bad with rain and sleet.

NOTES.

Henry Hart, Inc., 1000 Madison avenue, had the decoration, January 27, for the wedding of Miss Carola T.

Warburg to Walter N. Rothschild. The wedding was solemnized in the elegant home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Felix M. Warburg, 1109 Fifth avenue. Under the hands of the skillful decorators the room in which the ceremony took place was transformed into a floral chapel. The altar was banked with flowers, and flowering and foliage plants were seen in profusion. The bride carried a shower bouquet of lily of the valley and the bridesmaids carried bouquets of Killarney roses.

On January 29 we found A. T. Bunyard, 413 Madison avenue, very busy with funeral work, having made up a casket cover of Adiantum Farleyense and cattleyas and also a number of fine designs. He is handling exceptionally fine orchid sweet peas and has the "boys" guessing where he gets them.

On January 28, Thos. F. Galvin, Inc., had the family orders and was in charge of the floral arrangements for the funeral of Herman Duryea, a well known citizen, which was held at Grace church. The pall was of violets and many fine floral tributes were noticed.

We have recently noticed a very fine display in Alexander McConnell's large show windows, Fifth avenue and 49th street. Pots of white lilac, heather, forsythias and other spring flowers have been arranged with fine effect. Business continues good at this store.

The finest Hadley roses in the market are at P. J. Smith's, 131 West 28th street, the specials being almost equal in length of stem, to American Beauties, and all have fine blooms. They wholesale at from $7 per 100 for No. 2's to $50 for specials.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held on the night of February 14 (St. Valentine's day) and, by the way, let us remind the "younger set" that heart shaped boxes filled with flowers can be bought of retail florists.

A feature at Chas. Thorley's, Fifth avenue and 46th street, during the warm days of the past week, was many pans of tulips arranged outside at the front of the store. There is seldom an opportunity for such a display in January.

Frank Traendly went to Morristown, N. J., January 27 and acted as toastmaster at the annual dinner of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' society. Walter F. Sheridan was also present as one of the speakers.

N. J. Miller, 547 Columbus avenue, reports good business. He is one of the regular buyers in the early morning market. In all his activities he is ably assisted by Mrs. Miller.

The Bell Rosary, 2654 Broadway, is showing very handsome window decorations. They also have good export business. N. P. Whitley, who has taken a financial interest in this store, is also active in its management.

No wholesale store shows a greater variety of stock than does William P. Ford's, 107 West 28th street. He is handling fine stock of Killarney Brilliant roses, lilac, sweet peas, bouvardias, carnations and other stocks.

George I. Okkerse, who now has the retail store at 789 Madison avenue, formerly conducted by Young & Nugent, has been making improvements and seems to be prospering.

D. C. Arnold & Co., Inc., 112 West 28th street, are handling fine carnations from their range, Babylon, N. Y., where they have 50,000 square feet of glass.

One of the busiest buyers in the wholesale district is Costos Sakelos, the Colonial Florist. He now has four retail stores and is doing a good business.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Tillie Lazarus of Bradley Beach, N. J., and Samuel Salzberg, a well known salesman for the Walter R. Siebrecht Co., Inc., 114 West 28th street. Sam has been a popular lad in the wholesale district for a number of years and we have always thought that he would make some good woman a good husband. We wish them happiness and success.

William Kather, who last fall opened a retail store at 754 Madison avenue, is doing well and his business is constantly increasing.

Paul Meconi, in the Coogan building, is receiving fine stock of orchids, roses, gardenias, lilies, freesias and other bulbous stock.

Badgley & Bishop, Inc., 34 West 28th street, are now receiving fine stock of gardenias, roses, carnations and spring flowers.

At George C. Siebrecht's, 109 West 28th street, we have noticed fine stock of the tulip, Flamingo, which brings top prices.

Isaac Abrams, of Seventh avenue, Brooklyn, reports that his trade has continued remarkably good since the holidays.

Riedel & Meyer, Inc., 49 West 28th street, are receiving fine stock of yellow daisies, mignonette and sweet peas.

W. S. Allen is receiving excellent cut camellia blooms.

All are invited to bring any unusual plant or flower, or plants or flowers showing unusual excellence in cultivation. Schedules are now ready for distribution, and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York City. SUPPLY IS MUCH HEAVIER.

The supply in the market is much heavier than it was for a few weeks and as a result the market is easier than it was. Prices are tumbling fast. Shipping business is good. The supply of roses, while larger than it was, still has not increased very materially. American Beauties, however, are plentiful and of excellent quality. A heavy and good cut of carnations is coming into the market. Easter lily receipts have increased greatly. Since the heavier supply of carnations is coming into the market the demand for Paper White narcissi, jonquils and daffodils is not as large as it was. Violets and orchids are in a heavy supply while receipts in lily of the valley are fair. Other offerings include rubrums, callas, primroses and freesias.

NOTES.

American Seed Trade Association.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendell, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20-22, 1916.

GILROY, CALIF.—Mrs. L. W. Wheeler is in Honolulu for a brief vacation.

VISITED NEW YORK.—David Burpee, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

SOME New York jobbers report purchases of Lilium giganteum bulbs in London.

THE Griswold Seed Co., Lincoln, Neb., is reported sold to a Mr. Quick for about $30,000.

SEVERE and continued cold weather west of the Missouri river makes the seed trade slow and backward.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—The Oriental Seed Co. has been forced to close its doors, owing to financial troubles.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, February 2, were as follows: Timothy, $6 to $8 per 100 pounds.

LEONARD H. VAUGHAN, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, who returned from the west February 2, reports business improving in that territory.

PROMISCUOUS distribution by Michigan congressmen of free seeds furnished by the department of agriculture has been strongly condemned by the Michigan Experiment Association.

THE annual convention and exhibition of the National Canners' Association will be held at the Seelbach hotel, Louisville, Ky., February 7-12, as announced in our issue of November 20, 1915.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; A. T. Ferrell, Saginaw, Mich., returning from Hot Springs, Ariz., whither he had escorted his family for the winter.

ARNOLD RINGIER, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, reports that Mr. Barnard is now at Santa Barbara, Calif., and that his health continues to improve quite satisfactorily. Mr. Ringier says the wholesale business is unusually good.

THE new cold snap which has been developing for 10 days arrived at Chicago, February 1 and has cooled down the onion set warehouses temporarily as well as checked shipments. The warm and rainy weather from coast to coast has brought forward planting operations in all southern districts.

SANTA ANA, CALIF.—The Haven Seed Co., under date of January 31 advises as follows: "High waters have marooned most of Orange County for several days, but we will probably be receiving and forwarding mail within a few days. Flood waters have done us no damage. Rains have put the ground in excellent condition for our tomato seed crop."

SIoux CITY, IA.—J. S. Michael, of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., returned from the east January 25 and reports a very nice business in crop contract work on peas, beans and sweet corn. Prices on beans, he says, are firmer for crop contract work than last year, and sweet corn also is slightly higher owing to the high tide situation of the general corn market.

BRISTOL, PA.—Bert E. Brotherton, formerly a partner and general manager of the Peninsular Seed Co., Port Huron, Mich., severed his connection with that concern January 1, and will hereafter look after the contracting, inspection, harvesting, and preparation of peas, beans, corn and other crops for the D. Landreth Seed Co., of this place. Mr. Brotherton has had many years' experience contracting crops, principally in Michigan, Wisconsin and the Rocky Mountain growing sections, and will continue Port Huron as his place of residence.

American Onion Seed for Bermuda.

Experiments with American onion seed in Bermuda are proving so satisfactory that it is quite likely future purchases will be made from California rather than from Teneriffe, Canary Islands, which hitherto has been the exclusive source of seed for Bermuda. Consul Carl R. Loop reports that this seed was supplied gratis to the director of agriculture for Bermuda by a Los Angeles firm of seed growers.

Customs Decision on Tulips.

On January 28 the customs court, sitting in Washington, D. C., handed down a decision in the case of Maltus & Ware, versus United States. Maltus & Ware are New York importers. The collector had assessed tulip bulbs at $1 per 1,000 as tulips. The importers protested that they were properly dutiable at 50 cents per 1,000 as bulbs cultivated for the flowers. The board of general appraisers overruled the protest of the importers. The customs court reversed the decision of the board.

California Floods

San Francisco, Jan. 29.—The general storm that has raged over the Pacific coast since early Thursday has claimed a toll of not fewer than sixty lives and caused property damage amounting to millions of dollars, according to reports.

The greatest loss of life occurred in the Otay valley, south of San Diego, when the lower dam of the California Mountain Water company broke Thursday afternoon. Fifty persons, according to figures reported by the coroner's jury, lost their lives and scores are missing.

The storm tossed waters of the Pacific claimed eight lives early yesterday morning when the garbage carrier Aberdeen of Oakland, was wrecked off the San Francisco beach. The bodies have not been recovered.

Flood waters and high winds did much damage in various parts of the state. The oil districts, in particular, have suffered severely, hundreds of derricks being toppled over.

Snow fell throughout the northern part of the state. Telegraph and telephone communication was demoralized.

The storm struck the northwestern states heavily, Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana reporting cold and snow. Montana last night was shivering in what was termed the worst storm in twenty years, with the mercury from 20 to 54 degrees below zero. Railway traffic was at a standstill because of drifts and snowslides.

Flood conditions prevailed in Arizona, reports from Yuma being to the effect that the rivers above that point were swelling rapidly and that fears were entertained of a repetition of the flood of last week. Reports from Phoenix said that the Gila river was rising rapidly. Flood waters from the Colorado and Gila are expected to meet at the confluence at Yuma tomorrow morning.

Riverside, Calif., today faced a shortage of drinking water as a result of the washing out by the flood waters of the Santa Ana river of 600 feet of the water mains carrying the city's supply.

Next annual convention will be held September, 1916.

DURING the week ending January 29, imports of vegetables were received at New York as follows: 6364 crates mixed vegetables, 3846 barrels potatoes (Bermuda).

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The United States civil service commission will hold an examination in this city, February 23, to secure eligibles for the position of field agent in marketing and organization. The position carries a salary of from $1,200 to $1,600 per year.

THE Virginia Truck Experiment Station at Norfolk has issued Bulletin No. 15 entitled "Control of Injurious Aphides by Ladybirds in Tidewater Virginia." "The Pavement Ant," the pest of coldframe and greenhouse crops, is the title of Bulletin No. 16, issued by the same station.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 1.—Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 25 to 30 cents per carton; lettuce, cases 17½ to 20 cents; radishes, 40 cents to 65 cents per dozen bunches; celery, 10 to 25 cents per bunch; tomatoes, six baskets, $2.00 to $3.00; cucumbers, dozen, $1.00 to $1.50.

New York, February 1.—Celery, per bunch of 12 stalks, 15 to 50 cents; cucumbers, 90 cents to $1.12 per drum; mushrooms, $1.40 to $1.65 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 25 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.50 to $3.00; lettuce, per dozen, 15 cents to 60 cents.

White Fly.

The name "white fly" is a very innocent term for a very formidable foe or pest. While it is unknown in some parts of the country, we know it is spread over a great territory and all who have had experience dread this insect. At present we can hardly prevent distribution to all parts of the country as the free shipping of live plants and green vegetables offers complete facilities for rapid travel. The generally accepted control of this pest is cyanide gas; however, as this is a deadly poison to any living creature it is very undesirable; and we have heard of frequent injury to crops from the effect of the gas. Also it is generally understood that tobacco smoke is worthless in combating this pest. We have made many experiments and have developed some interesting facts. One of these is that tobacco smoke can be made a great help, as the fly readily becomes delirious and drops to the benches, walks and lower leaves. It is thus exposed to easy spraying. A thorough spraying with whale-oil soap and nicotine ("Black Leaf 40," "Nicotilde," "Nico-fume Liquid," or "Tobakine") will destroy the fly. However, this spray must be administered while the fly is stunned by the tobacco, as they soon recover and regain their former places under the leaves. We also find that a killing smoke is possible by using Aphis Punk or Nico-fume Papers although at some cost. Tobacco smoke in sufficient volume to destroy this insect will prove disastrous to most crops, especially to cucumbers and tomatoes. Among florists' stock, the fly is severe on pelargoniums, salvias and even geraniums. A repetition of remedies every week for some time is needed to clean up a place.

MARKETMAN..

Watermelon Anthracnose.

DISEASE PREVENTABLE BY SPRAYING.

Watermelon growers frequently suffer loss from a disease which blights the foliage and spots the fruit. The leaves are covered with irregular dark, dead spots and may die before the melons are ripe. The trouble develops on the fruit in the form of water-soaked and later sunken spots of varying size, which come to have a pink center made up of masses of the fungus spores. As the disease progresses the melons decay. This is anthracnose, and is caused by a parasitic fungus related to those which produce the apple bitter-rot and pod-spot of bean. The fungus causing watermelon anthracnose attacks cucumbers, cantaloupes and squashes, but not, as a rule, any other cultivated crops.

SPRAY WITH BORDEAUX MIXTURE.

The department of agriculture has found that the disease can be controlled by spraying with Bordeaux mixture. The methods to be employed are substantially those in use for potatoes, cucumbers, and other truck crops. Use fresh, home-made Bordeaux mixture. In preparing it follow directions exactly, as much depends on the way the ingredients are combined. Use a good spray pump, operated at a pressure of 100 pounds or more and spray thoroughly. The time of application depends on the weather and the development of the crop. The disease usually appears when the fruit is nearly grown. Watch carefully for the leaf-spot and spray as soon as any appears. In any case, make an application two weeks before maturity and a second a week later.

HOME-MADE BORDEAUX MIXTURE.

Ingredients: Copper sulfate, four pounds; quicklime, four pounds; water to make 50 gallons. Prepare the copper sulfate by suspending it in a gunny sack just below the surface of several gallons of water in a clean barrel. When the sulfate is dissolved, which requires three or four hours, remove the sack and stir into the barrel enough additional water to make exactly 25 gallons of the copper solution. Prepare the lime by slaking it slowly and thoroughly in a clean barrel, strain, and add enough additional water to make exactly 25 gallons of lime milk. Stir thoroughly. Pour the two ingredients together into another barrel, or better directly into the spray tank, if it will hold 50 gallons. It is highly important to stir the mixture very thoroughly and to strain both ingredients before they are combined, as otherwise clogging of the spray nozzles might result. Use a copper or bronze wire strainer of 18 meshes to the inch. Do not put copper sulfate or Bordeaux mixture into tin or iron vessels; use wood or copper containers. Mix the Bordeaux as needed and apply at once. It is never so good after it has settled.

To those who expect to spray on a large scale a more detailed instruction about fungicides and their application than can be given here is available in Farmers' Bulletin No. 243, published by United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Chatham, N. J.

The rose range formerly the property of Samuel Lum is now in the hands of a syndicate of those who were his creditors. Ernest Lawyer, a well known florist of Chatham, is superintendent of the greenhouses. There is a good stock of roses and they are doing well. There is one house of the red rose, Crimson Queen, which gives satisfaction as to habit and growth.

Robert Roper has a neat range and makes a specialty of smilax, growing fine stock, which he ships to the New York market. He is a cousin to Albert Roper, the well known carnation expert of Tewksbury, Mass.

David Faulkner has a good range and an established reputation as a rose grower. His stock goes to J. K. Allen, New York.

W. G. Badgley, in addition to conducting a range at this place, is active in the commission firm of Badgley & Bishop, Inc., New York. A. F. F.

"THE Bagworm, an Injurious Shade-tree Insect," is the title of Farmers' Bulletin No. 701, issued by the United States Department of Agriculture under date of January 15, 1916. Shrubs, hedges and in particular evergreens are subject to injury by this pest.

Tennessee State Nurserymen's Ass'n.

The annual meeting of the Tennessee State Nurserymen's Association was held at Nashville, January 26, the programme being a most excellent one, valuable papers on many subjects being contributed. Among the speakers were the following: T. D. Reed, Bakers; A. A. Newsom, Knoxville; H. K. Bryson, commissioner of agriculture; W. C. Reed, Vincennes, Ind.; J. D. Ellis, Dayton; John L. Jones, Columbia; Henry B. Chase, Chase, Ala.; Harry Nicholson, Winchester; A. W. Ward, Loudon; Bruce Howell, Knoxville; Miss E. B. Drake and Miss Virginia P. Moore, of the United States agricultural extension division. The importance of strawberry inspection was discussed by James E. Blake of Strawberry Plains, who called attention to the fact that Tennessee ranked second among the great strawberry producing states, the annual sales amounting to nearly a million dollars.

One of the important results of the meeting was the effort to promote a national apple show at Nashville in December, 1916, and a kindred movement to form at that time a national association of fruit growers. It was estimated that such a meeting would cost about $5,000 but it was thought that if the horticultural and floricultural interests could raise $2,000 the balance would be contributed by business interests in other lines.

W. H. Bohlender, of Peter Bohlender & Sons, Tippecanoe City, O., repeated his illustrated lecture, which was one of the pleasant features of the programme of the state florists' meeting. He also spoke of the advantage of a better understanding between nurserymen and fruit growers.

M. C. D.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The Missouri State Horticultural Society at its annual convention in this city elected the following officers for 1916: H. C. Irish, St. Louis, president; G. T. Tippen, of Nichols, and A. D. Killham, Mountain Grove, vice-president; H. S. Wyman, Princeton, secretary; W. T. Flourney, Marionville, treasurer.

Connecticut Horticultural Society.

Friday evening, January 28, was "carnation night" with the Connecticut Horticultural Society, and in response to the notification previously sent out by the secretary, a number of the members made displays of general excellence. Splendid vases of Enchantress, Rose Pink Enchantress, Enchantress Supreme, White Enchantress, Gorgeous, Alice, Benora, Beacon and White Wonder were all much admired and reflected much credit on the exhibitors, Professor M. W. Jacobus (Alfred Cebelius, Gr.) and Mrs. Jas. Goodwin (John F. Huss, Supt.). Red Wing, another splendid variety, was another vase that attracted much attention. This display was arranged by G. W. Fraser of the Connecticut Agricultural College for William A. Dawson of Willimantic, Conn. Two sport carnations, one vase of each, both meritorious, were staged by Theo. Staudt of Rockville, whose display of Daffodil Sir Watkin was also noteworthy.

President Hollister appointed Fred Boss, A. Righenzi and C. H. Sierman as judges for the evening and they awarded a first class certificate each to John F. Huss, Alfred Cebelius and Wm. A. Dawson in the carnation division, and the exhibit of the last named was also ordered entered upon the minutes as worthy of special mention for excellence.

Following the awards, President Hollister read an article entitled, "Jackson T. Dawson, His Work and His Workshop," which was a brief history of the life work of that well-known authority, and this was followed by a talk by John F. Huss who told reminiscences of his acquaintance with the man who has accomplished so much for horticulture. The meeting was thoroughly enjoyed from start to finish by all present. The next meeting will take place February 11.

ALFRED DIXON, Sec'y.

"EASY TO SELL BECAUSE MADE SO WELL."

Providence, R. I.

Trade the past week has been brisk; floral work of all kinds keeping all the stores busy. With the advent of some very warm weather, the high prices that had prevailed since the first of the year, were broken, and all stock was sold at a low price. Carnations that sold for $4 and $5 per 100 sold as low as $1.50 and $2 per 100. The rose market has been off crop for some time and the prices seem to hold about the same although there seems to be a little increase in the supply. Sweet peas are coming better every day and sell well. Daffodils are getting more plentiful and are dropping slowly in price.

NOTES.

Saturday being McKinley day and "carnation day" it offered a chance for some window displays of carnations, and consequently the trade disposed of large quantities of that flower. There were also sales of violets at 15 cents and 19 cents per bunch.

Macnair is now making a showing of large azaleas, some of the larger plants measuring four and five feet across the top. These are his own importation, and are some of the finest to be seen anywhere.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island held its annual entertainment and supper, January 24, with about 30 members present. Every one in attendance voted that they had a very enjoyable time.

Howard Almy made one of the largest cuts of violets January 29 that he has made this year.

Boston Bowling.

The Boston florists' bowling league meeting, Thursday, January 27, was one of the most exciting of the season. P. L. Carbone's team now occupies second place, being one game ahead of the Boston Co-operative Flower Market. These two teams roll together at the next meeting and it is needless to say that it will be an interesting match. The "boys" of the Flower Exchange presented the league with a handsome silver cup to be presented to the member rolling the highest three consecutive strings during the season. The standing is as follows:

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Bedding Plants.

When a grower has a good supply of cuttings at his command, it is a comparatively easy matter for him to work up a big stock of bedding plants.
It is therefore essential that the stock plants, which are expected to furnish the cuttings, be given every encouragement to do so from now on, so that the propagating can be finished up in time to allow the young plants season enough to make strong healthy stock for the time of planting out. It is generally a very busy season when the stock plants are brought in in the fall, and in the hurry they are set in the first available space, sometimes in the out of the way corners, and many times along the edge of the walks or underneath the benches. These places will do when they are partly dormant and there is not any hurry for the cuttings, but after February 1 every day is valuable time and the sooner the cuttings are in shape for propagating the better are the prospects for working up a nice lot of bedding plants.

Clean up the stock plants, removing any decayed foliage, and make sure the drainage of the pots is all right.
Give the plants a light airy place where they will receive daily attention to their needs. The list of bedding plants comprise a large variety of different plants, nearly all of which are very susceptible to attack by green fly, red spider, mealy bug or some other insect which makes the work of keeping the stock plants clean one of great importance. Many of the bedding plants, with their tender growth, are easily injured by strong fumigating, and the best plan is to fumigate lightly and regularly, setting aside one evening each week or ten days for the work.

Care should be taken not to allow the shoots to become drawn and spindly, and such quick growing plants, like coleus, ageratum, etc., which need not be propagated for a month or six weeks yet should have the tips of the shoots nipped out to encourage them to throw out more cuttings lower down. Any stock plants badly rootbound should be repotted in a live soil to encourage them to get into action quickly.

Careful watering is one of the most important parts of caring for these plants; they should receive water only as they are in need of it. If kept extra wet at the roots the cuttings are full of moisture, turn yellow and are more apt to dampen off in the propagating bed.

PROPAGATING.

The propagating house ought to be in full swing from now on turning out the rooted cuttings until all the stock needed is provided for. A clean, sharp sand, with a regulated bottom heat, are important features to be arranged for, and when these are taken care of the propagating should be pushed along. Cuttings of geraniums, fuchsias, marguerites, alternantheras and any other plants that need a long season to be worked up into salable plants are the first that should receive attention, then as the time comes, within the next six or eight weeks, the coleus, sweet alys-sums, lobelias, petunias, etc., can be taken care of. When the conditions are right, cuttings of this class of plants root very quickly, the principal thing being to watch closely that they do not wilt from any cause, or that the propagating bed does not get wet enough to cause the cuttings to dampen before root action takes place.
After the cuttings are rooted they should be potted up without any delay and not allowed to remain in the sand long enough to force the growth.

SOWING SEED.

It is now time the seeds of most of the various plants for bedding purposes were sown. The first on the list is pansies for late flowering; if this seed is not yet sown, it should be attended without any further delay. It will take all the time between now and Memorial day to get them in flower for that occasion. Lobelias, salvias, celosias, verbenas, petunias, bellis and antirrhinums can also be sown now—all of these are best sown in shallow flats, using a warm, fine soil with a liberal amount of fresh, sharp sand added to it. Be particular not to cover the seed too deep—just enough to cover the seed according to its size is all the covering they should have. A little common sense in watering these seed boxes is very important; it is safest to keep the soil just moist, neither the extreme of dryness or dampness. Bedding begonias of the Vernon variety and Centaurea candidissima should also be sown now; these two varieties of plants are slow to germinate, and if possible, should have a little bottom heat to hustle them along. Our method used in raising these plants is to fit up a part of the propagating bed with soil and sow the seed onto this, and as soon as the young seedlings become large enough to handle, instead of transplanting into other flats, they are potted singly in one-inch pots and kept rather warm to encourage them to make quick root action.

TRANSPLANTING.

As soon as the young seedlings are large enough to handle, they should be taken from the seed boxes and transplanted into other flats. It is important that the transplanting be done when the seedlings are just ready; if it is delayed the seedlings become drawn and considerable loss from damping takes place. A fine soil with a liberal amount of clean, sharp sand is the best material to use, and after the transplanting is done, set the flats on shelves, shading them for a day or two should the weather be very bright, after which they should be allowed full light and plenty of air on favorable occasions, taking particular pains with the watering, keeping the soil in a moist condition at all times, but not allowing any extremes.

POTTING.

There is a lot of this work to be done now. The fall propagated geraniums held over winter in 2½-inch pots, should now be shifted into 3-inch, and if not enough stock of these plants are on hand, they can be allowed to stretch out so that a cutting can be taken off, but if not needed, the tips should be pinched out before potting. The rooted cuttings from the sand should also be potted as soon as ready, and now is a good time to overhaul and pot any vase plants, like dracenas, phormiums, etc.; also, hydrangeas, roses and other spring flowering plants.

C. W. JOHNSON.

JOLIET, ILL.—Heaton Nichols, who is again at the store after an attack of grip, reports good business right through since the holidays.

HOUSTON, TEX.—Louis Buchner, formerly grower at the Brazos Greenhouses, has gone into business for himself and will conduct a wholesale establishment on Hutchins street.

BELLEVILLE, ILL.—A severe wind storm, January 27, caused a loss of several thousand dollars, the greenhouses of the St. Clair Floral Co. and those of E. W. Guy suffering severe damage.

AMHERST, MASS.—Students in conservatory plants at the Massachusetts Agricultural College will be required to know and be able to identify about 250 species and genera of decorative plants as part of the final examination in the course.

Minnesota State Seal in Flowers.

As a rule we are opposed to the use of flowers in freak designs but knowing that florists are frequently called upon to supply productions of this character, even in opposition to their best judgment and advice, we reproduce herewith a representation of the seal of the state of Minnesota done in flowers and foliage by Holm & Olson, of St. Paul, which shows much good taste and superior workmanship. This design was slightly over eight feet high, weighed 200 pounds and 2½ bales of sphagnum were used for filling. The principal kinds of stock employed included magnolia leaves, cycas leaves, asparagus, small plants of erica, carnations, violets, narcissi and stevia. The design was for the funeral of the late Gov. Hammond, of Minnesota.

This firm reports unusually good business since the holidays, the great trouble having been to secure sufficient stock to carry on their business properly. Similar conditions, it is added, prevail throughout the northwest.

The Cigarette Bouquet.

At first glance this arrangement appears an absurdity—a bunch of nonsense. It is, however, complete and novel and has the merit of being sure to attract attention when displayed. It is also practical, in the fact that a slight pull will release a cigarette and a match, which may be lighted by being struck on a portion of the chemical surface of the box which is attached to the ribbon on the handle. The center of the bunch is a boutonniere, a gardenia or carnation, as the case may be. This is also easily removed and is found ready for use.

The construction is very simple. To "stem" the cigarettes run a straight wire about 1½ inches into one end; this is sufficient to hold them. The boutonniere has an outside lining of foil which is lightly wound with the stemming wire, so that the flower may be easily pulled out when desired. The useful matches add variety and the bunch is further embellished with all inscribed parts of the box, which are cut into strips. The stamps must be included, as they add color and are very noticeable, even the paper and tin foil lining, when stemmed in little knots and tassels, make an attractive addition. The gold tipped brands are the showiest, but any kind is suitable. The demand for this novelty comes generally from ladies, who send them to their gentlemen friends.

Bouquets of cigars are also easily arranged, either end being wrapped with foil and stemmed by wrapping the wire around. These make a much more elaborate and expensive affair.

The accompanying illustration gives a good idea of a miniature colonial cigarette bouquet. These must always be finished with a lace paper of the proper size and tied with a narrow ribbon. The best is such as are used by tobacco factories.

Decorative Selling Features.

Flowering and foliage plants are attractive in themselves and as a rule are good stock to carry, owing to the more or less constant demand. There are many retail dealers, however, who think that with the exception of Christmas or Easter, they are not profitable, the attention they require and the loss from unsold stock more than offsetting the profit. To handle plants successfully requires good judgment in buying, with an intimate knowledge of the store's requirements. The assortment must be kept fresh; unsalable plants are a detriment and should be put out of sight at once. One dozen fresh, perfect plants are worth more than twice the number of those which have begun to show signs of decay.

In retailing plants and flowers too much attention cannot be given to details; the business is carried on with very perishable, short-lived stock and every article offered should always be at its very best. While well flowered or foliage plants are beautiful in themselves, they can be made more attractive and have additional selling points with the aid of decorative material, such as crepe paper, to conceal the pot, or a square of white paper of sufficient size, which, when the pot is placed in the center, can be drawn up and tied on with silver cord, or ribbon the color of the flower. An inside lining of paper, the color of, or one which will harmonize with the bloom, makes a plant more attractive and gives additional selling value at a trifling cost. Low priced baskets in various colored enamels, with high handles, to which ribbons may be tied, add considerably to the appearance of a plant. An imitation handle of wire covered with crepe paper, stuck down into the pot, will, when tied with a bow of ribbon, give the plant the appearance of a basket. The accompanying illustration of a cyclamen in a four-inch pot shows a plant with a wire handle.

Cheap, pliable, straw hats make good covers for pots; they are easy of adjustment and present an appearance not unlike Porto Rican mats. Handles are also made of pussy willow sprays, which bend easily. Boxes of tulips with crepe paper covers can be given a springlike appearance with arches of pussy willow sprays. Butterflies, bird sticks, and balancing birds are attractive if used with care. All these features are selling points in that they serve to arrest the attention and cause buyers to become interested in plants that might otherwise pass unnoticed. The proper displaying of plants in quantity is very essential to their quick selling; two or three articles of a kind may stand around without being noticed, while two dozen in a block together will produce a color effect that is compelling and sales result.

There is now obtainable from Japan a fern stem pot cover, of a size to fit all high or low standard pots; these are so cheap that they can be given away with the plant and are well worth carrying in stock. A line of jardinières often help to sell plants, as when displayed in these receptacles, they are doubly attractive.

FLORISTS' FERNS.

Sowing Spores.

The early part of January is the period in which the spores are sown for the fern crop that will provide the plants for the use of the retail florist during next autumn and winter, and it is therefore most important that this sowing shall be carefully made and looked after.

Sterilized soil is used by some growers for filling the seed pots or pans, a light and somewhat sandy mixture being prepared for this purpose, abundant drainage material placed in the bottom of the clean pots that have been provided for the job, the soil being pressed down firmly and smoothly, then well watered, and in the course of an hour or so the seed pots will be ready for sowing. The spores are sown very thinly on the surface of the soil, it being advisable to do the sowing in a place that is free from draughts, as otherwise the dust-like spores will blow about, and the pots are then ready to be put away on the bench they are to occupy, preferably a partially shaded position in a house kept at a night temperature of 60° to 65°.

The pots should be covered with panes of glass to avoid too rapid drying of the soil, for only sub-watering may be given before the seedlings reach a very visible size. Considerable care is required throughout these early stages of fern growing, in order to provide just the right conditions of moisture to promote the growth of the tiny seedlings without keeping them so close as to start fungus among them, and even the most expert grower may have his calculations upset by a long period of dark and muggy weather.

The time required for the germination of the spores varies with different species, and while some of the pteris may show signs of growth in a few days, there are other species that will be several weeks before germinating. After the seedlings are large enough to handle, not singly, but in small patches, another very tedious operation begins, being that of transplanting the seedlings from the seed pots to shallow boxes or flats, and in the latter they will remain until they are large enough to be potted off, the latter being one of the mid-summer jobs for most fern growers. There is a good deal of labor attached to these operations, though it is not of a hard character, and to those whose business only requires a limited number of small ferns it is probably better to buy the young ferns in flats from some specialist, rather than to run the risk of failure in these preliminary operations.

Several of the adiantums that are much used in the trade are not easy to get in quantity from spores, and such varieties are propagated by division. Among these are A. Croweanum, an excellent variety for cut fronds, and bears some resemblance to A. decorum; A. Farleyense, which is now so well-known as to need no special description at this time; A. hybridum, this being another of the decorum character, and A. gloriosum, although the latter variety is said to produce some spores, and also to come true from seed. The division of these varieties is preferably done in the early spring, for at this period the divisions start away much more readily, and soon make suitable stock for planting out on the benches.

Where a considerable stock of these plants are required, it is customary to divide the crowns into very small portions, all fronds being cut off the old plants, and the divisions are planted in close rows in flats, the latter being placed in the propagating house, and given careful attention in the matter of water and ventilation until they are sufficiently started to admit of being potted off into small pots. In case one has an overplus of some of the pteris of the cretica group at this season, and the plants are becoming too long in the stems to be useful for table work, some of them may be utilized by potting three or four plants together in a 4-inch or 5-inch pot, thus getting another growth on these otherwise starved plants, and making them useful either for retail sales or for use in window boxes.

Fourth National Flower Show.

PHILADELPHIA, MARCH 25-APRIL 2.

A most cheering feature, incident to the preparations for the opening of the national flower show next month, is the great interest in the undertaking shown by out-of-town florists and horticulturists. From the many communications received by this office, it is quite evident that the show will attract men in the trade from all over the country. At the last national flower show, it will be remembered, there was little cause for complaint as to the out-of-town patronage, but it looks as though the Philadelphia show will eclipse all previous records as to this element of the attendance. The various railroads throughout the country are taking a surprising interest in the affair, and are doing their best to organize traveling parties from different routing points. Secretaries of the different florists' clubs and societies should at once get in touch with the heads of their respective railroad departments, with a view to obtaining advantageous party rates for travel to Philadelphia.

The final schedule of premiums will be issued soon after February 15, and will be the most liberal schedule ever published for a flower show in this country, covering, as it will, premiums amounting to over $20,000. In the new schedule, a large number of special prizes will appear, donated by various people, enthusiasts along floricultural lines. The national flower show committee is still soliciting offers of special prizes for the various classes scheduled, in order to reduce the premium responsibility as much as possible. Offers made now will be mentioned in the final schedule, with due credit to donors. The schedule committee will, about February 15, meet to settle upon the days for staging cut flowers, such as roses, carnations, sweet peas, etc., and announcement of the fixtures decided upon will be made as soon as possible after the date of the meeting.

The trade section will be a most important feature of the show, and without doubt will be the largest exhibition of its kind ever staged in America. The big trade exhibition of the 1913 national flower show is already eclipsed, the number of exhibitors, and the amount of space reserved beating the 1913 record fully 25 per cent. The greenhouse builders are well represented, King Construction Co., John C. Moninger Co., Lord & Burnham Co., Hitchings & Co., Metropolitan Material Co., all having arranged for displays, while the greenhouse auxiliary lines will be represented by such concerns as the Kroeschell Bros. Co., John A. Evans Co., Spencer Heater Co., Pfaltzgraff Pottery Co., Hammond Paint & Slug Shot Works, Voltax Paint & Varnish Co., and others. The representation of lawn mower manufacturers is larger than ever this year, extensive exhibits being expected from the Coldwell Lawn Mower Co., S. P. Townsend & Co., Ideal Power Lawn Mower Co., and the Pennsylvania Lawn Mower Co.

In florists' supply lines will be found exhibits from H. Bayersdorfer & Co., M. Rice & Co., A. L. Randall Co., Edwards Folding Box Co., J. G. Neidinger, S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Schloss Bros., and others. Plantmen and seed and bulb dealers are well represented through Henry F. Michell Co., Henry A. Dreer, Inc., A. N. Pierson, Inc., Jos. Heacock Co., Inc., Arthur Cowee, J. L. Dillon, F. R. Pierson, W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Geo. L. Stillman, S. S. Skidelsky & Co., Robert Craig Co., Conard & Jones Co., Julius Roehrs Co., R. & J. Farquhar & Co., W. K. Harris, Knight & Struck Co., B. Hammond Tracy, B. D. Rapteyn & Son and C. H. Totty.

At this show, the nurserymen will make a strong showing in the trade section. Among those exhibiting will be Thos. Meehan & Sons, Bobbink & Atkins, Andorra Nurseries, J. G. Harrison and Sons, and Adolph Mueller. Among the miscellaneous exhibitors are: Bon Arbor Chemical Co., plant foods; Alphano Humus Co., humus; Cloche Co., plant forcers; Richmond Cedar Works, plant tubs; Galloway Terra Cotta Co., garden accessories; Gude Bros. Co., specimens; Florists' Exchange, books; Kirke Chemical Co., plant food and appliances; New York Stable Manure Co., fertilizers; Stratford Flower Farms, fancy plant stock; A. W. Smith Co., landscape work, and Miniature Building Co., children's garden toys.

The retailers' section will be well filled; reservations have already been made by John C. Gracey, John Kuhn, Harry S. Betz, London Flower Shop, and Chas. Grakelow. Institutions interested in horticulture will also be represented, among them the School of Horticulture for Women, and the Women's National Horticultural and Agricultural Society.

FIRST ANNUAL DINNER OF ASSOCIATED RETAIL FLORISTS, INC., AND GREEK-AMERICAN FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.
Hotel Breslin, New York, January 31, 1916.

Prospective exhibitors and firms who have unfortunately been prevented from making reservations through lack of space, which has been a serious obstacle for many weeks, will no doubt, be glad to avail themselves of the large area of additional space recently becoming available for trade exhibits. This space is situated, at the rear of what formerly was the stage, but is now a continuous part of the main floor, reached by both center and side aisles. It is here that the aquarium society will have their display exhibit, and the exhibits of aquarium accessories will be located. In taking over the construction work, decorations and equipment from the automobile show, the committee finds itself in possession of an area splendidly adapted for exhibits of a miscellaneous character, reservations in which can be made on very liberal terms. Visitors at the automobile show will remember the section as that where the exhibitors of automobile accessories were located, and where there was at all times congregated a large and interested crowd.

Chairman Kleinheinz of the committee on exhibits has done yeoman work in interesting private growers to stage exhibits, and it looks as though the classes will be generously filled. At least four entries for the rose garden contest are in sight, and the success of this important feature of the exhibition is virtually assured. The American Rose Society has raised about $1,500 in special premiums, which is considered as a material help as regards the premiums' responsibility in the rose section. The American Carnation Society has raised about $500 for a similar purpose, and it is expected that the American Sweet Pea Society and the American Gladiolus Society will render similar assistance. The final schedule will contain a class to cover exhibits of aquatics, a special prize for which has been donated by the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago. This class will form another distinctive feature of the show.

The carnation section will be well filled, and it is expected will embrace all the novelties now under consideration by our leading carnation growers. It should not be forgotten that the carnation exhibits will form a complete show in themselves, and will really be the jubilee exhibition of the American Carnation Society, a special silver medal having been struck by the society for award to practically all the winners of blue ribbons.

Chairman F. Cowperthwaite of the committee on information, whose address is 518 Market street, Philadelphia, has mapped out several trips among the florist establishments in and around Philadelphia for those who wish to visit the same, and his committee will be prepared to lend every assistance in the way of information which may be required. This department will have a number of paid assistants who will act as guides at the show and be continually at the service of all seeking enlightenment. The Florists' Telegraph Delivery is to make an exhibit that ought to speak volumes for the service it is exploiting. It will have two booths, to represent the sending, receiving and filling of florists' orders by wire.

Florists on the lookout for unusual effects in decorations for large functions will be interested in the installation of a big electric fountain, which will be in operation throughout the show. The ladies who have taken an interest in the show, and are to operate the tea garden, are holding weekly meetings at the Ritz-Carlton hotel in Philadelphia, and perfecting some elaborate plans for their department. The young ladies who are to officiate during the show period will be costumed to conform to the general effect aimed for. An orchestra of 36 pieces will present a splendid musical program twice daily, and will be stationed at a point furnishing the best acoustic possibilities.

Sectional and sister societies desiring to have booths or stands at which they can look after the interests of their respective organizations will be accorded space on the balcony floors for the purpose. Arrangements are being made for quarters for Miss Jarvis, founder of the Mothers' Day Association, and the actual founder of Mothers' day, a day of much interest to florists, which booth will be presided over by Miss Jarvis in person.

The work of compiling the official souvenir programme is well under way, and the pages to be set apart for trade advertising are being taken up in a satisfactory manner. To meet the wishes of many of the advertisers and Philadelphia interests, it has been decided to charge ten cents for all copies of the programme distributed in the exhibition hall. The rest of the circulation will be gratuitous as previously arranged. Chairman Therkild-son of the committee on publicity has arranged to have copies of the programme on every dining, buffet club, and parlor car arriving in Philadelphia during the show.

Chairman E. J. Fancourt of the committee on trade tickets reports a considerable number of these tickets already taken up and without a doubt, the demand for the whole issue contemplated will materialize. Tuesday, March 28, has been decided upon as the day when the New York Florists' Club with its guests will visit the show, and this day will be known as New York day. The club's committee in charge, with A. L. Miller as chairman, is perfecting arrangements for transportation and a dinner en route to Convention hall. It is expected that at least 400 persons will comprise this party.

PLANT NOTES.

Genistas.

The plants of genistas should now be making their blooming growth and no further pinching will be necessary except in the case of long, strong growths which sometimes break from the stem and thereby spoil the symmetry of the plant, and these should be cut back as soon as they grow beyond the other flowering shoots. They can now be bloomed in succession by moving some into a warmer house, but those that are wanted at Easter are still better left in a cool house, one with a temperature of 45 degrees being the one that will produce the best results. These plants are never partial to great heat, reveling in a cool atmosphere, and often when taken into the warm living rooms where the air is extremely dry will soon drop their leaves. Those that are being grown to certain shapes, such as the balls, pyramids or baskets, will doubtless require some pinching back yet, but this should be done with great care or the flowering buds will be removed. A close examination of the tip of the shoot will clearly show whether the buds are forming and when this occurs all pinching must be immediately stopped. Any blind wood or extra strong growths that are cut out may be made into cuttings and young stock obtained. These will root much better in a cool propagating bench than in one where the bottom heat is confined. When the plants are full of bloom they will require heavy watering, and do not place them in a dry warm location for any great length of time.

Verbenas.

The verberna makes a very satisfactory bedding plant if properly grown, but the thin, spindly plants produced from late grown seed and planted in flats and baskets as closely together as is possible in order that they may be sold at a cheap price, seldom make any showing in the beds until very late in summer. The seeds should be sown early enough that the plants may be stopped and branched and grown in pots, and one plant so grown will make more showing during the season than half a dozen of the poor plants so freely offered at the spring sales. It is really better to buy the rooted cuttings of selected varieties that are advertised at this time than to sow seed after the middle of February. Seed sown up to this date, however, can be grown on to make fine plants. Care must be exercised in the germination of the seed, which is often blamed for the carelessness or lack of knowledge of the grower, for the seed damps off very easily when it germinates, being very sensitive to any change in temperature and moisture. Until they begin to make growth, the plants should be watched carefully, never allowed to become dry, or exposed to any draughts.

Pelargoniums.

While all the plants so well known as geraniums are pelargoniums, yet it is the show or fancy type called by many Lady Washington geraniums that are generally known under this name. The plants that are wanted in bloom in April and May will now be in their blooming pots and beginning to show their blooming growths, but for June and July flowering the plants should now be shifted to the blooming pots, five or six-inch as the plants may require, except with large specimens, of which few are now seen. They like a turfy, coarse loam, to which may be added one-fourth well rotted manure, and if the soil is heavy a liberal amount of sharp sand to keep it open, and the plants should be potted very firmly. A cool, well-ventilated house should be selected for growing them, and until the days grow warmer and brighter they should be watered sparingly. In early spring, when they are well covered with foliage and the blooming shoots begin to grow, more water will be needed. A little stopping may be necessary if the plants send forth strong, long growths, to make the plant shapely, but care and judgment should be used in this operation, which should cease upon the appearance of the bud shoots, which are easily distinguished by the different manner of growth. Do not attempt to take any cuttings at this time, for after the plants are through blooming is the best time for propagation, and any cuttings taken now are pretty sure to rob the plants of the bloom. These plants are very subject to attacks of both red spider and green fly, and should be fumigated or sprayed regularly. As the extremely hot, dry days of summer approach a slight shade will be found very beneficial to both the plant and flowers.

Antirrhinums.

The grower of antirrhinums has an opportunity now to select the best plants from which to propagate the stock for another year, as the plants are now producing fine spikes and it is possible to select the best types. Those that have fine large flowers set closely together on the stem, and yet not close enough to crowd, are to be preferred. The earliness of blooming is another matter to take into consideration. It will be found in raising these plants from seed that there is a great difference in their time of blooming, and for winter flowering the earliest that there are of good type should be chosen. There are plenty of good cuttings to be obtained now, for the laterals which grow from the axil of each leaf make the best cuttings and the flower is enlarged by their removal. Plants that are in bloom will be benefited greatly from now on by feeding either with liquid manure or a strong mulch, and the next growth thinned to eight or ten shoots, which will insure a much better crop for spring cutting than to allow all the small shoots to grow.

Keep the plants tied erect all the time, for it takes but a few hours' sun to draw the tip up from a stem that leans away from the center, with the result that a crooked stem is formed, which greatly impairs its appearance. These spikes of bloom should be handled very carefully, especially the long sprays, for they are very brittle and break easily. It is better not to cut too many at once. When cutting hold them with the heads hanging down, and when there are as many as can be easily held in the hand, cut, take them at once to the flower room, trim off all surplus growth and tie the stems a dozen in a bunch, then loosely tie strings around the center and toward the top of the bunch, and place the stems in a deep jar of water. This prevents crooked stems, so often seen, for the plant continues its growth after being cut, and if allowed to hang away from the jar the blooms grow crooked.

Sowbug Remedies.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please advise as to the best way to exterminate sowbugs. K. F. C.

In the treatment of sowbugs poisoned baits are standard remedies. The great fondness of sowbugs for potatoes long ago led to these being used, poisoned either with Paris green or London purple. The potatoes are sliced and a thin covering of powder applied. Sprinkling the soil around an injured plant with Paris green, or dusting the same under boards and other haunts of the sowbugs is also very effective.

In addition to Paris green and London purple, arsenate of lead may be used. There is no danger from the use of any of these arsenicals, if they are not sprinkled or sprayed on the plants. A still cheaper substitute for Paris green is white arsenic, which is quite inexpensive; it is, however, dangerous to apply it to delicate plants. One or two tablespoonfuls of white arsenic to a bucketful of bran, sweetened with a quart of syrup or molasses and the mixture sprinkled about the beds will prove very effective in the control of these creatures.

If the sowbugs are injurious in a cultivated patch—after treating the ordinary haunts—it is best to keep the ground well broken and raked to prevent clodding and cracking, which gives them protection. Old boards, cans and rubbish should not be allowed to accumulate. Such precautions will tend greatly to prevent any great damage or annoyance.

F. H. C.

From time to time we notice inquiries about how to get rid of sowbugs and the remedy always given is some kind of poison. Now, a few years ago we were simply being eaten up with sowbugs, for every one killed with poison ten would come to the funeral, till we did not know what to do to save our plants. We just happened to try Slug-Shot, which simply exterminated them and by always keeping it on hand we have kept them down ever since. It is a cheap preparation, a five pound bag will go over a hundred-foot house. We just sift it on tables and under the tables. It will surely kill them, large and small. Be sure and go over the house carefully and sift on all available space. Be sure and use it in the evening when the foliage is dry. D. M. TIPTON.

SALEM, N. J.—H. E. West has opened a flower shop in the Patterson block.

New York Spring Show.

APRIL 5-12, 1916.

The flower show committee is gradually bringing to completion the final schedule of premiums to be awarded at the New York flower show, and it is expected that it will be ready for distribution about March 1. Numerous additions to the classes as set forth in the premium schedule have been made, and quite a number of special prizes will be announced. The committee on special premiums of the New York Florists' Club, F. L. Atkins, chairman, is meeting with considerable success in its efforts to influence the donation of prizes, and it is hoped by the end of the month all who intend to assist the show in this way will communicate their desires to the committee or to the secretary. A similar committee from the Horticultural Society of New York, F. R. Newbold, chairman, is doing like work in its own field. It has been arranged that trade tickets for admission to the show shall be supplied at the same rates as last year, and all applications for same must be made to the secretary.

The official souvenir programme is in course of preparation. The edition will be placed on sale during the show at the price of 10 cents per copy. The programme this year will show considerable improvement over the publication of last year. Exhibition Manager Herrington is making frequent trips among prospective exhibitors, and his reports are quite enthusiastic as to the support promised, and it would seem that there need be no apprehension that the show will be anything but a huge success and much superior to the show of last year. The trade section, too, promises to greatly excel that of last year, the reservations already made showing a considerable increase in the number of exhibitors.

The ladies will again operate the tea garden, the proceeds to go for the purposes of charity, to be announced later, and the whole of the east end of the second floor has been relegated to their use. They are very busy just now promulgating ideas, and it is expected that their plans when matured will cover some novel features in the way of entertainment and service.

The committee has had prepared a "sticker" or stamp poster, to be used on trade stationery, and is sending supplies of these stamps to all who will use them. If any of our friends who can use a supply of these stamps will communicate with the secretary the same will be sent, and the committee will greatly appreciate the courtesy of their use. Two of the great feature classes of the show will be very creditably filled, it is pleasing to know. At least five entries are promised for the class covering rose gardens, and there are to be three entries in the rock garden class.

The work of obtaining publicity for the show has been placed in the hands of the Korbel-Colwell organization, which very creditably gave the same service last year. It has been arranged that the booth of the Horticultural Society of New York shall be located on the second floor of the Palace, instead of the main floor as formerly, this making their old location available for trade exhibits. About February 15 the committee will decide upon the days to be set apart for the exhibits in the cut flower sections, roses, carnations, sweet peas, etc., and proper announcement of same will be made as soon as possible after a decision is come to.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

State Florists' Association of Indiana.

The monthly meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was held at Lafayette, the members being the guests of Fred Dorner & Sons Co. The attendance numbered about 35, and all present were much interested in this firm's seedling carnations. Perhaps the grandest sight on the place was Carnation Nancy, the new salmon pink, which is being introduced by this firm this year. The blooms are of good average size, of fine texture on long stems. It seems to be a wonderful producer. Another noteworthy variety, much commented upon was Rosalia, a beautiful cerise pink, which is quite an improvement on Rosette. This variety will be sent out next year with the new variety, Old Gold. Hundreds of new seedlings in every shade of color were seen and admired, and quite a number showed improvement over the standard sorts. One particularly noteworthy variety was No. 45-13, a dazzling red, very free grower and a perfect calyx. No. 125-12 was another variety that the visitors were much interested in. This was a very light pink early and free. This stock will be increased and if it shows no bad effects will be sent out later.

Carnations were not the only things that were well grown at the Dorner establishment. The roses were all in first-class shape and showed excellent culture. After an inspection of the greenhouses, the visitors were taken by autos to the Lafayette Club, where everyone enjoyed a splendid dinner.

Boston.MARKET SHOWS IMPROVED TONE.

The market took an unexpected turn for the better during the latter part of the week, and consequently prices advanced on the lilies that had fallen off. Roses stand out prominent as the most staple article on sale, prices ranging from $6 per 100 on nine inch grades up to $2 per dozen. Carnations during the first part of the week were hard to move at $1.50 per 100, but Friday and Saturday they easily brought $3. White and pink varieties are in demand, crimson being the slow selling color. Bulbous stock is coming into prominence, Golden Spur being in good demand at $2 and $2.50 per 100. Tulips sell fairly well, good stock bringing $2 per 100. Violets and sweet peas are selling rather slow, but the supply is not very large and they clean up fairly well.

NOTES.

McAlpine Bros., of Exeter, N. H., are cutting a good crop of roses. They have some very fine Ophelia, Ward, Sunburst and Killarney. They also have a nice lot of the new rose, Hoosier Beauty. Business at their wholesale store at 253 Devonshire street is very good now, a large quantity of Valentine specialties being handled.

R. Peterson, of Saxonville, is cutting a nice lot of snapdragons and myosotis, as well as carnations. He plants the snapdragons along the edges of his carnation beds and as yet has noticed no ill effects from this practice.

Philip L. Carbone has added a new motor truck to his delivery service. The truck is of the heavy car type and is used to transport the larger and heavier articles which he sells, such as statuary and garden ornaments.

Arthur Leibman is handling the output of John Fee, of Jamaica Plain, as Mr. Fee is laid up with a disagreeable rash caused by bulbs. He has at present some very fine Golden Spurs and tulips.

The Halifax Garden Co., of Halifax, Mass., is cutting a large crop of carnations. Their Enchantress Supreme, Ward, Matchless and Beacon are of exceptional quality.

Louis Small, of Tewksbury, is cutting about 10,000 batchelor buttons per week, many of which he ships to New York and Philadelphia.

Penn. the Florist, has added a new delivery car to his service.

Buffalo.WEEK OF FAIR BUSINESS.

The weather the past week has been favorable and everyone in the trade has been suited. Although there was nothing startling in trade conditions, there were several wedding orders though not of large proportions and a number of dinners, bridge parties and receptions, which while elaborately written up in the society columns of the newspapers, describing the elegant displays of spring flowers, in reality the orders generally consisted of a dozen of tulips and a like number of daffodils and plenty of green hustled from one room to another and made to do double service. Funeral work has been quite brisk and has helped to use up the surplus. Carnations are becoming more plentiful and tulips, daffodils and hyacinths are welcome additions both in cut flowers and plants. Roses are not in abundance. There are just about enough to go around with no surplus from day to day. American Beauties are entirely off crop. Lily of the valley, orchids and gardenias are equal to the demands. Violets are quoted at $1 per 100 for the best, but much stock is offered on the streets at 25 cents per bunch and the department stores and some florists feature them at this price at Saturday sales, with no delivery or ribbon included.

NOTES.

The nomination of officers of the florists' club has brought out several candidates who aspire for the president's office this year, among them being Robert Scott, L. H. Neubeck, E. C. Brucker, Frank C. Baum. Other candidates for other offices are W. J. Peake, Chas. Ginther and W. H. Grever for vice-president; Oliver Klunkenmeyer, Leo. Neubeck and Edward Stratmeyer for financial secretary; William Legg for secretary and Wallace Eiss for treasurer. A banquet will be held election night and it is expected considerable political activity will be displayed by several of the younger aspirants for office. This should be encouraged and should one "has been" be elected president, it would no doubt result in "Billy" Kasting or Andy Adams thinking that they might "come back." Of course this is a free country and if such should be the case the club would know it and there would be a meeting at least once a year aside from election night. But wait until March 7.

It is expected that about 10 from this city will attend the New York State Federation of Horticultural and Floral Clubs at Ithaca this week. The meeting will be held at Cornell University. Assemblyman Miller of Erie county has introduced a bill providing for the appropriation of $60,000 for greenhouses at the university, and it is hoped that the bill will pass and have the approval of the governor.

S. A. Anderson and wife have returned from St. Louis and Colorado Springs.

BISON.

Minneapolis.

Cold weather prevails, with the mercury near the zero mark and a heavy covering of snow on the ground. Roses are limited in supply and not equal to the demand. Carnations, however, are coming in more plentifully, as are daffodils, jonquils, and tulips, but the last named are short of stem and only fit for funeral work. Violets are more plentiful and sell at prices varying from 25 cents to $1 per 100. Paper Whites are scarce. Freesias are fine and sell at three cents, while Romans are quoted at from two to three cents.

NOTES.

The dance of the Minnesota State Florists' Association, February 1, was a most delightful affair, and was also a grand success from a financial standpoint. P. Holm and O. J. Olson, of Holm & Olson, the well-known florists of St. Paul, heading a delegation of 62 from that city, came in automobiles accompanied by a uniformed band. The hall was very tastily decorated under the direction of President W. D. Desmond, of the L. S. Donaldson Co., palms, ferns and carnations being used in profusion. Miss H. B. Whitted, accompanied by her force, attended the dance, the party arriving in two automobiles.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. laid off seven of the force and reduced salaries of most of the remaining employees by order of the administrator last week.

Thomas Lynes had a fire at his store February 1, but the blaze was extinguished by the employees, with a loss of about $10.

Rice Bros.' bowling team took two games out of three from the Donaldson floral departments' team at the Elks' alleys, February 4. Walter Mauntain had the high score with 197.

Be sure to attend the meeting of the Minnesota State Florists' Association at the Nicollet hotel, February 15, at 8:30 p. m.

Oscar Amundson had 12 designs for one funeral February 5, which made quite a hole in his stock.

Visitors: E. H. Goldenstein, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; H. O. Wilson, Cannon Falls, Minn.; J. J. Cairns, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.; A. F. Longren of Burlington Willow Ware Co., Burlington, Ia. T. C. R.

BUSINESS EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD.

Trade during the past two weeks has been better than at any time since the Christmas holidays. The supply of cut flowers, especially carnations and roses, has increased materially, and bulbous stock is appearing in larger quantities. Roses are better in quality than they have been and prices hold firm. Funeral work constitutes the bulk of the demand although there are numerous orders for weddings. The flower shop windows are resplendent with attractive suggestions for St. Valentine's day and many of the florists are using the daily papers and are mailing folders with suggestions for the day.

NOTES.

The Doswell Floral Co. is contemplating the erection of several more greenhouses this spring to be devoted to roses. A large wedding decoration was arranged by Miss Rhoda Doswell last week. Southern smilax was used in quantity with Shawyer and Richmond roses. Many ferns and blooming plants were used to bank the mantels. The bride's bouquet, a handsome shower of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley, was splendidly done.

The Flick Floral Co. executed an elaborate casket cover last week in which quantities of white lilac, Easter lilies and Shawyer roses were used.

Another funeral design arranged by this firm was a handsome wreath of large size made of russet oak foliage and Richmond roses. The windows of their establishment show active preparations for St. Valentine's day trade.

Markey Bros. have moved their flower shop from 117 West Washington street to 726 Harrison street. Their new location is a good one in the center of the shopping district. The store is of good proportions with a large display window.

W. J. Vesey, Jr., and wife have returned from St. Louis, Mo., where they attended the convention of the American Carnation Society, of which organization Mr. Vesey was chosen vice-president.

Miss Helen Patten, manager of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, O., spent several days here last week, visiting her sister, Mrs. Aaron Shive of the Flick Floral Co.

TRADE QUIET WITH FAIR SUPPLY.

Business during the past week has been rather quiet. Stock has been somewhat scarce but the supply has been sufficient to meet all demands, with the exception of roses. American Beauties are scarce and there are not many Richmonds, and if it were not for the Killarneys, there would be a dearth indeed, the supply of them being sufficient to fill all orders. Sweet peas are good now and with carnations help to satisfy the demand. Violets are plentiful and the supply will be abundant for St. Valentine's day. The florists' windows are already calling attention to this festival and the heart-shaped baskets and boxes and various other suggestions fill the counters and windows. The leap year reminder is also in evidence calling attention to the feminine privilege of sending "him" a nice box of flowers. The bird vases and bowls are shown in unlimited supply and attract much attention. Pot plants will also play a big part in the sentimental day this year. There has never been a more plentiful supply or more beautiful displays of cyclamen in all the most attractive colors than are to be seen this year, and the prices are very reasonable. Cinerarias are also to be had and bulbous stock is abundant.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Co. has inaugurated a leap year idea in a handsome boutonniere priced at 50 cents and delivered by special delivery parcel post any place in city or state. The idea has become quite popular with the ladies who send them to their friends of the opposite sex.

Geny Bros. have a fine supply of Easter lilies and lily of the valley and will have an abundant supply of violets for St. Valentine's day. They will cut at least 15,000 for that occasion. Business generally has been good at this establishment.

SHORTAGE IN SUPPLY CONTINUES.

Stock is still scarce, the local supply arriving in limited quantities owing to the dark days. Roses are still high in price, and are short of the demand. Carnations are plentiful but show a falling off. Bulbous stock is coming in stronger, there being some very good jonquils and tulips to be had. Sweet peas, while more plentiful, are not to be had in sufficient numbers to meet the call. Many of the stores are making their stand on pot plants, the quality kind selling especially well.

NOTES.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. had a big week of funeral work, many orders going to out-of-town points. Their carnation crop fell off somewhat during the past week, the cut running from 1500 to 1800 per day. Chas. Heite of the greenhouse force has gone to Florida for several weeks' rest.

W. J. Barnes reports one of the best week's business outside of holiday periods in the history of his business. The demand for funeral work has been heavy and he had many orders for decorations for the automobile show.

T. J. Noll & Co. are handling large stocks of carnations. The roses seen here are fine in quality but the quantity arriving is short of requirements. A good trade in supplies is reported.

H. Kusik & Co. report a heavy call for wire work and supplies. They are handling good stock in roses, carnations and bulbous flowers.

Ed. Ellsworth reports A No. 1 business in both funeral work and plant sales. He is showing some fine pans of hyacinths and tulips.

Arthur Newell is having a good trade in pot plants. Orders for funeral work are plentiful but stock is hard to get.

W. W. Harnden, president of the Harnden Seed Co., is spoken of as a candidate for mayor at the coming primary.

The Gilday-Skidmore Co. has opened an attractive flower shop at 214 East Eleventh street.

Roanoke, Va.

The Wertz Flower Store on Campbell avenue is well supplied with a full line of floral requisites, cut blooms and flowering plants being received daily from the range of Canaday & Wertz on Orange avenue.

John Waldis, one of the pioneer florists of this section, is also superintendent of Roanoke cemetery and grows thousands of plants many of which are planted on the graves.

Frank Fallon has an exceptionally attractive flower shop on Jefferson street. A large window offers excellent opportunity for display and it is taken advantage of, artistic arrangements of cut flowers and designs being a daily attraction here. An attractive sign 6 by 18 feet, featuring a red rose placed opposite the depots of the Norfolk & Western railroad, calls attention of thousands of passengers to Fallon's. Two new houses each 42 by 200 feet are to be added to his range this spring and will be devoted to carnations and roses. This will bring his glass up to 140,000 feet. Vegetables are also grown in quantity and shipped to outside points.

Staunton, Va.

John Fallon, who has a good local flower trade in addition to shipping thousands of flowering and vegetable plants to outside points, is growing some fine Marie Louise and Princess of Wales violets in cold frames, that give promise of producing a big supply of flowers. He is now cutting his first crop of sweet peas, some splendid colors being seen among them, especially in bright pink and rose shades. He is also cutting a heavy crop of carnations daily.

Miss Hamrick's flower store on Frederick street is very attractive with its southern bay window attractively decorated with fresh stock that she receives daily from Philadelphia. In designing, she is a finished artist.

CLUB MEETING.

At the February meeting of the Albany Florists' Club, Fred A. Danker was instructed by President Thomas F. Tracey to prepare a paper for the March meeting on methods to be adopted to elevate the retail florists' business. A question as to the best Spanish irises was answered by a visitor, John Tegelaar of Lesse, Holland, who is in this country on his annual visit to the trade to solicit bulb orders. Mr. Tegelaar recommended Louise, King of the Blues, Sophy, and Jaffee, as comprising an assortment in colors and characteristics that would probably best satisfy the grower. Edward P. Tracey reported that a number of the retailers in the city had taken up the suggestion of William C. Gloeckner to put up 50 posters, each four feet by nine feet, on the bill boards of the city, February 5. The posters were to call attention to St. Valentine's day as an appropriate occasion for the use of flowers. It was decided by the members that it was best that the matter be taken care of outside the jurisdiction of the club, although ordinarily the advertising committee acts in such matters. Mr. Thompson of the Credit Association of New York was given the floor to explain a tentative plan by which local florists may collect their past due accounts. As outlined the plan provides that each retailer send in to a central office from week to week his past due accounts. These are tabulated and a sheet issued weekly to be sent to subscribers informing them of the names of the people who owe other florists. Mr. Tegelaar said that a system similar to this is in use among the bulb growers in Holland, where it works satisfactorily. On motion of F. A. Danker, President Tracey was authorized to call a meeting of the local retailers to discuss the credit association plan and its practicability for the local field. Mr. Thompson said that the subject will come up again at the national flower show in Philadelphia in the spring and some effort will be made to make the credit association plan national in scope. In fact, it was at the suggestion of Patrick Welch of Boston that Mr. Thompson stopped off at Albany to explain his plan here. A letter from the family of James Snyder, of Rhinebeck, announced his illness and inability to be present at the meeting. Through the courtesy of F. A. Danker there was on exhibition a large vase of the new pink carnation, Cottage Maid, from the Cottage Gardens Co., Inc., Queens, N. Y.

New Orleans Horticultural Society.

At a meeting of the New Orleans Horticultural Society, held February 5, at the Association of Commerce, final details were perfected for the annual spring flower show to be held at the Athenaeum, April 6-9. The flower show this year will be on a larger scale than anything heretofore attempted in New Orleans. The interior of the building will be converted into a garden of rare beauty, with winding paths and terraces of spring blossoms and suspended on an incline in the rear of the main hall, on the stage, will be a huge American flag, composed entirely of blooming plants. Everything pertaining to the embellishment of home and home grounds will be on display and arranged in such manner that it will serve as an object lesson to the people of New Orleans, in working out such improvements to their premises as they might choose.

Realizing the worthy cause of the Louisiana Anti-Tuberculosis League, the New Orleans Horticultural Society has decided that the entire net proceeds of the flower show shall go to this organization, to aid in furthering its work. Those visiting the spring flower show not only will afford themselves a treat and instruction in the manner to beautify their home grounds, but will assist in a worthy cause.

The following florists compose the committee on arrangements, who have agreed to furnish a guarantee fund to defray the expenses to be incurred in giving the flower show this year: P. A. Chopin, chairman; Henry Scheurmann, ex-officio; Charles R. Panter, secretary; Abele Brothers, Herman Doescher, Charles Ehle, Charles W. Eichling, E. A. Farley, Henry Kraak, Claude Ory, J. A. Newsham, F. J. Reyes & Co., J. Steckler Seed Co., M. Scheinuk, Verline & Vandereecken, B. M. Wichers, Henry Mische, A. Dammara.

Washington.

Business in general is very good, although stock is not over plentiful. There is enough to take care of all immediate requirements, however. American Beauties are scarce and bring from $9 to $12 per dozen. Other roses are quoted at from $4 to $15. Carnations sell at $4 and $5. Jonquils and freesias are plentiful.

NOTES.

Marche & Co. may be one of the smaller stores of the city in size, but certainly not in the volume of business done. Manager White is always a busy man from the opening until the closing hours.

The Washington Florists Co., had charge of the decorations at the Army and Navy Club. A table decoration in the form of a Japanese garden was especially noteworthy and attracted much attention.

Z. D. Blackistone has a very neat window decoration of orchids of many kinds mossed in old logs and stumps.

Mrs. George C. Shaffer, who has been ill for several weeks, is recovering and hopes to be out shortly.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—S. Suzuki, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., sailed for Japan on the S. S. Nippon, January 22, after disposing of his firm's extensive exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition. A. Kakuda, who assisted him in this work, returned to the firm's New York headquarter's February 5.

OBITUARY.

Donald Matheson.

Donald Matheson, for many years superintendent of the estate of the late William Walter Phelps, Englewood, N. J., died February 3 in the Hackensack, N. J., hospital, aged 73 years. He came to this country from Scotland, where he was born, when a young man. He became an employee of Mr. Phelps, (who had a nation-wide reputation as a statesman and diplomat, having been minister to Germany), simply by chance. Mr. Phelps was one day riding on a street car and noticed a man that he afterwards said "looked like a Scotchman." He engaged him in conversation, learned that he was a trained horticulturist and engaged him to superintend his estate, a position he held until his last illness. Mr. Phelps has been dead for a number of years, but during his lifetime, the relations between he and Donald Matheson were not of master and servant, but of a gentleman toward his friend and equal. It is needless to add that Mr. Matheson was a man of high character, greatly respected by all who knew him. He was a member of the Masonic order and had many friends in New York City, prominent among them being Alexander McConnell and Thomas Young, Jr.

Edward Branch.

Edward Branch, for nearly 40 years engaged in the wholesale cut flower business in New York, died at his residence in that city, February 4, aged 63 years. About five years ago he was stricken with paralysis and has since been an invalid. He was born in Bohemia, Austria, and arrived in this country July 4, 1865, and had been in the florist business nearly all the time of his residence in New York. He kept a horse and wagon and his method was to buy in the early morning markets from the growers and drive about the city and sell to the retailers. As one dealer recently expressed it: "Branch was absolutely on the level and never owed anybody a cent." He was also kind and devoted to his family. He is survived by a widow and six children, four daughters and two sons, and by nine grandchildren. One of the sons, Herman, has carried on the business since his father fell ill; the other son has for a number of years been employed by Charles H. Brown, the well known Broadway retailer.

Henry Clay Scherer.

Henry Clay Scherer, an expert designer and decorator, died at his residence in New York City February 2, aged 63 years, of heart trouble and rheumatism. He was born at Tompkinsville, Staten Island, and was of German descent. At an early age he entered the service of Zahn, the father of Frederick Zahn, who was in the retail business on Grand street. Later, he was, for a number of years, employed by the late J. M. Hodgson. For several years he was in Pittsburgh, Pa., as an employee of J. B. Murdoch. For a time he was in business for himself, on Sixth avenue, New York, but for the past 20 years has been employed by Peter L. Bogart, 970 Sixth avenue, New York.

He is said to have been the first New York florist to construct and exhibit in show windows, the miniature greenhouses that are now frequently seen. He was a man of a genial and kindly disposition and was popular with his employers and associates. He was a member of the Masonic order.

"FLOWERS make an undertaker's cheap casket look attractive and in the absence of flowers of speech, divert attention from a dull sermon."

PHILADELPHIA papers are giving liberal space to the National Flower Show, the Record of that city making arrangements to issue four special flower show numbers.

SOME retail florists are not at all pleased with the behavior of Mrs. Charles Russell roses, saying the flowers quickly turn blue and do not open satisfactorily after they are cut.

WHEN in need of stock or supplies of any kind in a hurry it will be a great advantage to have a copy of the latest edition of our Trade Directory at hand for names and addresses. The price of the latest (1915) edition is $3 per copy, postpaid.

Tulip Decision Affects Revenue.

It is estimated that the government will be deprived annually of several hundred thousand dollars in duty owing to the fact that at the last revision of the tariff the letter "s" was added to the word "tulip" as appearing in the corresponding paragraph of the Act of 1909. In other respects the language of the old and new flower and bulb provisions are identical, while the duty rates remain the same.

Whether the addition of the single letter was a typographical error in the final printing of the Underwood tariff bill as it was sent to the President for signature or resulted from congressional intent could not be decided by Judge Barber in a decision handed down by the United States Court of Customs Appeals as reported in THE AMERICAN FLORIST, February 5, page 148. The effect of this decision will be to cut customs receipts from imported tulip bulbs exactly one half.

Paragraph 210 of the present law specifies, among other things, "lily of the valley pips, tulips, narcissus, begonia, and gloxinia bulbs," whereas paragraph 263 of the Payne tariff act was identical except that the word "tulip" appeared instead of "tulips." Both provisions specified the rate of duty as $1 per thousand. Maltus & Ware, however, representing large bulb importing interests, took advantage of the addition of the "s" to bring a test case before the board of general appraisers and the Customs Court.

It was contended that the changing of the phraseology had made a noun of the word "tulips," thereby taking away its character as an adjective, and that as a consequence the word no longer referred to tulip bulbs. This led to the claim that the proper duty on the bulbs themselves was 50 cents per thousand, as "all other bulbs which are cultivated for their flowers or foliage." Under this claim the rate was cut in two. Judge Waite in a decision for the General Board held that tulips as cut flowers or as plants were never imported, and that it was manifest a typographical error was made by adding the "s". The board accordingly sustained the Collector's assessment at $1 per thousand, Allan R. Brown, attorney for the protestants, then appealed to the court.

Assistant Attorney General Hanson, representing the government urged the court to affirm the board's ruling. He said that, although grammatically construed the statute might warrant the importers' contention, nevertheless, in view of the history of the paragraph, its context and spirit, it should not be given that effect, and suggested that the addition of the letter "s" to the word "tulip" in the clause was the result of a typographical error.

It was contended that, when the earlier drafts of the tariff bill were prepared, the paragraph in the new bill was identical with that in the old measure. Subsequently many changes were made in the bill as a whole, some paragraphs or clauses being stricken out and others added. Judge Barber, in reversing the board and finding in favor of the importers, said Congress was presumed to have deliberately made the change, and that in any event, under the general rule of tariff construction, doubts should be reserved in favor of the importer. He added that the grammatical sense must be adopted unless there were within the statute cogent reasons indicating a contrary intent upon the part of the lawmakers.

Illinois State Florists' Association.

Secretary J. F. Ammann of the Illinois State Florists' Association calls attention of the members of the organization to the eleventh annual meeting and exhibition to be held at Moline, March 7-8, and members are also requested to make an exhibit of some kind. All novelties will be judged according to the national societies' scale of points and any flower scoring 85 points or better will be awarded the certificate of merit of the association. All flowers are to be shipped, charges prepaid, to John Staack, Turner hall, Sixth avenue and Fourteenth street, Moline, Ill.

A very interesting programme has been arranged, prominent among the numbers being the following: "Easter Flowering and Foliage Plants," by W. E. Tricker of Vaughan's Greenhouses, Western Springs; "What the Division of Floriculture is Doing," by H. B. Dorner, assistant professor of floriculture, University of Illinois; "Soils," by W. E. Taylor, M. D.; Report on Fertilizer Work, by F. W. Muncie, Urbana; Report on Pathological Work, by G. L. Peltier, Urbana. Following the election of officers, which will close the business session Tuesday afternoon, March 7, the annual dinner will be held at 6 p. m. Wednesday will be spent in the inspection of local greenhouses and other points of interest. Official headquarters will be at the Manufacturers' hotel, Moline.

STOCK MORE PLENTIFUL.

Stock of all kinds is more plentiful at this writing with one or two exceptions. American Beauty roses are not any too plentiful and clean up at an early hour each day at good prices. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses in the longer stemmed grades are seen in good supply at several of the stores and are moving well, owing to the splendid quality and the general scarcity of American Beauties. Roses in general are in fair supply and the receipts are steadily increasing. With one or two exceptions there are almost enough roses to go around and some especially fine Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond, Milady, Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Killarney Brilliant, Hadley, Prince de Bulgaria, Rhea Reid and Mrs. George Shawyer are seen. Carnations are in larger supply and are selling at much lower prices. The stock in nearly all instances is of splendid quality and will no doubt be in better demand for St. Valentine's day. Orchids have been in good supply all week and there promises to be a good crop for St. Valentine's day. Gardenias are among the offerings and a limited supply of forget-me-nots is to be had. Sweet peas are arriving in larger quantities and have dropped considerably in price the past week. Freesia is to be had in quantity but is in good demand and cleans up well each day at satisfactory prices. Lilies and callas seem to be more plentiful and this also holds good for violets, pansies and daisies. Bulbous stock of all kinds is seen in larger quantities, especially, tulips, jonquils, Romans, daffodils and Paper White narcissus. Lily of the valley is none too plentiful and still commands good prices. Some fine snapdragons are offered and are in good demand. Stevia is none too plentiful, but there is a good supply of mignonette available. Business has been very quiet the past week but everything points to a brisk demand for stock for St. Valentine's day and several of the wholesale houses will keep their stores open all day, Sunday, February 13, so that all late orders can be properly attended to. Many of the retail florists are making grand window displays for this occasion and some are carrying special advertisements in the daily papers. Green goods of all kinds are plentiful. Ferns in some instances have advanced from $2.50 to $3.00 per 1,000.

NOTES.

Gus Pappas now has Johnson & Cronis as business partners, who have acquired the Economopolis interests in the Alpha Floral Co.'s store on South Wabash avenue, February 1. Mr. Pappas left for Des Moines, Ia., to look after his store there as soon as all the arrangements were completed. Andrew Cronis will manage the place hereafter, which will be remodeled and placed in the best condition possible, work on which has already started. The Alpha Floral Co. has one of the best corner locations in the city, and Mr. Pappas is fortunate in having Johnson & Cronis as partners, for they are popular with the trade here and have a reputation in the local market of which anyone might well be proud.

Rolf Zetlitz, Lima, O., accompanied by his father, E. M. Zetlitz, spent February 7 in this city. They left the following day for Sioux Falls, S. D., where the latter will visit with his brother for several months. Rolf will return home in about a week to look after his ever-growing wholesale and retail trade, which has shown a wonderful increase the past year.

Mrs. Arthur Schutz, of Hammond, Ind., who recently underwent a serious operation at the Chicago Union Hospital, is improving and will be able to leave for home this week.

Louis Wittbold and Fred Wittbold have purchased the Fletcher James and Henry Neve interests in the Wittbold property on Buckingham place, amounting to $23,000, and have started work on the tearing down of the old greenhouses to make room for a new flat building, 125 x 175 feet, and a new retail store, 50 x 125 feet, both to front on Buckingham place. The large building will consist of 30 two, three and four room flats facing a court, half of which will be ready for occupancy by September 1, 1916. The second building will be rented and eventually sold to the George Wittbold Co., who will use the first floor for their store, offices and workroom. The basement will also be used for a workroom and there will be a garage in the rear. A Garland conservatory 50 x 125 feet will be built on the roof of the store, and when the building is completed the Wittbold Co. will have one of the finest equipped retail establishments in the country, the first mention of which was made in THE AMERICAN FLORIST some time ago. Louis Wittbold says the new building will represent a $90,000 investment, with a gross income of $16,000 yearly. The greenhouses that are being torn down will be removed to the Edgebrook range of the George Wittbold Co., which will eliminate the rehandling of a large portion of their stock, for it is the firm's intention to ship direct from Edgebrook hereafter and not from the city store, as was the custom in the past.

Victor Young & Company, 1239 North Clark street, are featuring a large five-foot heart in their window display for Valentine's day. It is made of birch bark with the edges trimmed with red frieze and has several gold arrows piercing it. An artistically arranged cluster of tulips and forget-me-nots placed at just the proper angle to the right adds considerably to the beauty of the design, and is most appropriate for the occasion. Mr. Young is going to make the best use of his beautifully equipped store that he possibly can, and is planning to arrange a series of table decorations which the public will be invited to inspect and which he figures will be a good advertisement, inasmuch as they will bring the people into his store and give him an opportunity to offer suggestions and

SWEET PEAS WANTED

I can handle more Sweet Peas to good advantage and would be pleased to hear from growers who have a surplus of any kind to dispose of. My wholesale store is located on the main floor and is the best location in the Great Chicago Market, and is visited daily by practically all the leading buyers. Sweet Peas are particularly desired, but any other seasonable stock will be acceptable. Do not take the time to write but start shipping immediately. Checks Weekly.

M. C. GUNTERBERG, 158 N. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO show them just what can be done in this line.

George Wienhoeber has an attractive three-color advertisement in the street cars for St. Valentine's day, featuring the red heart shaped box and a bunch of violets, postpaid anywhere for $1.50. Mr. Wienhoeber also has a very pretty window display for this occasion which he went to considerable expense to arrange, but there is no question but what this kind of advertising pays judging from the many people who stopped to admire it this week.

Peter Sgoros and William Sgoros, proprietors of the Venetian Flower Shop, 15 East Washington street, are going to enlarge their store which will give them a better opportunity to display their flowers and add greatly to the general appearance of the place. They report a satisfactory increase in business since they moved from the basement to their present ground floor location.

Henry M. Hirsch, formerly a member of the firm of Zalinger & Hirsch, 175 West Jackson boulevard, will open his new store at 37 East Van Buren street this week. The entire set of store fixtures, including the refrigerator, were built to order by Buchbinder Bros., 518 Milwaukee avenue, who made the one that was on display at the last big Chicago flower show.

Alex Henderson visited Alois P. Frey's greenhouses at Crown Point, Ind., last week for the purpose of inspecting his novelty freesias, which are of every color of the rainbow. Mr. Frey's stock has attracted much favorable attention at E. C. Amling Co.'s store, where it has been handled exclusively for the past two years.

Felix Reichling says that everything points to a good St. Valentine's day trade at Peter Reinberg's store and that his firm is cutting plenty of stock, principally roses and carnations, to Ronsley, 106 South Dearborn street, reports business as good with a brisk demand for funeral work. J. Svenson, formerly with the George Wittbold Co., has been with him for the past few months and is well pleased with his down-town job.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are handling a splendid lot of carnations in addition to a large supply of tulips, lilies, freesias and Paper White narcissi. Stock has cleaned up nicely each day at this establishment and everything points to a brisk St. Valentine's day trade.

George Perdikas opened a new store at the northwest corner of South Wabash avenue and East Van Buren street, Monday, February 7. His main store is located at 407 South Wabash avenue.

Adolph Nielson, superintendent of W. H. Gullett & Sons' greenhouses at Lincoln, renewed old acquaintances here this week.

Quality Cut Flowers and Greens FOR ST. VALENTINE'S DAY--ORDER HERE

The co-partnership heretofore existing between George A. Manos and John M. Kronis doing business as the Railroad Station Florists was dissolved by mutual agreement, February 4, Mr. Manos taking over the floral stands situated in the Union Depot and the Illinois Central station at Van Buren street, in this city, and Mr. Kronis, the stands in the Pennsylvania Railroad station in Pittsburgh and the Pennsylvania Railroad station at East Liberty, Pa.

Leonard Vaughan was elected a delegate to the twenty-first annual meeting of the American Bowling Congress at a meeting of the Chicago Bowling Association at the Hotel Planters Sunday, February 6, over 70 men being chosen to act at Toledo. The voters at the meeting contented themselves with nominating an even number of delegates and alternates, and voted them in under a blanket rule that was unanimous.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is in good crop with orchids and expects to cut over 3,000 cattleyas for St. Valentine's day. August Poehlmann has recovered from a severe attack of the grip and is up and around again. His son Earl, who is a student at Urbana, was home on a visit this week. This firm has a nice lot of blooming stock for Easter and will be particularly strong in rambler roses and French hydrangeas.

Schiller's loop store, which is in charge of Reinhold Schiller, has been thoroughly overhauled and looks fine and dandy in its coat of paint. This store has a nice Valentine's day display and a large heart, made especially for the occasion, occupies a prominent place in the show.

Miller & Musser have made a number of improvements at their wholesale quarters which gives them more floor space to carry on their ever-growing business.

At Hoerber Bros. store stock is arriving in larger quantities and particularly noticeable is a good supply of fancy snapdragons.

Chas. W. McKellar had one of his eastern shipments of orchids so badly frozen in transit this week that it was a total loss.

THE SIGN OF QUALITY

The annual meeting and exhibition of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held in the Turner hall, at Moline, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 7-8. Several of the local firms have decided to make an exhibit, among whom is Bassett & Washburn, who will stage their new carnation, Belle Washburn. C. W. Johnson, Morgan Park, president; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, secretary; F. L. Washburn, Bloomington, treasurer, and I. L. Pillsbury, Galesburg; E. W. Guy, Belleville; A. C. Brown, Springfield; Andrew Peterson, Hoopeston; H. W. Buckee, Rockford; John Staack, Moline, and A. C. Kohlbrand, vice-presidents, are leaving nothing undone to make the event a banner one in the history of the society. All varieties are judged according to the national societies' scale of points, and any flower scoring 85 points or better will be given a certificate of merit. All flowers should be shipped in care of John Staack, Turner Hall, Sixth avenue and Fourteenth street, Moline, Ill.

Philip C. Schupp says that the demand for roses continues to be good at J. A. Budlong's store and that while they have been cutting heavily all through the scarcity the receipts have cleaned up quickly each day. This firm received a shipment of miniature orchids from a private estate one day this week that so closely resemble the cattleyas (cats) that the employees call them "kittens."

Wietor Bros. are in good crop with American Beauty roses and are offering a good supply especially in the longer stemmed grades. Carnations are the leader here this week and they are fortunate in having a good supply of red for St. Valentine's day. N. J. Wietor has been a little under the weather for a few days, but is up and around and is on the job as usual every day.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Union, No. 10,615, is going to give their sixth annual dance, Saturday evening, February 19, at Wicker Park hall, 2046 West North avenue, tickets 25 cents a person. All florists and gardeners are invited to attend whether they belong to the union or not and are requested to bring their friends with them.

O. A. and L. A. Tonner will continue business in their present quarters until May 1, when their lease expires, and also in the new store acquired last week. They expect to occupy the new place the latter part of this or the first of next week, which will give the supply department a chance to display the Easter goods.

Pyfer & Olsem have several new seedling carnations that appear to be very promising and will be disseminated in the near future. As soon as the Nepper greenhouses, which they leased last week, are in their possession, Mr. Olsem will be able to carry on his work on a larger scale.

Otto W. Frese is a busy man this week attending to his duties at Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s store and serving on the jury in the criminal court at the same time. He is equal to the occasion, however, and manages to catch up with his work each night before he leaves for home.

August Poehlmann, treasurer of the Grand Floral Festival, reports that all outstanding accounts with the exception of the premiums have been paid and that these will be taken care of as soon as the small balance of the entire guarantee fund amounting to $7,500 is turned in.

Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, visited the A. F. Amling Co.'s greenhouses this week and found the firm ready to plant their Ophelia and White Killarney roses. The new range that the firm is building is well under way and will be quite an addition to their present plant.

Percy Jones is handling a large quantity of bulbous stock, which includes a particularly fine grade of tulips and jonquils. Preparations have been made for a brisk St. Valentine's day trade and the early indications are that they will not be disappointed.

Abraham Iralson, 356 East Forty-third street, found trade rather quiet the past few days, but business during January was very good, he reports, especially as far as funeral work was concerned.

H. G. Turner, Room 1315-5 South Wabash avenue, has a nice store in the Stratford Hotel for rent for several months that can be had until May 1 for $150 per month.

Max Ringier, with Kennicott Bros. Co., reports a steady demand for freesias which they are handling in quantity and are quite a factor in the market at present.

J. F. Kidwell & Co., 3530 Michigan avenue, are featuring artistically arranged baskets and boxes of all the seasonable cut flowers for St. Valentine's day.

The Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association is shipping a good supply of choice cypripediums to the E. F. Winterson Co.

M. C. Gunterberg added a new grower to her list this week, who is shipping in a good supply of bulbous stock.

Invitations are out for the wedding of Will Wolf, of August Lange's store force, and Miss Schmidt, February 19.

At the next meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, to be held at the Hotel Morrison, Thursday evening, February 10, there will be an exhibition of novelties which will be staged in the banquet room on the third floor and will be open to the public both afternoon and evening. W. J. Keimel, chairman of the good-of-the-club committee, and his assistants have invited all the leading growers to participate, so everyone is urged to be present and bring their friends with them. E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., has consented to give a talk at this meeting which will be called to order promptly at 8 o'clock.

PLENTIFUL SUPPLY LOWERS PRICES.

For the past week stock of nearly all kinds has been plentiful. There has been quite a falling off in funeral work, following the busiest period of any length in that line for several years. The weather has been favorable for growing, particularly in the case of carnations. This has forced down their price from $1 to as low as 60 cents a dozen. The coming in of early spring plants, such as daffodils, freesias and hyacinths, has affected the cut-flower trade, particularly for sick room purposes. The greatest scarcity is in roses of good quality. Pinks and reds are decidedly off in color. Lilies are also backward in point of supply, but the prospects are fine for new stock in advance of the Easter season. At present writing, prices on all flowers are showing an upward trend, as growers are holding back for the St. Valentine's day trade. More than usual attention is being given this year to St. Valentine windows. New and pretty effects are shown in heart-shaped boxes. Special advertising is being done by some of the shops, but there appears to be a lack of initiative in jointly booming the flower trade for this anniversary, through the newspapers. Florists admit that this plan has been found profitable in the past, but the "they-won't-all-go-in" grievance threatens any large success of the movement this year.

GOOD BUSINESS IN SUPPLIES.

Business has been good the past week, both in cut flowers and supplies, principally in violet boxes, crepe papers and ribbons for St. Valentine's day. While the rose crop is still far from what it ought to be, it shows signs of loosening up. Carnations have been more plentiful with a very large percentage of red predominating. Tulips, Paper Whites and daffodils are helping out wonderfully for boxes and funeral designs. Callas are in good supply with a good demand. Sweet peas, violets and swainsonas are good stock. Orchids are of exceptionally good quality, and meet with a fair demand. Lily of the valley is plentiful and a good supply is assured for St. Valentine's day. A few long American Beauties are arriving with good color and size.

Greens have been short of the demand, both adiantum and asparagus. There has been a steady increase in the demand for magnolia leaves in all colors. Stock now is of the very best quality.

NOTES.

Geo. W. Smith, of the Cleveland Florists' Exchange, left February 6 for a short visit to his wife, who is in Colorado Springs, Colo. Last reports are that Mrs. Smith is rapidly improving in health.

B. C. Evans, late of the Jones-Russell Co.'s store force in the Taylor arcade, is now with the J. M. Gasser Co.'s retail force.

The legislature is in session here and quite a few social gatherings are taking place. Most of these call for table decorations of some kind or other, and all of them combined bring quite a little extra trade to the florists' stores. Funeral work also has been rather heavy of late, so taking it all in all, business is fairly good. Great preparations have been made for St. Valentine's day and a big business is looked for at that time.

NOTES.

Furrow & Co. are beginning to cut bulbous flowers in quantity; among other things they are sending in some fine examples of the yellow polyanthus narcissus. Having home grown stock at this time is a decided advantage, seeing that the prices of northern grown flowers continue to be so very high. There must be an unusual dearth of sunshine in the flower growing districts, which is causing the price of cut flowers to remain so high and for so long a period. If that is so, those districts have nothing on us, for there has been less sunshine here this winter than in any other winter for a number of years.

MARKET CLEANS UP DAILY.

With the influx of bulbous stock, and the sunny weather of the past week opening up the other crops, market conditions are again back to normal. With average prices prevailing, business continues good and no stock is left when the day is over. The biggest improvement is shown in the cut roses, the quality of which are up to expectations. Violets are fine and more plentiful and same can be said of carnations.

NOTES.

On February 7, by mutual agreement, the East Side Floral Co. dissolved partnership, Martin Christiansen having transferred his rights to his former partner, Henry Koegler. They conducted business at 468 Farwell avenue, at which place Mr. Koegler will continue to serve his patrons. While Mr. Christiansen has no definite plans on hand, he intends to open a retail store in the future.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. reports many advance orders for St. Valentine's day, especially in the more dainty varieties, such as orchids, lily of the valley, sweet peas, violets, etc. The axle of their large auto van broke, Monday, Feb. 7, causing no small amount of inconvenience.

Wm. R. Schroeder and Nic Zweifel returned home February 3 after visiting several Indiana growers after the carnation convention at St. Louis. Gust Pohl and H. V. Hunkel, who were also at the convention, have returned home.

F. Craneheld, secretary of the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society, of Madison, will meet some of the local florists February 11 relative to Wisconsin state fair matters.

The club meeting, February 3, owing to the extreme cold weather was poorly attended; nothing but routine work was transacted.

Alfred Schiller, at St. Joseph's hospital, is progressing nicely and he has hopes of being allowed to be taken to his home this week.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. is cutting a nice lot of carnations at their Wauwatosa range every day. Business with them is fine.

Walter Holton was removed from the Radium hospital to his home, February 2, and a speedy recovery is looked for.

Gust. Rusch & Co. report business brisk, with an ample supply to meet all orders complete. E. O.

Cincinnati.

BUSINESS FAIR; PRICES NORMAL.

Business is fair. The supply, taken as a whole, is easily equal to present demands and prices are normal. Heavy orders are beginning to come in for flowers for St. Valentine's day. American Beauties are in a good supply, but other roses are not as plentiful as they might be, but, owing to the general large supply in the market in other lines, are not having a stiff call and the receipts are practically sufficient for immediate want. At times many more might sell, were they forthcoming. The carnation cut is large and is fairly good. Easter lilies are plentiful and callas are proving good property. Excellent lily of the valley,

MARKET CLEANS UP SATISFACTORILY.

Everybody has been kept going the past week, there being a number of large social affairs and important school commencements, in addition to considerable work for funerals. Although stock in almost all lines is becoming plentiful, the demand cleaned up the various shipments and prevented any accumulation. The weather is now more seasonable, the advent of February bringing in old fashioned winter winds and snow, with the mercury getting down to near the zero point. All the roses are fairly plentiful with the exception of American Beauties, the stock of which is very low. Carnations are very fine and are seen in quantities. Bulbous stock is offered in great variety, daffodils, Golden Spur leading and paper whites are plentiful, as are also tulips. Violets, single and double, are quite equal to the demand. Calla lilies as well as longflorums hold up very well in price, there being no over supply. Cattleyas are still to be had in quantity. Lily of the valley is about equal to the demand—$5 is the price for the select, which is the highest it has ever sold on the average at this time of the year. Calendulas are good stock, being in demand. Take it all in all, the condition of the market is satisfactory.

NOTES.

At the February meeting of the florists' club one of the interesting features was the statement of H. Barclay as to the number of carnation flowers picked per plant up to February 1. Much better results were obtained from the stock grown over summer on the benches in the houses, than from plants in the field, as shown by the following figures: Akehurst, 64/7; Matchless, seven field grown, while 11 flowers were obtained from bench grown stock; Mrs. Ward, nine from benches and six from boxes brought in November 1; Enchantress, 6¼ and Alice, 6 2/3.

Wm. H. Ferguson was buried February 1. He was 69 years old. He was well known and a popular member of the trade, having carried on a successful retail business for many years at Twelfth and Spring Garden streets. His son, who was a partner, will continue the business.

The "boys" are still talking about the great show of carnations at the club at the February meeting. The election of eleven new members and the proposal of about as many more for action at the next meeting shows the organization to be healthy and growing fast.

The managers of the national show desire the co-operation of the various retailers who have engaged space, and desire them to lay it out to best suit their purpose. The part set aside for this purpose is near the center of the building, which is likely to attract the most visitors.

Joseph Josephs has purchased the business, good will and fixtures of Samuel R. Aitken at 1722 Columbia avenue, where he will continue the business. Mr. Aitken has not as yet perfected plans for the future. He has conducted a retail store here for many years.

ported to have had an auction sale of their stock last week. Mr. Dale says this is an error; their business is perfectly satisfactory and they have no thought of discontinuing.

Newport Horticultural Society.

At a meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, held January 25, a paper on "Sweet Peas for Exhibition" was read by William Gray, and one on "Gardening for the Amateur" by James Robertson. Both papers brought out interesting discussions from the members and amateurs present. It was one of the most interesting meetings held in some time and to keep up the interest, more papers are forthcoming, one on "Budding and Grafting" being promised by E. Kempenaar, nurseryman, for the next meeting. Papers are also in the course of preparation by some of the assistant gardeners, notice of which will appear later. The schedule of the June show was approved and ordered printed with the addition of a prize by Knight & Struck, the Heatherhome challenge cup for new sweet peas.

MARKET BRACES UP.

Business was very quiet in the wholesale district during the past week up to Saturday, February 5, when the market, to some extent, braced up. The wet and foggy weather that had prevailed for a week terminated on the afternoon of February 2 in a heavy fall of snow, which caused much inconvenience for the next two days, but did not tie up traffic. At this writing there is a rising temperature, with indications of rain. Roses are holding up fairly well in price, though they also suffered in the general slump, and it now appears that the season of high prices has come to an end. American Beauties are not plentiful; we mean good ones. All roses have, to some extent, suffered from the warm and wet weather. With very little clear sunshine for the past week, there is already a surplus of carnations, and it may be taken for granted that they will remain cheap for the rest of the season. The orchids, which for some time have been in the doldrums, so far as prices were concerned, show indications of improvement, but it is hard work to boost them. Violets are also slow and hard to move. Sweet peas continue plentiful but there is a steady demand for them. Lilies, lily of the valley and bulbous stock in general keep moving, but at reduced prices. Good lilacs sell well.

February 7.—The supply of roses is not very heavy, and though prices on tea roses are somewhat lower, there has been no great break. American Beauties continue scarce and special stock continues at the rate of $75 per 100. There is an increasing supply of narcissi and tulips and the former is much cheaper. Lilac is also more plentiful and cheaper. Orchids, carnations and violets continue cheap, violets being practically a drug. Lilies are holding their own at $10 and $12. Lily of the valley is rather slow at $2 to $4 according to quality.

NOTES.

We do not now recall whether it was the "city of churches" or the "city of homes" that Brooklyn was called when it was a separate city, but it can qualify as both, and has much of the spirit that the churches are supposed to inculcate that it may illuminate the homes. There is a woman over there named Mollie Fancher, who on February 3 had been a bed-ridden invalid for fifty years, and on that day over one thousand neighbors and friends visited her and filled the house with flowers.

Peter F. McKenney, the retailer of Fifth avenue and 42d street, was very busy during the past week. For a dinner decoration at the Sleepy Hollow country club, Scarborough, N. Y., he used 1,000 Radiance roses and 500 Sunburst, beside many other flowers and plants. The leading feature of the table decoration was three large baskets of roses so arranged as to be the central attraction, other flowers being used as accessories. He has other orders on hand for similar events in the near future.

A. L. Miller of Jamaica, a past president of the New York Florists' Club, and a grower of much fine stock, was in the wholesale district February 4. He is greatly interested in having a good crowd go to Philadelphia on "New York day" of the national flower show and has called a meeting of his committee for February 8, at the Hotel McAlpin, to make further arrangements.

The fine old Dutch steamer Ryndam got into some mysterious trouble on her last trip from this port to the other side, and it is rumored she struck a mine. If some of the bulbs she brought this way last fall had exploded and blown her up it would not have been much of a miracle, for they were "hot stuff."

The Yorkville Rosery, 1275 Lexington avenue, is now finely fitted up and doing business. M. Smith and J. McDonald are the proprietors, and we understand that they are experienced men. As an assistant they have employed Henry Goldfarb, a lively young man, formerly with N. Christatos.

Edward Dupuy, in the rooms of the New York Cut Flower Co., is now handling very fine stock of purple and white lilac, which brings the highest prices. He has also good gardenias, camellias and bulbous stock, all from the range of his father, Louis Dupuy, Whitestone, L. I.

At the store of Drakos & Co., 2953 Broadway, we have recently noticed clever work in window decorating, orchids, acacias and pans of tulips being prominent. This store always presents an attractive appearance, and does a good business.

Klugman & Schnerow, of Flatbush avenue and King's highway, Brooklyn, are now bringing fine bulbous stock to the wholesale district. They have recently put on a very fine auto car for delivery, of which young Mr. Klugman is the chauffeur.

The financial district of this city is not prolific of flower stores, but there are a few. J. P. Gilbanks, formerly with Fleischman, has recently opened a nice store in the arcade between Broadway and Wall street, his number being 50 Broadway.

A. J. Guttman has returned from the carnation convention and exhibition at St. Louis and is well pleased with his trip. Charles Schwake, of lily of the valley fame, who also visited St. Louis, is yet in the west.

Calling recently on G. Laufenburger, 2660 Third avenue, we found him very busy. Though comparatively a young man, he is old in service, having been in that one location for 25 years.

Calling on Charles H. Brown, 2366 Broadway, on February 5, we found him and his staff rushed with business. We doubt if from week to week there is a busier store on Broadway.

good stores, one on 125th street, the other on Willis avenue, took a trip to Vermont during the past week.

George L. Rondires, 2164 Eighth avenue, has one of the best retail stores in that part of the city, and being a daily buyer in the wholesale district, keeps good stock.

Leonard Guttman, youngest son of A. J. and Mrs. Guttman, recently graduated from the grammar school and received a gold medal as the "high man" of his class.

Mrs. J. G. Phillips, of Brooklyn, a past president of the Ladies' Society of American Florists, who has been quite ill for some weeks, is now greatly improved.

Peter Cosmos, 2107 Third avenue, was very busy during the past week with weddings and funeral work, and he is keeping up a fine stock.

Miss Mabel Conkling, late bookkeeper for H. E. Froment, who has been ill in a hospital, is rapidly recovering.

VICK'S FAMOUS ASTERS

A WORD ABOUT OUR SEED FARMS

The picture of Asters above was taken on our Orchard Farm. Only a few years ago our entire crop of Asters was grown on this farm. The demand has grown to such an extent that we shall cultivate, next summer, 250 acres, 125 of which consists of Asters. Even in our efforts to keep up with the demand, we are working still harder to get larger and better varieties. During the summer and autumn months, particularly during August and September, thousands of people visit our farms for the purpose of seeing the vast expanse of flowers, of which we grow many other kinds besides Asters. Last year our field of Phlox Drummondii attracted much attention. In fact, we grow more or less of a large number of varieties all the way from Sweet Alyssum down the alphabetical list to Zinnias. At the time when the flowers were at the height of bloom, about the middle of September, a careful estimate one Sunday placed the number of visitors at more than seven thousand, and 1300 automobiles. Florists and others are always welcome to visit our farms and to study the various varieties needed in their trade.

PRICES HOLD UP WELL.

After two weeks of the mildest kind of spring weather which made a decided change in the local flower market, we are now experiencing real cold winter again. The supply of flowers continues to be good and prices are holding out very well in everything with the possible exception of some lines of bulbous stock. Roses are still on the short end, however, but carnations are plentiful and of excellent quality. Sweet peas are in good supply and moving well. Some surpassing types of Spencers are being handled by the wholesalers. It may be possible that the recent warm spell will bring on the Easter crops too soon, and some of the growers were kept guessing as to what the outlook would be, but with a continuation of cold weather, there will remain little to worry about.

CLUB MEETINGS.

The monthly meeting of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held Tuesday, February 1, at the Fort Pitt hotel. The occasion being election night with an illustrated lecture, brought out a large attendance. The following officers were elected to serve for 1915: Carl Becherer, president; E. C. Reineman, vice-president; H. P. Joslin, secretary; T. P. Langhans, treasurer; W. A. Clarke, assistant treasurer. The executive committee will serve as follows: P. S. Randolph, C. H. Sample, and A. Frishkorn. Thos. Sturgiss of Sewickley Heights was elected to membership. Some excellent exhibits of cyclamens were exhibited by Messrs. Murphy, Curren and Moore, all of whom described their methods of growing such specimen plants. Mr. Rapp showed a novel Primula obconica along with a few cyclamens. All the exhibitors were awarded cultural certificates. Then followed an intensely interesting lecture with lantern slides by Fred Bigger of the arts commission of Pittsburgh, entitled "The City Beautiful," comparing our own parks and avenues to those of many other neighboring cities, which made all concerned feel somewhat ashamed of their own home city. A few slides showing the future Pittsburgh as "The City Beautiful," visions of which some day may be a realization brought the meeting to a close. Don't forget the next meeting, Tuesday, March 7.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20-22, 1916.

VISITED Chicago: Carl Chesmore, of Chesmore-Eastlake Mer. Co., St. Joseph, Mo.

THE below-zero weather has not helped the mail-order seed trade in the middle west.

DENISON, IA.—The Denison Seed Co. has opened its new establishment, especially adapted to the business.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, February 9, were as follows: Timothy, $6 to $8 per 100 pounds.

SPRINGFIELD, KY.—B. D. Lake & Co. have discontinued business. All outstanding accounts are being handled by Polin & Polin.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—W. W. Harnden, president of the Harnden Seed Co., is spoken of as a mayoralty candidate at the coming primaries.

LEXINGTON, MASS.—The Breck-Robinson Co., located here, has taken over the gladiolus business of Chamberlain & Co., of Wellesley, Mass., with their stock, equipment, etc.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—John C. Bodger, of John Bodger & Sons Co., writing February 1, says: "We are still having heavy rains and if they continue much longer serious loss will result."

THE Sunday magazine section of the Philadelphia Record, the Spring Planting Number, issued January 30, features Burpee's new Sweet Pea Fiery Cross in colors on the front cover, a fine piece of publicity work for the well known sweet pea specialists.

ONE Holland bulb grower writes as follows, January 8.—"We expect the price of single, early and Darwin tulips will be higher. Narcissus about the same, with the exception probably of double Von Sion; stocks seem to be smaller. Hyacinths will be low again, although not as cheap as during August 1915."

GILROY, CALIF.—L. W. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., writing January 31, says: "The storms have been more serious in southern California than up here and I have not learned of any serious damage to seed growers. The worst feature is the delay in planting late crops such as lettuce."

NEW YORK.—John R. Walsh, the active member of the Anglin & Walsh Co., Inc., has just returned from an extended trip and has brought in a large number of orders. This firm is located at 335 Broadway and is handling plants, seeds and bulbs. Mr. Walsh was, for about eight years, employed in Vaughan's Seed Store, New York, and is a clever and amiable man.

Griswold Seed Co. Sale.

Property of the Griswold Seed Company, Lincoln, Neb., bankrupt, valued by appraisers at $114,000, was sold January 29, by Referee Peterson for $23,900. All of the property owned by the company was included in the sale with the exception of a small cottage and two lots it stands on in College View, valued at $1,000.

Frank P. Quick secured the entire seed department, including the retail stock and fixtures, the wholesale stock and office fixtures, the good will and book accounts and the equity in the wholesale storage warehouse and the machinery therein for $7,500. The personal property embraced in this part of the sale was valued at $26,000, while the equity in the warehouse was fixed at $12,000 and the value of the machinery, $7,000. For $13,500 the greenhouse on Fifteenth street, real and personal property therein and the O street store, went to Joseph K. Hiltner.

H. J. Johns of Sioux City, Ia., purchased the Normal greenhouse and some elm trees for $2,900. The bidding was by no means spirited, although half a hundred seedmen, florists, lawyers and business men spent two hours in the chilly offices of the company at Eighth and N streets while Referee Peterson was endeavoring to induce the bidders to loosen up. Mr. Peterson offered the floral department and the seed departments separately. The floral department was made up of three items, but the Fifteenth street greenhouse was the only one that at first came up to the referee's expectations. Mr. Hiltner's bid was allowed to stand for a while, but it was eventually accepted. There is a mortgage of $6,500 on the property, but for the price he paid Mr. Hiltner gets it free of incumbrance. This property was appraised at $20,000.

All sorts of expedients were adopted in order to get some bid worth while for the seed department. This was made up of four items, which were offered together, then separately, then together, then in combination. An out-of-town seedsmen was the only opponent of Mr. Quick, and the bidding ran up from $4,000. The equity in the building was bid in by Mr. Quick at $500. The appraisers fixed the value at $55,000 and that of the machinery in it at $7,000. The Field Trust company of Lincoln, allied with First National bank interests, holds a mortgage for $40,000 on the property and also on the Normal greenhouse, but agreed to release the lien on the latter if $2,000 cash were paid. This was valued at $5,500, and was secured by Mr. Johns for $2,900.

The total amount of the unsecured claims against the company is in the neighborhood of $85,000, while the secured claims total around $45,000. The company was built up by W. B. Griswold, who owns practically all of the stock in the corporation, and who is wiped out by these proceedings. It is expected that he will be placed in charge by Mr. Quick. Some unfortunate deals in an uncertain seed market, combined with the fact that he did not have sufficient capital to take care of a rapidly expanding business, led to his difficulties.

The largest unsecured claim is that of W. H. Small & Co., of Evansville,

A survey of the seed potato situation in Michigan as a measure towards relieving the threatened shortage of potatoes for planting next spring, is planned by C. W. Waide of the Michigan Agricultural College, extension specialist in tubers.

IRVINGTON, N. J.—Frank W. Van Emburgh has filed a suit for $3,000 against the town authorities for damages resulting in crops of strawberries, rhubarb and asparagus by removal of his greenhouses to make way for municipal improvements.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 8.—Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 25 to 30 cents per carton; lettuce, cases 25 to 30 cents; radishes, 45 cents to 50 cents per dozen bunches; celery, 10 to 25 cents per bunch; tomatoes, six baskets, $2.00 to $2.75; cucumbers, dozen, $1.00 to $1.50.

New York, February 8.—Celery, per bunch of 12 stalks, 15 to 50 cents; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.50 per drum; mushrooms, $1.40 to $1.75 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 25 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.50 to $3.00; lettuce, per dozen, 15 cents to 60 cents.

Italy's Trade in Mushrooms.

In 1914, according to government statistics, Italy exported $327,000 worth of mushrooms, the quantity shipped being about 251 long tons, as compared with 296 tons in 1910, 432 tons in 1911, 468 tons in 1912, and 359 tons in 1913. The United States took 39 tons; Argentina, 168 tons; Uruguay, 16 tons; while the remainder went principally to other South American countries. Mushrooms are not cultivated in this consular district, nor, as far as can be learned, in any other part of Italy. The greater part of the supply in this district comes from the mountainous regions of Pistoia and the Casentino, where they grow wild in considerable quantities. They are brought by the peasants into the large towns, where they are sold at retail at $0.26 to $0.60 a pound. Those gathered in Piedmont and Liguria are said to be of better quality than the Tuscan, selling at $0.70 to $1.35 a pound. It is said that they are dried and shipped abroad in sacks and bags. The export of mushrooms from the Florence district is small. Those shipped are packed in cans.

Crop Improvement.

In place of the lengthy report of the committee on crop improvement, presented at the recent annual meeting of the American Seed Trade Association, we give the following abstract dictated by the chairman of the committee:

"The investigations of the committee on crop improvement developed two distinct phases. The first was along the lines of the original intent of the appointment of the committee, namely, the recommendation that individual members so far as possible co-operate to the fullest extent in encouraging work in their respective states or sections with the various agricultural and educational agencies, such as the farm demonstration work fathered by the United States Department of Agriculture and its collateral branches, such as the boys' corn clubs, girls' canning clubs, etc., together with similar efforts being made by state agricultural colleges and experiment stations, etc.

"The second phase resulted from inquiries made of the officers of the state experiment stations and members of the faculty of agricultural colleges, this phase touching on the question of so-called pure seed legislation which has been considered by this association in various forms for several years. This investigation entailed correspondence with experiment stations and agricultural colleges in every state in the union and the work was divided between the chairman of the committee, Mr. Hastings and Mr. Wheeler, of Mitchell, S. D., a former experiment station worker. The result of these investigations led us to recommend to the association the appointment of a committee to confer with a similar committee from the association of experiment station work so that each side can lay before us its problems and opinions, with the end in view that each side may be able to the fullest possible extent to realize and understand the view point of the other, and reconcile those differences to the greatest extent possible to the end that said legislation to be advocated in the future shall be thoroughly practicable and workable, giving all reasonable protection to the seed buyer and placing the least possible burden on the seedsmen or seed dealers who are doing a legitimate business in high grade seeds. The recommendation of this committee so far as future seed legislation is concerned would be to confine all pure seed legislation to the grasses, clovers and agricultural seeds in general, thus confining legislation to seeds that are distinguishable in the grain."

Pacific Coast Trees in Western Norway.

The satisfactory transplanting of trees from America's Pacific coast to western Norway has become a matter of interest to Stavanger's forestry association. This society has this month combined with a similar society in Bergen, and the new "West Coast Trial Station" has decided to send an expedition to America next spring to bring back more trees.

The American varieties of greatest interest to Stavanger foresters are the Douglas and Sitka pines. In 1892 several of the former were planted in this district, and they have proved a success. In another coast town, about 600 miles north of here, where, however, the climate is similar, both varieties have thriven.

There are at present, it is stated, but two kinds of native coniferous trees—the pine and the fir—that are seen on Norway's western coast. The chief forester of the new association has called attention to the fact that there are 400 varieties of such trees, many of which might prove suited to this West Coast climate. It is mild in winter and cool in summer, and there is much rain. In many ways it resembles the climate of our State of Washington, and it is to that state in particular that the new expedition expects to go.

This section has long had a crying need for more trees, and there have been many introductions in past years which have not proven successful.

This, according to forestry experts, is because due consideration has not been given to the original environment of the variety introduced. A German variety of fir, which seemed a remarkably good forest tree, was planted here, but did not do well. The Siberian silver fir, used to severe inland weather, has not made good in this locality, although it has done well in parts of northern Norway. The Austrian fir, from the mountains of southern Europe, has been tried with a similar lack of success, and the white pine has also done poorly here, although it would seem to have better soil conditions and a milder climate than in its original habitat. The Pacific coast introductions are expected to do better than those from the inland sections mentioned.

The district of Stavanger's new tree nursery expects, within a few years, to send out 1,500,000 plants annually. Here it is expected to try out some of the new varieties from America. Trees usually grow very slowly in this section.

Vitis Coignetiae in Illinois.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Is Vitis Coignetiae hardy in Illinois? SUBSCRIBER.

Vitis Coignetiae is perfectly hardy here in Illinois, but so far as we have found it does not get a strong growth quickly. This may be due to the fact that strong plants are not available. It is certainly the best vine we have for large effects, owing to its fine foliage and wonderful autumn coloring.

DEMAND FOR ALL STOCKS HEAVY.

Stock during the past week has been very plentiful, carnations especially at times overloading the market. Daffodils are coming in fast at present and the quality is good. Tulips are also to be had, and while they are of good quality they are short of stem. The demand for them, however, is not very heavy at this time. Sweet peas sell well for corsage work. Freesias are good stock. The markets seem to be well supplied with a large variety of seasonable flowers, and as the demand in all lines has been very good, there is no surplus at any time.

NOTES.

The Westminster Greenhouses are well stocked this year and at present are cutting exceptionally fine daffodils. A large variety of cut flowers and plants are kept on hand at all times to take care of trade, both wholesale and retail.

Salesmen representing several of the largest supply houses in the country have been here during the past week and all report trade as being very good.

Heart-shaped boxes for the St. Valentine's day trade and other appropriate novelties are being featured and the local trade anticipates a very good business.

H. A. T.

Pasadena, Calif.

The florists in this city are feeling jubilant over the prospects for good business. There has been an unusual amount of sickness this winter and consequently more than the usual amount of funeral work. Weddings we always have with us, the same as deaths. The hotels are opening late this year consequently floral work for parties along that line has been nil but is beginning to pick up somewhat now. Many of the tourists, however, are still crying hard times.

NOTES.

The Orchid Flower Shop is always a busy place. They report this as being the busiest season in the history of the establishment. Roses, especially Ophelia, Shawyer, Prima Donna and Hadley, were a feature here. Two first prizes and one second prize were captured by this firm's entries at the recent rose tournament.

The nurserymen in this section are preparing for a heavy trade as soon as the rains permit planting. The consensus of opinion among them is that since business has been so poor for the past two years, a good season should be coming to them.

Eldred's Flower Shop is doing a good business. A noteworthy showing of cinerarias was seen at the time of the writer's visit and the force was busy preparing for a big reception at one of the leading hotels.

Why Duo-Glazed Sash for Hotbeds?

Because it takes most of the labor and nearly all the risk out of Hotbed and Coldframe gardening.

With Duo-Glazed Sash—two layers of glass with insulating air space between—no shutters or night coverings are needed. Think of the labor saved. Being frost-proof, which single glazed sash is not, a sudden change in temperature isn't going to catch you unprepared. Think of the saving in plants.

The cost of Duo-Glazed Sash over that of the single glazed (about 33c on the sash and 75c for glass) is no more than the cost of night coverings, without any consideration of the labor cost of handling the covers.

Strongly built of Red Cypress, tenons cross-rotted before joining. Duo-Glazed lockstrip makes glazing easy and quick, and prevents any possibility of slipping or splintering.

In lots of 60 sash the cost of 3 ft. x 6 ft. size is but $1.75 each; smaller quantities only slightly more.

Since we also make and sell Single Glass Putty Glazed Sash, our advice is unbiased.

Ask for our free catalog, which also shows Frame Equipment, Sectional Greenhouses and Greenhouse Materials.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Early Annuals.

During the warm days of June the carnations deteriorate very rapidly and there is often a great need for some flower to take their place, and an early bench of asters is a great boon at such a time, especially for those who have a good call for funeral work. Seed planted during February and grown in pots or flats until after Easter can be then transplanted to the benches in which the Easter crops are grown and they will be in bloom at the time when most desired. A good strain of early flowering varieties, either Comet or Victoria, should be selected and with good care a paying crop is assured. A sowing of candytuft by March 1 will also produce plants that can be benched after Easter in the same manner and a good cut for Memorial day be had. The strains of White Giant candytuft now offered make splendid spikes for the filling in of sprays at that great flower day. There are many annuals that can be grown for early spring blooming that are greatly appreciated by the trade, among which might be mentioned calendulas, nasturtiums, scabiosa, sweet sultans and bachelor's buttons.

Dahlias.

The forcing of early dahlias has been practiced successfully by growers the last few years, and roots started at this time will produce flowers for Memorial day and during June. A good deep bench, in a house not too warm, should be selected, and while the plants are great feeders in the open ground, it is better not to have the soil too rich in the houses, for the plants grow very tall inside, and with a rich soil make a strong, rampant growth, which will not bloom as early. They can be fed when the buds begin to form by giving them a mulch of half-decayed manure, which will materially assist the flowering and also provide a covering that will prevent evaporation. They will require but little attention except that long, strong stakes will be necessary to keep the plants growing erect, to which they should be firmly tied, and then disbudded to produce the better blooms. Any varieties of which it is desired to increase the stock can be planted in the house and the young growths made into cuttings, which root easily at this time.

Marguerites.

As the warm days of spring approach the marguerite plants will bloom profusely and those in pots will have, to a great extent, exhausted the plant food in the soil, so to keep up the size of the flower and length of stem watering with liquid manure will be necessary. Liquid cow manure can be safely used in frequent waterings with no danger of any injury if the plants are in a healthy condition. The flowers should be cut daily and placed in water; they will keep much longer than if allowed to remain on the plants, where they quickly fade if not picked when the warm spring days come on. This should be prevented, for it not only gives the plant an untidy appearance but takes the strength of the plants and the following flowers are often much shorter in stem. A few well bloomed plants are very decorative at Easter, especially in churches, where they make a splendid showing. Propagation for next year's stock should now be carried on; the cuttings root easily and there are plenty to be obtained at this time. As soon as rooted they should be grown on in good soil, and to secure the best results another year given the best of culture.

Azaleas.

The azaleas for spring flowering and Easter will soon need attention. If they have been in cold pits they should be brought into cool houses, and those that have been kept in cool houses will need spacing out and a careful going over. March and April being nearer their natural time of blooming than those brought into flower early in the winter, the plants will not have to be forced as hard and are much better brought along in a cooler temperature. The plants, however, that bloom later will require more attention, especially in regard to pinching out the soft growths that start around the cluster of buds. This should be done as early as possible and with great care, so as not to injure or break the buds. These soft growths grow very rapidly at this time and if they attain any length, quickly draw the nourishment from the stem and blast the buds, so it will require constant attention to keep them pinched off. They should be looked over at least once a week and all young shoots removed. Give the plants plenty of room so as to allow a good circulation of air, that the plants can dry off after syringing. These plants are often crowded together as closely as possible, but this invariably results in the loss of much foliage and the plant grows out of shape.

What to do with the plants that have flowered is often a question. Many growers assert that a better and earlier plant can be produced the second year than can be bought abroad and imported, but to do this the plant must be given good culture and not placed in some out-of-the-way corner where it suffers for lack of air, light and water. Whatever trimming into shape the plant requires should be done now, and the plant given an opportunity to start a new growth. As early as it is safe from all frosts the plants can be plunged outside in a frame and during the summer a mulch should be spread over the soil to prevent too much evaporation. Frequent syringings may be required during hot weather to keep down red spider, these plants being quickly infested with these insects in certain localities and they quickly ruin the foliage. Like all hard-wooded stock, be sure they do not get dry. They do not show it as quickly as the soft-wooded plants and often when it is seen it is too late to remedy the injury done.

Cannas.

One of the most decorative beds for summer, especially if it is of large size, is a bed of blooming cannas, for they are very showy and will bloom throughout the summer until frost cuts them down, and the varieties have been greatly improved during the last decade. To make the best showing the plants should be started early enough to have good strong stock at bedding-out time in May and June. The plants should be started by March 1 and now is the time to procure stock of varieties of which the grower is short or which he has not on hand. The clumps when removed from the winter storage should have all the old soil shaken off, the dried up stalk and roots cut away. They are then cut up into small pieces and if the stock is plentiful two or three eyes can be left to each piece, but where stock is short they are cut up to single eyes although with single eyes many weak plants will be produced. Often the clumps have started into growth and where this has happened the eyes should be sorted, those already started being planted together and the dormant eyes by themselves. Have boxes all ready and place an inch of soil on the bottom and then place the divisions on this closely together and cover with light, sifted soil and then water thoroughly. Keep the varieties separate and properly labeled, each box to contain but one variety and the name plainly marked on the box, for labels are often lost or misplaced. Place the boxes in a warm location—where hot water heating is used they can be placed on the return pipes. In two or three weeks the plants will have made sufficient roots to be placed in 3½ or 4-inch pots, when they can be grown on in a house with a temperature of 50° to 60°. In planting cannas outside it should always be remembered that they are very tender and should not be set out until all danger of late frost is past.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

DES MOINES, IA.—The J. S. Wilson Floral Co. had a very effective St. Valentine's day advertisement in the Des Moines Capital, February 11, covering a full page of that paper.

The Fluted Column Pedestal.

The accompanying illustration shows a very useful accessory—ornamental and durable; a pedestal on which may be displayed anything that it is desired to feature, a handsome plant, basket of growing plants or of flowers, or as is the purpose at this time, a rose float or shallow flower bowl is shown to good advantage.

This pedestal, made of wood, is hollow with solid top and bottom; it is 12 inches in diameter, 38 inches in height and painted in white enamel. A few of these pedestals will be found useful and ornamental, giving decorative effect to most stores.

They are light enough to be easily transported and placed on the outer edges of groups of plants. To support vases or baskets of flowers in fine decorations they are very effective. If enclosed in muslin bags, when not in use, they are easily kept clean, and when shop-worn through use can be made new with a coat of white enamel.

The Fernery.

The table fernery is one of the staple articles of the retail business. After the opening of the season the tins or inner linings keep dropping in to be filled, until in some places there is almost enough in this line to keep one employe busy with this alone.

To handle this work properly it should be done with system. A stoutly bound book, with indexed leaves, should be kept by the man in charge and a careful record made of every filling, just what ferns were used, the number, and if a palm or other plant was used for the center. The reason for this is that persons forget from one time to another just how long the fernery lasts, and one often hears the complaint, "My fernery did not keep at all well this time, the ferns were droopy when I received it," or "It was frozen when it arrived," when as a matter of fact it had been neglected and dried out. On referring to the record the different times of filling are seen at a glance and what is declared only a week, turns out to be three weeks or even a month, which is about as long as most ferneries will keep presentable in the ordinary dwelling.

PICTORIAL PART OF THE J. S. WILSON FLORAL CO.'S FULL PAGE ST. VALENTINE DAY ADVERTISEMENT IN THE DES MOINES CAPITAL, FEBRUARY 11.

An important matter is that the clerk taking the order for refilling should ascertain the variety of ferns desired. There are not many sorts, five varieties in fact being enough to give change of form and color. Well grown plants of Pteris nobilis, Aspidium tsusimense, Cyrtomium falcatum, Pteris Mayii and P. albo-lineata, in two and one-half inch pots are ideal for the work. Many are grown in three inch pots, but to get them into the shallow tins too much root must be cut away and this is hard on the plants. In filling, much care should be taken to make the work uniform; very often two of a kind are planted together on one side and this makes the dish look lopsided. Many prefer to have only one kind, Cyrtomium falcatum often being used alone on account of its bright, glossy foliage. Aspidium tsusimense is another favored sort, its feathery fronds being much admired.

In filling care should be taken to have the plants so placed that the fronds fall over the edge of the dish so as to hide the soil, as keeping a bit away from the center gives more air and light all through. A small Kentia, or a cocos, is an addition as a center plant standing above the other foliage and will generally outlive several fillings of ferns. The dish when ready for delivery should be spotlessly clean. So often when it is about finished and dipped in the tub to water and wash off the outside of the tin, it is placed on the bench and given a few touches with dirt covered hands which soils the foliage. This is not apparent when wet, but shows very plainly when dried out in the warm dining room, where, when other topics are overdone, the everpresent centerpiece is sure to come in for criticism.

Prices should be as uniform as possible, as often in the fall, when ferns are plentiful and generally of good size it does not take as many plants as after the holidays, when second crop plants are not nearly so full and more are required to get the same effect. It is best if possible to get a satisfactory price for the first filling and keep to that if possible for each successive time. Many times the order is just a fern to replenish this or that side, but it is best to get the order to renew entire if possible as partial filling is never satisfactory, the old plants, with their roots disturbed, fading away very fast and the dish soon looks badly.

Some customers have two sets of dishes, one at the greenhouse, growing, while the others are in use at the house. Another plan is to have small seed pans filled with ferns coming on, which can be transferred bodily into the tin dish or other center, or perhaps fits the receptacle as it is, without having to be transferred. It is well to make a round of the customers once in a while to see how the fernery is being treated. They appreciate the attention as well as the directions given for its care.

If this department of the business is well managed, and it is easily worth the trouble it may take to make it satisfactory, it has great value in establishing confidence in the firm. Many good accounts have commenced with preliminary work of this kind. Promptness is a great factor in the case, as so often when guests arrive, it is noticed at the last minute, that the fernery needs refilling and to get and return the dish at once will nearly always be possible and greatly appreciated.

A Treasure of the Humble.

A geranium blossom has been perfected measuring six inches across. Where? you ask. Where but in California. To see achievement with all that grows, one turns to that state. However, it was not of California, but of the geranium, that we started to sing. We are not eager to see peony geraniums. When one thinks of geraniums, he thinks of a bloom modest in size, but brave in scarlet, the color of good cheer. For the geranium is a treasure of the humble. In countless pots it fills the sunny south window of the sunny housewife. The little country school marm can see it as she gazes across the heads of her plodding scholars out of the school window, and may take heart thereby. Then there is the geranium which thrives and blossoms from its battered tin can on the window sill of the slum tenement, not only brightening the cell of its owner, but lifting the hearts of dwellers across the air well or alley. What is the spell of this humble plant that makes it so potent to give happiness? Not its foliage, patterned and neat as that is. Perhaps the secret was known to the blind girl who said that, as nearly as she could imagine it, scarlet must be like the note of a bugle.—Collier's Weekly.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Working Up Stock For Planting.

Now that the month of February is at hand, the chrysanthemum grower is reminded that it is time to think about working up the chrysanthemum stock for the coming season's planting and to act accordingly by getting the stock plants in shape and making preparations for propagating the young plants. The first thing on the programme is to make sure everything is well with the stock plants, so that they will respond with a generous number of clean, healthy cuttings. Where large quantities of cuttings are needed the usual plan is to plant the stock plants in a bench where they will get all the light possible and can be given such attention as they need as regards watering, airing and temperature. When this plan can be followed out there is no other that will beat it, but every grower has not this available bench space to devote to stock plants, consequently some other method of caring for his stock has to be worked out. Stock plants that have been carried over winter in shallow flats or pots, and are now standing on the bench in a light, airy house, can remain there and the cuttings taken as they are ready from time to time, but if the flats and pots have been carried over along the edges of the walks or under the benches they must be brought to the light and air if first class cuttings and plants is the object in view. The main thing to bear in mind regarding the stock plants is to encourage them in their task of producing cuttings without forcing them in any manner, either by too liberal amount of water or by high close temperature. The plants should be kept in moderately dry condition at the roots; not enough to cause any wilting of the growths, but so that the roots will be active all the time. They are also benefited by occasional syringings when the weather will permit, and a very important part of their care is to keep the insect pest in check by frequently using the nicotine preparations, either by fumigating or spraying.

Chrysanthemums are not overly particular about the propagating house or bench; any place where carnations can be successfully rooted will also do for them, the main consideration is not to allow the cuttings to wilt at any stage of their existence, but aim to keep them firm and plump all the time; excessive wilting can generally be traced to too much draught and should be guarded against by using a muslin shading above the propagating bed on bright days when it is necessary to ventilate the house. The cloth shading can be fitted on wires by rings so that when not in use it can be drawn to one end of the bench—a little figuring out by the man in charge will solve the problem of fitting up the cloth shade according to the conditions of the bench under consideration.

It is yet early to commence propagating the quick growing standard commercial varieties, but it is none too early to begin on the early sorts and many of the short jointed, slow growing varieties such as Ivory, Polly Rose and Virginia Poehlmann. The exhibiton varieties should also be propagated now; early propagation with liberal treatment from start to finish is what gives size and petalage to the big exhibition blooms. Growers who grow for their own retail trade, will do well to try a bench of the early propagating and early planted big fellows—they are a great attraction.

This is the time to buy some of the new varieties to tone up your collection, and many of them now being offered, both for commercial and exhibition purposes, will prove decided acquisitions. Every year many new varieties are offered, both for commercial and exhibition purposes. Last year a long list was disseminated, many of them being good commercial sorts worthy of any grower's attention. Among them we might mention Golden Queen, a fine early yellow; Crystal Gem, a fine early white; Early Frost, another good early white; Antigone, a fine white of grand form; White Chieftain, very popular commercial white; Calumet, a fine, early, light bronze, will sell on sight; Tekonsha, a fine late bronze; Modello, a fine, golden amber, a beautiful flower in every way, and when making your list do not forget to include some plants of Oconto, an introduction of 1914, early, large, white; was one of the top notch early varieties on the Chicago market in 1915. Try a bench of the newer pompons—Harvest Moon is one of the best yellows for October; Illona is a fine deep pink; Neola is a good, light pink; Lillian Doty is a fine pearl pink; Helen Newberry is the best late white pompon, and when disbudded makes very pretty round blooms. Golden Climax has won its place as the most popular yellow pompon. Golden West is a beauty of the yellow buttons. Golden Harvest, a light bronze, is another popular variety and Western Beauty, lavender pink, is mentioned by a number of growers as the best, late, deep pink pompon. All of the varieties mentioned are worthy of every grower's consideration. C. W. JOHNSON.

Tri-City Florists' Club.

The monthly meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held Tuesday, February 10, at the residence of Wm. Goos, Bettendorf, Iowa. This was one of the best attended, most interesting and enjoyable meetings ever held in the history of the club. The main business of the meeting was the consideration of the reports from the various committees in charge of the arrangements for the forthcoming convention and flower show, of the Illinois Florists' Association, to be held at Turner hall, Moline, Ill., March 7-8.

Satisfactory progress was reported by all of the committees at this meeting. John Staack, Moline, one of the vice-presidents of the Illinois State Florists' Association, volunteered to furnish the orchestra for the banquet, and Ludwig Stapp invited the convention visitors to his place for lunch, March 8. As the convention matters completely over-shadowed everything else at this meeting no reports were made as to the trade conditions in the Tri-Cities. The meeting adjourned after a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Goos for their whole hearted hospitality to meet in special meeting at Rock Island Turner hall, February 24, at 2:30 p. m. A. A.

THE ROSE.

The Cutting Bench.

Propagating by grafting has of course many advocates, and as we have often stated in these columns, there are soils where it is poor policy to try and produce good stock on its own roots. Then again, where one has a choice of soils, and particularly a good heavy clay soil, nearly all of our leading indoor fancy varieties of roses can be grown to perfection on their own roots. Each method of propagating has its advocates, but we are inclined to believe it is much a matter of soil.

Yet we must have own root stock under any circumstances to take care of our orders for same, and for varieties which for forcing are practically a failure except on own roots. Sunburst, Radiance, American Beauty and Maryland are seldom seen doing well, except where they are being grown on their own roots. There are also others, but these four varieties are the important ones at the present time.

We will now give a few details in reference to propagating roses by cuttings, a subject that surely is familiar to most all growers; a well worn subject one may say, yet a most important one if one lacks experience, and one that requires a great amount of care on the best regulated ranges in order to strike a high percentage of the cuttings and turn out young stock that will in turn build up this branch of the business.

We have described the various methods of building a propagating house, benches, etc., both with the brick bottom and of wooden construction. Of course for durability the concrete wall and brick bottom bench are practically everlasting, yet the first cost is considerable, but the wooden benches, carefully constructed of good material, will give one excellent results and will last for many seasons if properly cared for. And again, on a small place the grower may be forced to arrange a propagating bench almost anywhere the essential thing being to have the bench where it will be away from all draughts, and one that can be shaded quite handily without casting shade on some other growing plants.

To begin, arrange the bench to hold three inches of sand after it is firmly packed. Have the bench thoroughly clean and then apply a thin coat of hot lime wash, that will penetrate every crack and crevice of the bench. Let the bench become thoroughly dry before placing the sand on it. The sand should be a medium grade of good clean bank sand, free from vegetable matter of any kind. Fill the bench and give the sand a good soaking, then pound it down good and hard; a solid, hardwood block, 6x8 inches square and from 2 to 2½ inches thick, with a handle in the center, makes a good tool to firm the sand, which should be packed as hard as possible. There should be enough bottom heat inclosed to get the sand up to a temperature of 68° to 70°, with an overhead temperature of 58° to 60°. By using dairy thermometers inserted in the sand here and there, the correct temperature can readily be ascertained.

When taking off the wood for cuttings select only good clean stock, and avoid all ripened up, blind growth. One would hardly reasonably expect to get blooming plants of a high order by propagating blind wood, so select wood if not actually carrying buds, wood that will eventually produce a flower, and also use as much of the short stemmed flowering wood as possible. Remove the wood only as fast as it can be made up into cuttings while it is absolutely fresh. It should be placed on clean paper in a cool shaded house and sprinkled carefully; also sprinkle the cuttings frequently up to the time they are placed in the sand. Use a very sharp knife and make as many cuttings with a heel as possible. The best cuttings are those three eyes in length. Two-eyed cuttings are good, but the extra eyes or eye will really repay one for the extra amounts of wood it will require to get up the stock. Do not over trim the cutting—leave all the foliage, except where it enters the sand, and the tips of the leaves, which are only trimmed to avoid taking up room in the bed. The stems of the cuttings should be inserted down about two inches in the sand. Have a strip 2½ inches wide, ¼ of an inch thick and cut to fit inside the bed crosswise. It should be placed smoothly and perfectly straight. This will answer a double purpose, first in laying off the rows and forming a tamping stick at the same time.

Open up the row, using an old table knife broken off at a length that will reach to a depth of about two inches in the sand. Insert the cuttings from one inch to one and one-half inches in the row, according to the size of the cuttings. After filling the row, bring the stick up snugly against the cuttings, and with a short handled hammer tap the stick throughout its length, which will pack the sand firmly around the cuttings. Some prefer to use the finger tips to pack the sand, but the stick, when one becomes accustomed to its use, is perhaps the easiest and quickest method. Give the cuttings a good soaking with water that has been tempered, and be sure to use water that is tempered to correspond with the temperature of the sand when watering at any time. The cuttings (if good sharp sand is used) will require watering every day probably if clear and must be sprinkled at least over head on clear days. A light shading should be used for about three weeks. This can be made of muslin or light cotton cloth, tacked on light frames and supported at least a foot above the cuttings or an arrangement of cloth can be put on wires over-head that can be drawn up out of the way when not in use. The former method of shading will be found the better of the two, as the covered frames can be used for other purposes, or if packed away carefully, they will last for several years. Do not crowd the cuttings by having the foliage overlapping too much; space them so there will be rather a free circulation of air between the rows. The cuttings will (under favorable conditions) root within 24 days. When the roots have attained a length of $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ of an inch pot at once.

When taking cuttings of American Beauty select some of the long canes or runners that one seldom has any trouble finding on the plant at this season. All of this wood is blooming wood, but do not use every eye. Make cuttings of two eyes and select the medium ripe wood in the center of the canes; that is, do not go too near the hard wood at the base of the cane or approach too near to the soft tips. In this way a uniform ripeness of the wood is secured and the result will be a more or less even strike in the sand. After about 15 days the cuttings can be allowed a little of the morning and afternoon sun, increasing the amount gradually while the cuttings are removed for potting. E.

New Roses.

Address of E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., before the Chicago Florists' Club, February 10, 1916.

It would have been better could you have prevailed upon one of your local members to perform this service, for surely where rose growing occupies so large a field as at Chicago, opportunity to write up new roses from observation and information certainly obtains over that given to one distant from the great centers.

To go back to the introduction of Sunburst, and consider the qualities, good and bad, of those introduced since the advent of this famous yellow rose is, I take it, what you have in mind. Quite a number of varieties believed to have forcing possibilities have appeared during this time; some have made good, others are succeeding in some places, while failing in other localities. A case in point is the celebrated Mrs. Chas. Russell. This rose has made good, if we may credit all that is said about it by the Chicago growers; in fact, growers distant from Chicago are succeeding admirably with it, while on the other hand, failure has attended the growing of this rose by some very up-to-date and experienced growers, and with a goodly number has disappointment followed their best efforts. A recent visit south was instructive and of great interest as pertains to Mrs. Chas. Russell; it was, in the great majority of the places in the south, doing remarkably well, and thriving amazingly in a few places. It occurred to your speaker that the rose likes abundant sunshine and considerable heat to do its best, but your club members are better able to discuss this point than myself. This rose has great merit and is well liked by those who appreciate a long stemmed variety that possesses good keeping qualities. Those two qualities certainly give it standing with critical rose buyers. The Waban Rose Conservatories are sending out two sports from Mrs. Russell, which most of you have had opportunity to inspect and criticize. These two varieties, Mrs. Bayard Thayer and Dark Pink Russell, should certainly commend themselves to all who do Russell well. The last named, maintaining as it does, its fine rich color, should make it a dangerous rival of its parent. Mrs. Thayer certainly will be in demand, and I predict a goodly number will be grown in the near future.

Jonkherr J. L. Mock is a variety with an uncertain future—it certainly is a most magnificent rose in the spring time, when there is sufficient sun heat to open its buds. I thought the vase of this rose staged at the New York show in 1914 by Robert Simpson was the handsomest vase of roses ever staged. As a spring and summer rose it should find a place, but it gives too many deformed buds in dark weather to be profitable.

There have been many entries in the red rose class, all trying to oust Richmond, but they are having a hard time of it. Milady, as grown by a very few, would seem desirable, but it has its faults, and with your speaker it has not behaved satisfactorily. W. J. Keimel and Adolph Poehlmann seem to be able to get results. I think Mr. Keimel was undecided some time ago whether or not to go on with the variety, but this gentleman finally said: "I will continue to grow it until I find a better red."

Prince E. C. de Arenberg is unsatisfactory in many ways; it opens wide immediately on exposure to the heat of a room; it is a fine, strong grower, but the size of the bud does not measure up with its fine foliage and heavy stem.

well done. It certainly is fine when grown as it is done in its home town—nothing could be more desirable in a red rose if it were productive enough; its great fault is the unusual amount of blind wood produced, especially in winter. I fear this rose will not hold place for the reason just mentioned.

Hoosier Beauty, as grown for two years at Richmond, Ind., has fully sustained the claims made by the Downers; in fact, visitors who have noted its behavior throughout the winter with us, have only words of praise for the variety. We have had most gratifying results from the 10,000 plants grown by our firm the present season. It has its faults like every other variety, but its virtues offset any tendency to weakness of stem in the short growths of the variety. Unlike Hadley, it does not produce any blind wood. It is fine in color and is a wonderful keeper and shipper. I understand failure has attended the growing of this rose by some of your large growers hereabouts, but further experience I think will put the variety in the front row of forcing reds. Too heavy feed and too much heat are the two things that have caused disappointment. It is a wonderful hot weather rose.

One of the roses most criticized has been Killarney Brilliant. This rose, for some reason or other, did not move off in growth the first season after dissemination; up to December we thought the variety totally lacking in vigor, but after that time and up to the present, its growth and flowering qualities are all that could be desired—certainly its fine color commends it to all, for it does not have the faults of its parent as regards color. I cheerfully commend Killarney Brilliant to all who want an improved Killarney.

Lady Alice Stanley is a beautiful two-toned pink rose and is esteemed by rose fanciers. This is a high class variety and will always bring a good price

(Arvid Anderson, Gardener.)

A few more petals, and a little more scarlet in its color scheme, would have put Crimson Queen in the front rank as a forcing variety.

Francis Scott Key is liked by a few, but I predict its speedy eclipse as a forcing rose.

Hadley is a rose that has had extensive trial and is a grand variety when in the retail shops. It has fine foliage and is free from any tendency to weakness of growth. We shall grow an increased quantity the coming season.

Killarney Queen has had a meteoric existence and is grown in limited quantities only; setting two or three plants together is urged, a few claiming when so planted that it gives a profitable cut.

There have been other sports of Killarney, viz.: Dark Red and the Double Killarney, but these two sorts have been dropped almost entirely.

Double White Killarney has a place and is considered by a great many growers to be a decided acquisition in a white forcing rose. It is certainly superior in summer to the old White Killarney in its keeping qualities.

Madame P. Euler is finding favor with a great many growers on the Pacific slope, and under the bright sunshine and is deservedly popular with all who love a fine bud and a beautiful rose, but it has a tendency to mildew without provocation under seemingly good culture. It is a rose requiring careful handling of the ventilators.

Chas. H. Totty offers Gorgeous and Cleveland, two of the Hugh Dickson productions. These are being put out with the endorsement of Mr. Totty, which certainly is warrant for their introduction.

A. N. Pierson is sending out a Red

You all know about Champ Weiland and you who are here can speak, for I have not seen it.

It is interesting to note the changing conditions in business; in fact, in all lines of trade, and our particular line is no exception to the rule. The rose will always have first place in our calling, and it is well that we, as growers of roses, are catching on to the fact that novelty is one of the potent factors in roses as well as in ribbons, silks and the trimming for the ladies' hats. When in Lyons, France, in 1913, I had opportunity, through the courtesy of a friend, to get an insight into the silk business. I found that hundreds of persons were employed in the designing and pattern rooms of the great establishments. Effort was made to get new designs and new combinations in color schemes—novelty was the one thing aimed at. If change, novelty and patterns were so important in silk goods, why are they not equally important in the rose? Men should attempt to give originality to our business by catering to this unquenchable thirst for something new and distinct. We have in the past been supinely indifferent to this phase of our business, but a new era has dawned, and this means good and not ill, for our business. Rose growers are at work in more earnest effort than ever to meet this new feature of our trade.

We are certainly indebted to Alex. Montgomery, John Cook, the Dicksons, but especially to Pernet Ducher, for what they have done in the way of giving us new varieties of roses. We hear of efforts being made along this line in various parts of our country, and this augurs well for the future of the rose and rose growers.

Chicago Novelty Show.

New things in plants and flowers attracted much attention at the February meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, held in one of the large assembly rooms of the Hotel Morrison, February 10. There was a good display of novelties and the members showed much interest in them. Carnations and roses, as usual, were most numerous, but the new colored freesias exhibited by Alois Frey of Crown Point, Ind., and well displayed by George Wienhoeber, attracted most attention. Another exhibit on which there was con-and climatic conditions of California it will make a large place for itself. Our firm was the first to test and try out this rose after its introduction; we found a small percentage perfected themselves, but the major portion were bull-headed, as the growers use the term. If it succeeds in the eastern part of the United States, I shall be pleased to know it, for it is a beautiful rose when nicely developed.

Lady Hillingdon has gone by the board, so to speak; a few are still growing it, but its tendency to fly open and its lack of petals, have been the determining factors in its non-use.

If a fine corsage and bowl rose is desired I can commend Tipperary as filling the bill. This rose is free in its production of bloom, and is greatly esteemed by our two stores, many preferring it to Mrs. Aaron Ward.

Ophelia—Certainly this magnificent variety deserves all the praise bestowed upon it; a seedling of Antoine Revoire x Taft, having all the good qualities of its parent, without any of its faults. Surely this rose comes nearer being the ideal cut flower forcing rose, measuring up to Killarney in its productiveness, but without its tendency to mildew. As one noted rose grower puts it: "The finest and most useful of all roses." One noted grower said: "What we want is a pink, a red and a white Ophelia, then surely the rose millennium will have come." At Richmond, we have selected out of 2,200 seedlings flowered this present season, some 20 or more to test further. In a cross between Ophelia and Mrs. Geo. Sawyer we seem to have found the good growing qualities of Ophelia with the fine shape and coloring of Sawyer. I might tell you of other seedlings, but if nothing unforeseen happens, we hope to be able to exhibit the coming fall some of the results of patient, careful cross breeding.

Mrs. Geo. Sawyer, with many, is considered the finest of all pink roses, Radiance; also a deeper colored sport from My Maryland. These should be valuable additions for summer cut blooms.

Tip-top is a charmingly colored little gem of a rose in the way of a Polyantha. Nothing imaginable can be more beautiful than the color scheme of this little rose—a corsage made of this little beauty captivates the most fastidious. This variety has only one defect; it lacks stiffness of stem, but as all corsage roses are wired this does not militate against its usefulness.

The Hugh Dickson rose, winner of the $1,000 prize at the Panama-Pacific exposition, is a rich, pure yellow, with extremely long petals and a shapely bud. If it has sufficient petalage, it has all the ear-marks of a great rose for forcing. It certainly made a deep impression upon my mind.

Baur, Indianapolis, Ind.; S. S. Skidelsky, Philadelphia, Pa.; Wm. Graham, Fred Lemon, Richmond, Ind.; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., and C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis.

The following were nominated for membership: A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind.; Wm. Graham, 84 East Jackson boulevard; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; Peter Schaefer, 36 South Wabash avenue, and D. D. P. Roy, 168 North Michigan avenue.

The transportation committee announced the selection of the Rock Island railroad for the State Florists' convention trip to Moline March 7 and the Pennsylvania railroad for the National Flower Show trip to Philadelphia March 25 and the arrangements as announced elsewhere in this issue were confirmed.

New York Florists' Club.

The florists' club met in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building February 14, President Weston in the chair. Vice-president Geo. E. M. Stumpp, who was unable to attend the January meeting, was present and was duly inaugurated. Notwithstanding the zero weather, there was a good attendance. A. L. Miller reported on "New York day" at the National Flower Show, Philadelphia. The party will travel over the Pennsylvania R. R. March 28. The one way fare, including dinner and admission to the show, will be $3.25. A more detailed report will be found elsewhere, or published later. Neighboring horticultural societies are invited to make the trip with the New York party.

Secretary Young reported fine prospects for a successful New York show. Arthur Herrington, who will superintend the New York show, was present and addressed the meeting. He expects large and varied exhibits. The group arrangements will be larger and finer than in previous years. He requests all entries to be in not later than March 20, for groups, and March 31 for other classes. Secretary Young read a comprehensive report.

It was decided to have a banquet, on a date and at a place to be hereafter decided, at $5 per plate. Thomas S. De Forest was appointed chairman of the dinner committee to fill the vacancy caused by the declination of Charles Weathered. The "annual outing" of the club, which figuratively speaking, has been something of a frost for the past two years, will be omitted this year. Alfred Kottmiller, a new member, was introduced to the club.

J. H. Pepper read a paper, the subject being: "Has the Carnation Reached Its Zenith?" This started quite a lively discussion in which A. J. Guttman, Vice-president Stumpp, Walter F. Sheridan, John G. Essler, and Roman J. Irwin took part. We expect to make more extended reference to this subject at a future date. Alex. Guttman, who attended the St. Louis convention and show, thought that the carnation had not reached its zenith. He believes that the quality and production will continue to improve, and that the stock keeps better than in former years. Mr. Stumpp does not agree with that proposition, and contends that much of the stock goes to sleep too soon after it reaches the retailer and the ultimate consumer. As the discussion did not settle anything, we think it might be instructive for growers and dealers in other parts of the country to come forward with their views. The March meeting will be "rose night."

Appropriate resolutions were read and adopted on the death of Dr. Marshall, a brother of former Vice-president Marshall. The total number of members of the club on January 1, 1916, was reported as 441.

The following names were proposed for membership: Chas. P. Dudley, "Brookdale," Madison, N. J.; Henry N. Thomas, 112 West 28th street, New York; D. C. Arnold, 112 West 28th street, New York.

EXHIBITS.

There was a very fine exhibit of carnations, particularly noteworthy being those of the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y.; F. Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind., and Henry Weston, Hempstead, N. Y. The F. Dorner & Sons Co., by Roman J. Irvin, exhibited Laddie, a new pink carnation for 1918, a seedling of Pink Delight. As exhibited, it is a very fine production and scored 86 points; also Rosalia, new scarlet for 1917 which scored 85 points. Nancy, new flesh pink for 1916, and Old Gold, new variegated for 1917, were also exhibited but the committee desires to see the two latter under more favorable conditions.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., exhibited the new crimson carnation Arawanna, which scored 85 points. Also Carnation Alice, which received a vote of thanks. John F. Marsden, Far Rockaway, N. Y., exhibited a deep pink seedling named Fowler Marsden, which was highly commended. William A. Dawson, Willimantic, Conn., exhibited his new carnation, Red Wing, which scored 85 points.

Cottage Gardens Co., Inc., Queens, N. Y., exhibited pink carnation Cottage Maid, which was awarded 86 points; also Crystal White, 85 points. Peter Beuerlein, Elmhurst, N. Y., for a pink sport of Enchantress, was given a vote of thanks. Chas. Weber, Lynbrook, N. Y., for pink carnation, Laura Weber, received a vote of thanks. P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y., received a vote of thanks for a vase of Roman hyacinths.

Henry Weston, Hempstead, N. Y., exhibited a new variegated carnation, Mrs. J. H. Pepper, which scored 85 points; also Carnation Alma Gluck, which was awarded 85 points and a cultural certificate.

Chairman Hildenbrand, of the house committee, and his active assistants, had a good supply of eats and liquids to wash them down. A. F. F.

held daily and all prominent business houses were represented by marching clubs in uniform. Handsomely decorated floats were also a feature. One afternoon, the pageant represented 20,000 uniformed marchers. The carnival was a revival of the Ice Palace carnival held in St. Paul about 30 years ago, and proved such a success that it will be a yearly event.

"Park Vandals."

The phrase "park vandals" is familiar to newspaper readers, said vandals, as a rule, being the people who steal plants, break and damage trees, and commit similar depredations. Nobody, however, so far as we are aware, has ever imputed to the ordinary park vandal, the motive of stealing or ruining a whole park. The common run of park vandals are amateurs and imitators. It has frequently been established that there are people who would scorn to steal from an individual, that seem to think it quite proper to "take" anything that they can get away with that belongs to all the people. Thus, no sooner is one scheme nipped in the bud, to grab a section of a New York park, than another crops up. One of the old schemes for defacing parks in New York and elsewhere, was by erecting so-called "monuments" to somebody or other, and the practice yet prevails. It has frequently happened that a number of beautiful trees have been destroyed to make room for a grotesque monument that looks like nothing on or in the earth, or in the waters under the earth.

In writing this we do not imply that there are no artistic monuments in this country, for there are a few, that have been erected to worthy men, but over many others, let us draw a veil. But, the up-to-date park violator of New York is far too ambitious to be satisfied with mere monuments. He wants pumping stations, amphitheatres and stadiums to be erected or paved with brick, stone or concrete, as the case may be. Nobody, so far as we are aware, has yet proposed a rifle-range for Central Park, but such a proposal would not be surprising, in view of other schemes. The conservative New York Times had the following editorial comment on February 9:

The very day that the restraining order of Park Commissioner Ward raised the hope that the engineers of the board of water supply would desist from their efforts to spoil the beauty of Morningside park saw the revival under formidable auspices of an old plan to cut Central park in half somewhere above Eightieth street by converting the bed of the southern reservoir, soon to be abandoned, into a plaza of concrete with an amphitheatre for open-air pageants, connected with Fifth avenue and Central Park West by broad roadways. The present sponsor of this scheme is Professor Henry Fairfield Osborn, naturalist, geologist and paleontologist, president of the American Museum of Natural History and a leading authority on the stone age and the manners of customs of the Cro-Magnons, our ancestors, whose rule in life was to help themselves to what they wanted. It is an indisputable fact that the most dangerous plans of park encroachment have powerful and eminently respectable advocates.

There are always two sides to a question and the following from the New York Globe is the other side. Very much depends on the answer to the question, "What Is a Park?" There are many who believe that the beauty of fine trees, shrubs and flowers and a rich carpet grass, go far toward making a beautiful park. If the bars are let down for all sorts of events that would draw great crowds, the horticultural features would surely suffer.

Recently Percy MacKaye and his associates of the Shakespeare celebration committee came under condemnation because they requested the temporary use of the sheep meadow of Central park as a place for holding a community mask.

They were fallen upon and routed as persons who proposed to put profane feet on sacred ground. They were attacked as marauders who would seize and destroy a precious heritage of the people.

Now Henry Fairfield Osborn, who is devoting life and fortune to building up in New York the greatest natural history museum, is castigated as an enemy of the public because in his annual report he raises the question of the desirability of using the park ground soon to be released by the vacation of the south Croton reservoir to provide a central court or plaza for artistic, musical, and recreational undertakings which are now impossible in New York because of lack of site. The faction that is not able to see that a park is a human institution maintained to meet human needs is in full cry against Dr. Osborn. Soulders of the tocsin say: "Behold, another infamous person seeks to invade Central park! Rise and repel him!"

Conventionality when linked with the special interest of a class is able to maintain a strong defensive and to obstruct and prevent progress. Central park has many miles of bridle paths, subtracting a large number of acres from common use, where a few persons are able to get the exercise they prefer. It has driveways whereon the rich can roll for their airings. It has tennis grounds where the flannelled may hammer the turf with heavy tread. It has a menagerie with iron palings. It has restaurants and road houses. It has a museum and art gallery devoted to the display of the works of the past. It has fields whereto the nursemaids are welcome to bring their charges. These are right because they are familiar and because they suit the wishes of persons who live near the park and are controlled by the notion that the park in some way is their private property.

But to hold a mask in the meadow, even though bond is given to leave the herbage better than it was found; to make a place where thousands may gather for the enjoyment of good music; or to build an art gallery dedicated to the art of the living present as the Metropolitan is devoted to the art of the dead past—these things are unfamiliar and might bring large numbers of intruders to the park in ways distasteful to the adjacent population. So, away with them!

If New York during the lives of those living is to have an outdoor meeting place for the pleasure of its millions it must find a site in Central park. If the ten thousand art creators of New York are to have a chance to display their work in friendly competition before the public the site, in all probability, must be in Central park. To get the light and room necessary in a central location is prohibitive in cost. The public must thus choose. If Central park cannot be used for legitimate park purposes as such purposes are understood in other civilized communities, then New York must do without many desirable things. The question at issue is on which side lies the balance of social advantage. The answer to be given depends on the answer to be given to the interrogatory, "What is a park?" If it is for the few, then great limitation should be placed on its use. If for the many, then a more liberal policy is to be followed. Little doubt is to be entertained of the ultimate answer. It will be that Central park has room enough to provide space for cultural activities and institutions which can find a home under the practicalities of the city's life nowhere else.

OBITUARY.

The Late Donald Matheson.

Donald Matheson, whose death was recorded in our obituary column last week, was born in Rosshire, Scotland, 72 years ago. He came to the United States in 1870, and shortly after his arrival, entered the employ of the late William Walter Phelps, whose extensive estate at Teaneck, N. J., he developed, his connection there extending over a period of 46 years, during which time he designed more than 35 miles of private drives and planted more than 1,000,000 trees, which stand as a lasting monument to his memory.

Mr. Matheson was one of the old school gardeners rarely met with in present days, and he will be missed by many of the craft whose good fortune it was to know him. He belonged to Tuscan lodge, F. and A. M., and was one of its oldest members, having joined 33 years ago. His funeral was held at Teaneck, February 6, and was attended by many of his old friends. The high esteem in which he was held was shown by the many beautiful floral offerings. He is survived by a widow and one son, John J. Matheson. W. W. H.

John B. Weeks.

John B. Weeks, who will be remembered by many old time florists and seedsmen as one of the veterans in the trade, died at his home in Irving Park, Chicago, February 9, aged 84 years. He was a native of Surrey, England, and came to the United States when 17 years of age. He remained in the east about two years, and in 1852 came to Chicago. During the 15 years that followed he was in the employ of Edgar Sanders, George Wittbold and A. Williams. Later he was connected with Vaughan's Seed Store, E. H. Hunt and James King. He was married in 1869 to Miss Flora M. Hilton. Surviving him are three brothers, two residing in the United States and one in England; also, one grandchild.

George F. Sloan.

George F. Sloan, for many years identified with the printing department of THE AMERICAN FLORIST and in recent years foreman of the composing room, died of kidney trouble at his home, 740 Woodbine avenue, Oak Park, Ill., February 15, age 52 years. He had been in ill health for some time, but remained at his post until a few days before his death. Mr. Sloan was a good printer, a conscientious workman and a loyal employee. The remains were taken to his native place, Bolivar, Tenn., for interment in the family lot.

JACKSON, MICH.—The establishment of H. M. Burt, was seriously damaged by fire January 27.

THE price for dyeing raffia has increased from 12 cents per pound to 40 cents per pound.

THE American Steel and Wire Co. has sent out notices of an advance of $2 a ton on all classes of wire products. Wire prices are now higher than at any time since organization of United States Steel corporation in 1901.

Non-Warranty.

An eastern wholesale plant house issues the following non-warranty as indicating they decline to guarantee the success of the grower: "We aim to give the best possible service and to ship stock that will be up to our high standard of excellence. We endeavor to keep varieties true to name, but do not guarantee this, nor do we in any way guarantee the success of the grower purchasing the stock offered in this catalogue."

JOBBERs in tinfoil are asking $9 per 100 pounds, owing to the advance in price of lead.

SECRETARY JOHN YOUNG of the Society of American Florists is mailing members of that organization copies of the report of the thirty-first annual convention, held at San Francisco, Calif., August 17-19, 1915, a well arranged book of 364 pages, nearly a page for every day in the year.

Plant Quarantine Would Bar Azaleas.

At the recent meeting of the American Association of Official Horticultural Inspectors, held at Columbus, O., one of the participants is reported as offering a resolution requiring that "an absolute quarantine be placed on all plants imported with soil about the roots, except such as are introduced by the United States department of agriculture for experiment and those to be held in quarantine for a reasonable period."

It is further reported that this resolution was adopted by the above organization and that copies of the resolution were forwarded to the Federal Horticultural Board, Washington, D. C. The enforcement of such a regulation would practically prohibit the importation of many kinds of florists' stock, such as palms, azaleas, bay trees, etc., also an extensive line of nursery stock. If this kind of prohibition, designed by inexperienced men who probably mean well, is not curbed it will be necessary soon to consider the advisability of cutting off all our communication with the commercial world except that which may be conducted by telephone or telegraph.

American Rose Society.

The American Rose Society expects to have an exceptionally large display at the national flower show in Philadelphia, March 25-April 2. The prize list is growing since the publication of 42 special prizes. Besides the regulars, we have received prizes from the following:

Malcolm Franklin, Philadelphia, Pa., $25.00; Wm. L. Rock Flower Co., Kansas City, $10.00; Henry Penn, Boston, Mass., $10.00; Mann & Brown, Richmond, Va., $10.00.

George E. Campbell, Erdenheim, P. O., Pa., has been appointed and has accepted the important office of manager of the rose exhibits. Entry blanks will be ready in a few days. A list of judges, comprising men of the first class, have been named to fill the various positions. Up to this writing the following have accepted: Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.; Frank H. Traendly, New York; Wm. J. Palmer, Buffalo, N. Y.; Eugene Dailedouze, Flatbush, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The rose garden, for which prizes are offered of $500 for first, $400 for second and $300 for third, will make a most interesting display and appears now to be an assured successful feature of the exhibition.

The annual bulletin is now in press and it copies in a great measure the general character of the annual as issued by the National Rose Society of England. It will contain various illustrations and is edited by J. Horace McFarland Co., of Harrisburg, Pa. We have more paid subscriptions for the year to date than usual.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

New York Day at Philadelphia Show.

TUESDAY, MARCH 28.

The New York Florists' Club New York day committee is pleased to advise members of the club that arrangements have been made for a party of members, their ladies and guests, to travel on special trains to Philadelphia, Tuesday, March 28, which has been set aside as New York day at the national show. The party will travel over the Pennsylvania Railroad, leaving Pennsylvania Terminal, Thirty-third street and Seventh avenue, some time during the morning of March 28, arriving in Philadelphia two hours later and dining together before going to Convention hall. The committee is arranging for the trip going, dinner and admission to the hall, all of which will be covered by a charge of $3.25. Return may be made singly or in groups of ten, at the option of the travelers. Further notice will be sent later and a return postcard enclosed, and it is most important that these postcards be filled out and returned at once, advising that you intend to join the party.

It is expected that fully 300 or 400 will make the journey together, and the prospects are that it will be a very enjoyable and sociable trip. You will want to see the Philadelphia show, and you will want to travel in good company. Make up your mind to go on New York day, March 28, with the New York Florists' Club party.

Boston:ROSES STRONGEST SELLERS.

During the past week business was rather quiet with the exception of roses, which still remain rather scarce, and consequently high priced. There is a good demand for the short stemmed grades, although the larger flowers sell very well and bring top notch prices. Carnations sell at from $1.50 to $3 per 100, according to quality. Matchless, Pink Delight and Ward are the best sellers, although there was a good demand for scarlet for St. Valentine's day trade. Violets sold through the week for 45 cents to 60 cents per 100 and on Monday, February 14, brought from 60 cents to 75 cents per 100. There was an ample supply; in fact, they held up well considering the large supply. There was a large supply of myosotis during the latter part of the week, but prices did not come up to those of last year, many flowers finding no market whatever. Bulbous flowers are plentiful and prices are rather poor on the average line of stock. Golden Spurs bring from $1 to $2.50 per 100. Yellow marguerites are very scarce and sell readily at $2 and $3 per 100, some of the largest and longest stemmed flowers bringing $4. The supply of Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus remains short and cleans up readily each day.

NOTES.

F. L. Wheeler, of Natick, Mass., has the sympathy of many friends in the death of his father and mother-in-law last week.

Stephen Quinn, of Brookline, has filed a petition in bankruptcy; liabilities $43,000, and assets $4,000.

C. Johnson will build a new house in the spring, 48 by 200 feet. The work will be done by local builders. W.

Los Angeles.SUNSHINE BRINGS IMPROVEMENT.

Market conditions have improved now that the sun is shining again. Shipments are being made and business is normal. There is still a scarcity of roses and this will continue for a time. Violets are the most plentiful of any stock at present. Bulbous stock is also in good supply.

NOTES.

Paul J. Howard, landscape architect, is showing a rare line of plants at his establishment on West Seventh street. Besides the usual varieties, he has Araucaria eleganta, Thuya obtuse and Juniper prostrata, in addition to many other fine specimens, many of which are displayed in Japanese ware.

Among the wholesalers, S. Murata & Co. are probably doing as much long distance shipping as any firm on the coast. Their shipping book shows orders for New Orleans, points in Illinois, Michigan, Montana, Utah and cities in almost every eastern state.

The Redondo Floral Co., now located at 218 West Seventh street, has a novel guessing contest. A large heart of red chenille is shown, the object being to guess the number of inches of chenille used in the making. Three prizes are offered.

Wright's Flower Shop has been showing some superb American Beauties, but they would not let out the secret as to where they were grown. They also had fine Chateaus, and a special exhibit of orchids.

The California Florists, formerly at 702 West Seventh street, have removed to 716 South Grand avenue, where they are showing a fine line of cut flowers, decorative plants and novelties.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson are displaying a fine line of bulbous flowers.

This city now has a Rosemary Flower Shop. This establishment has been opened at 815 West Seventh street by W. H. Shuman and F. J. Redmond.

The West Coast Seed Co., recently of East Seventh street, is now located at 620 South Spring street, nearer the center of the business district.

J. W. Wolters, though complaining of shortage, has a good variety as usual. An especially good showing is made in White Killarneys.

The Broadway Florists have been receiving a supply of roses from San Francisco. They report a fair business in funeral work.

All the local firms made handsome displays, featuring novelties for St. Valentine's day, and good business resulted.

O. C. Saakes was well stocked in Ophelia and September Morn roses. He is doing the usual volume of business. G. H. H.

Murray Hill, N. J.

Work is progressing favorably on L. B. Coddington's new houses. There are four of them, each about 61 by 500 feet, of iron frame, with walls of hollow tile. A large boiler house and coal storage cellar will be constructed of concrete, the capacity for coal will be about 1,400 tons. The new range will be heated by two (shell) boilers, each with a capacity of 325 horse power. All four houses will be completed in time for the June planting of roses. Mr. Coddington had already two large ranges and this new addition will, at a rough guess, bring his glass area to half a million or more square feet. Throughout the winter he has been having a good cut of roses and his stock now looks fine. The following varieties are noteworthy: American Beauty, White and Pink Killarney and Killarney Brilliant, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Sunburst, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Lady Alice Stanley, Richmond and Mock. A great stock of young plants is being propagated and the work is yet going on, thousands being already potted off. There is also a great stock of young smilax plants in pots. The entire cut flower output of this range is sold by H. E. Froment, 148 West 28th street, New York. A. F. F.

Minneapolis.

The St. Valentine's day business on the whole was quite satisfactory and generally reported as being 10 per cent better than last year. In other respects the market conditions as to supply, demand and prices remain about the same as last week.

O. R. Eckhardt has a new Oscar to make the firm more prominent. Mrs. Eckhardt and baby are progressing favorably and receiving congratulations.

Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks, is attending the cement show at Chicago this week. T. C. R.

San Francisco.

The Fillmore Floral Co. opened at 942 Fillmore street, February 12. Gus, elder son of T. F. Taylor, will be in charge.

T. Mosco has opened a florist shop on Geary street, near Kearny.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. — A dividend of 10 per cent is being paid on certified claims against the estate of John L. Parker.

KNOXVILLE, TENN. — The flower stand of Addison J. McNutt in the market house, closed for several weeks on account of fire, has reopened.

JOHNSON CITY, TENN. — James Venable, Sr., who had conducted a successful florist business here for several years, died February 6, aged 65 years.

GOOD DEMAND FOR ST. VALENTINE'S DAY.

Stock of all kinds cleaned up nicely for St. Valentine's day with the exception of double violets, which were unusually plentiful and probably never sold at such low prices on this occasion before. Good violets brought fair prices, but there was a large supply of inferior stock offered which kept down the average. Most of the double violets sold at prices averaging from 30 to 50 cents per 100, which is the cheapest they have sold for in years. Single violets sold fairly well and cleaned up as nicely as could be expected under the circumstances, but did not bring the prices that they did in former years. Sweet peas sold unusually well and so did orchids, lily of the valley and gardenias. Red roses sold quickly with Richmond, Rhea Reid, Hadley, Milady and Hoosier Beauty having the call. American Beauty roses were very scarce and what little good stock was offered in this line was quickly disposed of at high prices. Mrs. Chas. Russell sold well owing to the scarcity of American Beauties, especially in the medium and longer stemmed grades. Sunburst, Ophelia, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Mrs. George Shawyer and Killarney cleaned up at an early hour at good prices. Red carnations and red tulips had a good call and so did freesias and Romans, which furnished splendid substitutes for lily of the valley. Jonquils, daffodils, Paper White narcissi, snapdragons, daisies, calendulas and all other miscellaneous stock cleaned up nicely and the only item that did not move as well as everyone expected was violets. The out-of-town demand was very good, but the city trade was nothing to speak of and the sales were only equal to those of a good Saturday. The heavy snowstorm Sunday, February

Stock at this writing, Wednesday, February 16, is more plentiful and with one or two exceptions there is more than enough to go around.

ST. VALENTINE'S BUSINESS GOOD.

The St. Valentine's day trade here was quite good, but not as brisk as the retail trade expected. The heavy snowstorm, February 13, affected the demand somewhat, but the real reason that trade was not as brisk as it might have been seems to be due to the lack of advertising. Outside of the window displays and a few small advertisements in the daily papers and one card in the street cars, nothing much was done and the sales corresponded accordingly. Violets never were so plentiful as this year and sold well at reasonable prices. Orchids, gardenias and lily of the valley were scarce and the same was true of red roses and red carnations. Miscellaneous stock such as snapdragons, daisies, tulips, forget-me-nots, were used extensively, but taken all in all, the sales on this occasion did not exceed those of an ordinary good Saturday.

NOTES.

The A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co., 1302-1308 West Division street, is having a big run on its new manila boxes which it manufactures in twenty-two different sizes. This firm is mailing samples of the new line to everyone in the trade upon request and calls attention to the fact that there is no printing charge on orders of 300 or over. C. B. Arnold reports a grand clean-up in heart shaped boxes for St. Valentine's day, which sold unusually well this year. Joe Marks has just returned from a successful business trip in the southwest.

The George Wittbold Co.'s store, 1309 North Clark street, which was closed recently, was one of the oldest retail stands in the city, and Louis Wittbold can well remember the day when John Poehlmann, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., used the basement for a distributing point, and that was about 25 years ago.

Sidney Buchbinder, sales manager for Buchbinder Bros., manufacturers of florists' refrigerators, says that his brother, Dr. J. R. Buchbinder, will leave soon for the battle-fields of Europe as a member of the American Red Cross society and will be stationed in Germany.

Paul Berkowitz, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., called on the trade here this week. He has just returned from a western trip and is gradually working his way towards home.

Kirscht Bros., of Morton Grove, have a new carnation that looks very promising and might be called a Winsor colored Enchantress.

A. Lange arranged the decorations at the banquet given in honor of Archbishop Mundelein at the University club, Thursday evening, February 10, when the guests were the victims of a deliberate plot which might have brought death to scores of the most prominent men of this city and high dignitaries of the Catholic church. Physicians and chemists declared that the poison plot failed principally because the plotter miscalculated and put into the soup an overdose of the poison which caused the consumers to become so violently ill that they expelled the poison before it had time to have fatal results. Peter Reinberg was one of the 200 guests seated at the tables.

The John C. Moninger Co. has just received an order for one of their all steel houses, 60x400 feet, for the Montgomery Co., Inc., Hadley, Mass., and the Lorraine Avenue Greenhouses, Cleveland, O., has just placed an order with them for five new houses, 30x376 feet. Rudolph Kurowski is back from a trip to Detroit, Mich., where A. J. Browne's new Moninger house, 84x600 feet, recently weathered a severe storm and was found to be absolutely safe.

Zech & Mann never had such a good St. Valentine's day trade as this year, according to Allie Zech, and no trouble was experienced in disposing of all the available stock. A large supply of choice freesia of the variety Purity is received daily, but cleans up quickly, and the same holds good for tulips. A nice lot of orders are being booked for rooted carnation cuttings, which they are offering in all the best leading varieties.

D. T. Matchem, who operates a store in East Chicago and another at 3707 Cedar street, Indiana Harbor, will move soon from the last named location into a store three times as large at 3428 Michigan avenue. When the new place is fitted out according to the plans he has in mind he figures that he will have one of the finest equipped retail establishments in the northern part of the Hoosier state.

Joseph Ziska & Sons keep Raymond Ziska and his Ford pretty busy every day delivering orders, and while he receives a good deal of joshing for driving a "tin Lizzie," he claims that there is no make like it for getting around the city in double quick time and then, besides, he swears that the coppers would never have the nerve to George Wienhoeber had a splendid St. Valentine's day trade and sold a large number of the special $1.50 bunches of violets which he featured in his three-color advertisement in the street cars. Mr. Wienhoeber says his assistant, Joe Kral, is the originator of the heart shaped novelty featured in his window display last week.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. had their share of the St. Valentine's day trade and sold out completely in all lines. The shipping trade was very brisk and the city demand good. Carnations are more plentiful at this establishment and the receipts of tulips, jonquils, freesias and other miscellaneous stock is steadily increasing.

Chas. Erne, of Erne & Klingel, underwent an operation for rupture at the Michael Reese hospital Monday morning, February 14, and is getting along as nicely as can be expected. Fred Klingel is now assisted in the office by Albert Henning and Frank Konezal is giving the boys a lift in the shipping department.

Peter Reinberg had a better St. Valentine's day than last year, according to Felix Reichling, who says that everything sold well and that there was no surplus when the store closed at night. Miss McNulty is again attending to her office duties after being confined to her home for several days with the grippe.

Charles M. Fish, manager of the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., was a visitor in the wholesale market, February 14. His firm has just placed an order with Kroeschell Bros. Co. for a new boiler to keep the novelty carnations, Aviator and Superb, warm next winter.

Schofield, the North State street florist, reports business as unusually brisk and says that there was only a difference of $43 in his last month's sales, compared with those of last December, which is due chiefly to the many funeral orders that he filled during that time.

Miss M. C. Gunterberg handled a shipment of over 100,000 double violets Saturday, February 12, and about as many more for St. Valentine's day, which is probably one of the reasons why she is often called the "Violet Queen" by many in the trade.

At the George Wittbold Co.'s store on Buckingham place the St. Valentine's day trade was up to all expectations and one of the orders called for a pretty heart-shaped center piece of daisies, freesias and sweet peas with a humming bird set here and there.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are receiving a good supply of roses from the Pyfer & Olsem greenhouses at Wilmette in addition to a complete line of other stock. Their first St. Valentine's day trade was very good and exceeded all expectations.

The John Kruchten Co. is handling a nice supply of stock in all lines and is featuring a fancy grade of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses. Miss Anderson, formerly with the A. L. Randall Co., is now in the employ of this firm.

Miller & Musser are having a good call for fancy Asparagus plumosus nanus which is a leader with them in the green goods department.

Sinner Bros. are cutting a good supply of stock, which are in good demand, owing to the splendid quality and limited supply offered.

George Piezer is still filling the position of florist at the Hotel La Salle and uses a large supply of stock each week for decorations, etc.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are gradually getting things in shape at their new store and are now showing a complete line of baskets.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has been fortunate in securing a good supply of carnation fluid for St. Patrick's day and are now booking orders for same. T. E. Waters says that orders for their Shamrock boxes are numerous and that in many instances those who bought the boxes filled with the plants in pots to fit the pockets last year have duplicated or increased their 1916 orders. John Poehlmann's many friends are pleased to know that he is improving and that he was able to walk out to a nearby barber shop to get shaved this week. Everyone hopes to find him at the store again in the near future.

Bassett & Washburn are moving their American Beauty range, consisting of eight houses, from Hinsdale to the new plant at Gregg's Station, and when these are completed they will have about 100,000 square feet of glass devoted to this variety, which is one-third less than last year. This firm reports a banner St. Valentine's day trade, with a grand clean-up of stock in all lines, especially red roses, red carnations, red tulips and sweet peas.

Wieter Bros. will grow the new rose Dark Russell and the new light salmon pink carnation, Nancy, on a large scale next season and will also give considerable more bench space to Alice which has already made good. N. J. Wieter speaks well of Philadelphia and has every right to, for the stock they are cutting in the variety now is exceptionally fine and bears out the often repeated statement that this carnation is at its best in cold weather.

Andrew Cronis was on the sick list for several days this week, during which time his business partner, Mr. Johnson, looked after the management of the Alpha Floral Co.'s store. Mrs. Cronis presented her husband with a Valentine in the shape of a baby boy, who, according to his father, is going to be a great florist some day.

ST. VALENTINE'S TRADE ABOVE AVERAGE.

The 1916 St. Valentine's day trade was much better than that of a year ago, both in the number of orders and the volume of business. Roses are more plentiful and sweet peas and violets show improvement, and while the supply is increasing, prices remain firm. Pot plants were good sellers at all the stores and basket arrangements and corsages as well as cut stock of all kinds cleaned up entirely.

NOTES.

Heavy pot plant sales were a feature of the St. Valentine's day trade at the establishment of W. J. Barnes. Orders for funeral designs and corsages have also been unusually heavy. His new Studebaker delivery car was a great help in the delivery service.

Samuel Murray had another quality window display last week, the centerpiece being a large red heart, three by four feet, with a background of ferns. Orchids and violets in profusion were seen in artistic arrangements at the front.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports an exceptionally heavy trade for St. Valentine's day, the call for the occasion extending over the entire week for advance orders. Out-of-town orders for funeral work have kept the staff very busy.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. had a large number of made up baskets in different styles that sold readily for valentines. All novelties sold well. Funeral work continues to keep the force busy.

Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. have been having a big run on funeral work both local and out-of-town. Pot plants as well as cut stock in quantity were disposed of for the St. Valentine's day trade.

T. J. Noll & Co. handled good roses, sweet peas and violets among other items, but the supply was short of requirements. Many more could have been sold had they been available.

Arthur Newell did a good St. Valentine's day business in pot plants of cyclamens, lilacs, bulb pans and basket arrangements. Corsage work was brisk.

Henry Kusik & Co. handled fine stocks of everything available but heavy trade both local and shipping cleaned up everything in the establishment.

The Sunny Slope Seed Farm is sending in some fine Butterfly sweet peas, which sell at sight.

Eric Frandsen & Co. will rebuild their range, which was damaged in the recent freeze.

Mrs. T. A. Mosely has returned from a visit at Chicago and reports trade very good.

BIG VALENTINE SUPPLY CLEANS UP.

St. Valentine's day was a brilliant success in this community, and the trade had all the orders they could handle. The weather has been variable, almost summer heat on Saturday and very cold on Sunday and on Monday, St. Valentine's day. Violets had been blooming very profusely, but were cut short by the change in temperature, not however, until there had been a cut of them taken. Violets were easily the favorite "valentine flower" and many thousand were sold. Roses were somewhat scarce. The red rose was second in demand to the violet, but all kinds of flowers went and the trade was more than satisfied. There was a fine supply of blooming azaleas, some of the best of the season, large handsome plants covered with flowers, of the richest coloring. Pot plants were in large demand and were very luxurious. There were all the varieties of bulbous stock, hyacinths, both single and double, narcissi in all varieties, cyclamens in gorgeous blossom, cinerarias, begonias, tulips, single and double in all multitudinous colorings, and in fact everything to cater to the most fastidious or most modest taste. There was plenty of lily of the valley, which was a favorite combination with violets. Carnations filled no small part of the demand, and the red carnation was in especial favor. Prices were good and everything went, and there was a good clean up on all lines.

Subject to Market Changes.

The florists' windows were a delight to behold and were themselves huge valentines that "he who runs" could enjoy, and the passerby was tempted to look and to buy, which he did freely. The Joy Floral Company fitted up a very novel and attractive window, representing a lady's boudoir, in which the lady herself was seated in an easy chair, clad in a very fetching gown. Around her in the shape of pot plants and just opened boxes were the dozens of valentine remembrances, while a messenger boy stood before her presenting a just opened box of violets and lily of the valley, which her hands were outstretched to receive. The other window was filled with valentine boxes, shaped as red hearts. They had an unusual supply of very fine flowers and were able to fill all demands, including a good lot of wholesaling.

Geny Bros. were especially fortunate in their supply of violets. The day before it turned so cool, they cut 20,000 violets and sold every one of them. They shipped to the nearby towns a large trade in valentine boxes of attractive design and valentine coloring. They had a beautiful and attractive window filled with a variety of blooming plants, in which magnificent azaleas and fine cyclamens were conspicuous. They have a fine lot of lily of the valley and Easter lilies.

The McIntyre Floral Company's windows and adjoining greenhouse presented a sight which was a thing of beauty, and a mass of brilliant blossoming of azalea, all the bulbous blossoms, primulas, cyclamens, and other plants. They had a nice lot of orchids and sold out; also, fine sweet peas and plenty of carnations. They were short only on roses, which seemed to be a prevailing complaint with all the dealers, but otherwise there was a sufficiency for all demands.

L. H. Haury & Sons made a fine display in their new store and had a splendid valentine trade, with all the usual flowers.

RICHMOND, IND.—It is stated Joseph H. Hill will withdraw from the E. G. Hill Co., and conduct business on his own account across the street, where he has a range of four houses, specializing in carnations. A new iron frame rose house, 46 x 400 feet, will be added to produce stock for the Cincinnati store, which becomes his under the new arrangement.

Seattle.

MOST SEVERE WINTER IN YEARS.

The flower trade has been much depressed due to the inclement weather that has kept this city and environs under a pall of snow the past six weeks, but fortunately the supply of flowers has been by no means excessive, so that there has been no complaint of flowers having to be thrown away. The small number of sales made have realized better prices than the average, but retailers and greenhouse men are as one in the heartfelt desire to never see another such winter. The weather bureau states this to be the most protracted storm on record; we have had snow on the ground without intermission for six weeks, and the end is not yet. Last week it culminated in a snowfall of 36 hours and many of our local greenhouses suffered more or less damage, and at all points west of the Cascade mountains complaints are heard. On account of the usual mild climate, the greenhouses are not erected to withstand such heavy encumbrances, and in some cases they entirely collapsed, while in others there were serious breakages of glass to more or less extent. Carnations suffered considerably at some of the growers' places, so that the market, which was none too well supplied, will probably be short on this commodity for the balance of the season. Prices have ruled low on carnations the past two years and some of the growers this year discontinued growing them, but the prices for the next three months may have a tendency to increase their culture in future years.

There is some talk among growers of attempting to grow violets here again. The local market has of recent years been almost entirely supplied from California, but florists and their customers are hoping that this idea may be carried out as they are as one in the desire to once more handle a violet with some perfume to it.

The retail storekeepers had a meeting this week for the purpose of seeing if it could not be arranged that all stores should close at not later than 8:30 p.m. A few years ago the universal practice was to close at 8 p.m., but recently some of them have kept open until 10 and 11 p.m. This has been thought to be unnecessary and to work a hardship on clerks and assistants, so for some time a movement has been on foot for earlier closing. It is profoundly to be desired that the meeting may have some practical result, although events have proved that any concerted action on the part of Seattle flower dealers is almost out of the question. The florists' club, which was started and carried on for years with this object, meets with but poor encouragement from the people who should be most interested. H. P. B.

Knoxville, Tenn.

Addison J. McNutt has a very attractive stand in the market house and is thoroughly equipped to handle the supply of cut flowers and plant stock received from the greenhouses. At the greenhouses were noted a prolific house of sweet peas. Kaiserin roses, the bushes five years old, planted in solid beds have been blooming 10 months in the year. Excellent Nerose snapdragons, callas and Dr. Sam white carnations were also included in the stock, all of which is fine. This establishment now has about 35,000 feet of glass, steam heated, and the ground is being cleared for another 300 foot house.

Charles L. Baum's Clinch street window was very attractively decorated on the occasion of St. Valentine's day. The window was framed to represent a heart and many novelties were featured, among them being artists' panels with pockets holding narcissi and yellow daffodils, neatly arranged. He expects to move to more commodious quarters at the corner of Market and Clinch streets, March 1, where he will have 2,000 additional feet of floor space, which will give him better facilities to handle the stock received from the greenhouses as well as out-going shipments.

Chas. W. Crouch's greenhouses have been leased for a term of years by H. Yancy Shanklin, president of the North Star Ice & Coal Co. The Crouch store on Gay street is exhibiting some neat arrangements in baskets, which give evidence of a corps of clever designers. The cut flower department is ably managed by Miss Lulu Thomas.

A. H. Dailey had a splendid window decoration for Lincoln's birthday. The stars and stripes were much in evidence, gracefully draped over the picture, which rested upon an easel. Grouped in the window were white hyacinths and yellow daffodils. It attracted much attention. J. E. K.

Greeneville, Tenn.

The Greeneville Floral Co., G. F. Rhea, proprietor, has recently completed four houses, each 25 by 100 feet. This addition gives this firm about 20,000 feet of glass. The entire establishment is heated with hot water.

Foreman Ascough has a fine house of rooted cuttings that are in a strong, healthy condition. A 10-page catalogue is sent out listing the various varieties grown and quantities are shipped by parcel post, many going to distant points. Some choice sweet peas are now to be seen and find a ready market in Cincinnati. J. E. K.

GOOD TRADE FOR ST. VALENTINE'S DAY.

Following extremely cold weather, business was unusually quiet the first part of last week, counter trade especially being slow. The thermometer rose, however, the latter part of the week and business improved somewhat. Several large dances called for numbers of corsages, and the high death rate, the result of pneumonia, has made a brisk demand for funeral work. The supply is getting larger, roses especially are more plentiful, but prices continue to hold up well. Carnations, also of good quality, are now to be had in good sized lots. Violets are also in good demand. The call for pot plants and cut blooms for St. Valentine's day was especially good, due no doubt to the systematic advertising of the local florists.

NOTES.

Miss Mildred Flick, of the Flick Floral Co., read a very interesting paper, entitled, "The Flora of South America," at the February meeting of the Round Table Club. A great quantity of funeral work has kept the force at the Flick establishment busy during the past week.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting some splendid cattleyas at present. Their crop of Shawyer roses is also very large.

The Doswell Floral Co. had a record crop of single violets for St. Valentine's day. They sold extremely well.

F. J. Knecht & Co. are sending some mammoth Russell and Shawyer roses to the wholesale market.

H. K.

Connecticut Horticultural Society.

The fortnightly meeting of this society was held in the County building, Hartford, Friday evening, February 11. In the notice of the meeting to the members it had been announced that "rose night" would be observed on this occasion, and A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, exhibited specimens of Jonkheer J. L. Mock, Hoosier Beauty, Mrs. Wm. Randolph Hearst, Ophelia, Killarney Queen, Red Radiance, Fire Flame, Lady Alice Stanley, Sunburst, Hadley, Francis Scott Key, Double White Killarney, Willowmere, Harry Kirk, and Mrs. George Shawyer. These are well known varieties and no unnecessary space need be taken in dilating on the merits of the varieties named. Two vases of freesias—Refrecta erecta and New Hybrida—were exhibited by John F. Huss, superintendent for Mrs. James J. Goodwin. These freesias were unusually fine and very fragrant. N. Slocombe, of Farmington, exhibited a spray of Acacia tomentosa seedling. The blooms are round, lemon color, and very numerous. The judges named to make the awards were George B. Baker, of New Britain; J. Vidbourne and W. W. Hunt, of Hartford. The roses received a first-class certificate, the freesias a cultural certificate and special mention, and the acacia a cultural certificate.

The question box was made use of and the query was the advisability of employing warm water in supplying greenhouse stock with moisture. G. Ogren exhibited some specimen narcissi that had been watered with hot water at a temperature of 120 degrees. Tests seemed to prove that it made little difference whether hot or cold water was used, as either soon reaches the temperature of the greenhouse. Robert C. Smallwood, one of the rose experts at the Cromwell gardens, gave a talk on the roses exhibited by that establishment, also proving the value of looking around and noting how other people do things. In a recent trip west he found that some varieties of roses did much better grown dry, than with too copious a supply of moisture. The length of stem was noticeable; also the number of blooms to each plant. J. F. Huss gave an instructive talk on growing freesias, touching on the fine exhibit of Acacia tomentosa, the first ever exhibited in the rooms of the society. Three new members were added to the list. The weather was stormy, nevertheless the attendance was fully up to the average, many out-of-town members being present. Robert Karlstrom, landscape architect at the Cromwell gardens, was with us, but left early on account of the storm, as he was afraid of being marooned in the city. The subject for the next meeting will be announced later—the date is February 25.

ALFRED DIXON, Sec'y.

MORRISTOWN, TENN.—Rare cactus plants in bloom at the greenhouse of Mrs. J. B. Hill are attracting many visitors. Everbearing strawberry plants, the runners coming through holes in the side of a barrel and entirely covering it is another feature of interest.

Bristol, Tenn.

H. G. Bramm, proprietor of the Bristol Greenhouses, has an up-to-date range of seven houses, comprising about 40,000 feet of glass. Plans are under consideration for overhauling the office building on Pennsylvania avenue, also, a more commodious shipping room, both to be complete in all their appointments. A finely equipped retail store is also included in the plans.

A cut worm, in the shape of a brown grub, recently destroyed hundreds of dollars worth of blooming plants in this section. The pest cuts the petals of the flower so closely that nothing is left but the skeleton. A solution of arsenate of lead in the proportion of two pounds to 50 gallons of water is being used to good effect in disposing of the grub.

P. S. Wise, of the Fairmount Gardens, has recently completed a steam heated plant house, 65 by 130 feet, which is devoted to violets, poinsettias, narcissi, hyacinths and pot plants in variety. Considerable space at this establishment is also devoted to lettuce and tomatoes.

Lenox Horticultural Society.

The Lenox (Mass.) Horticultural Society held its monthly meeting February 9. The committee submitted the schedule for the summer show to be held June 28-29, this early date being arranged in connection with the visit of the Garden Club of America, whose annual convention will be held in Lenox on these dates. Sweet peas will be a special feature of the show and among the many special prizes offered is a cup valued at $50, given by Knight & Struck Co. for 10 vases distinct varieties introduced in 1914, 1915 and 1916. The sum of $25 was appropriated for the destruction of the tent caterpillar in the Lenox district. The annual ball to be held February 18 promises to be a big success. A large number of members were present at this meeting, and a lively discussion followed the reading of a paper entitled "Young Gardeners' Opportunity in America." The next meeting will be held March 8.

BUSINESS SATISFACTORY.

Business the past week has been very good, floral work having held out very well. The trade was all ready for St. Valentine's day and business was good according to all reports. The heart boxes with violets were the best sellers. Carnations are now at a normal state on the market, with the supply used up at the close of each day. Roses have been off crop for some time and the prices are high. Violets are good with prices normal. Daffodils are excellent and sell well.

NOTES.

Miss Florence Willard is cutting good orchids and keeps the stock cleaned up all the time.

Macrea, on Smith street, is cutting good carnations.

Albert Holcher is cutting good sweet peas.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY DEMAND HEAVY.

The feature of the week was the business for St. Valentine's day, which while the day came on the Monday following, its approach sent prices "skying," there being an advancement on all popular flowers such as violets, sweet peas, gardenias, carnations and some grades of roses. The stock in all lines is very good, except that single violets are beginning to retrograde. Roses are in fine shape, the specials being of splendid quality. American Beauties are scarce, being nearly all sold before they arrive. Lily of the valley is scarce, supplying about two-thirds of the demand. Snapdragons are more in evidence. Tulips and daffodils are plentiful and in demand for spring boxes of cut flowers. Blooming plants are now quite a factor, azaleas, primulas and cyclamens being leaders, followed by quite a few others.

FLOWER SHOW PLANS.

Flower show plans are progressing favorably. Splendid notices are appearing in the Sunday press, all fully illustrated with portraits of the men active in the various organizations, or on important committees. Arthur Niessen, secretary of the local special committee, in addressing the retail trade says: "Your customers will visit the show and will look for your exhibit; be there and let them know that you are one of the live wires. Remember that this is your flower show as much so and more than any other branch of the business. This show will foster the desire and love for flowers. Every customer or resident in your immediate neighborhood that you can induce to visit the flower show will be a more liberal flower buyer for having been there. It is a boost for your business. We will all share in the benefits of the show, and for that reason, we should all be willing to help and work for the success of the national flower show." A fine presentation, full of truth and hard business sense. A large banquet agreed upon in honor of the visiting members of the craft is being considered by the committee. The choice of location has narrowed down to Horticultural hall and the large ball room of the Bellevue-Stratford. To the surprise of many, the cost at either place will be about the same.

NOTES.

The next meeting of the florists' club on March 7 will be one of the most interesting of the year. It will be "sweet pea night" with an exhibition of the choicest flowers from local growers and contributions of some of the New York and eastern specialists. Howard M. Earl, manager of the famous W. Atlee Burpee & Co.'s seed-house, will be the essayist. Everyone interested in this flower, which is coming so rapidly to the front, should be present to get inspiration from this source of sweet pea wisdom. The essay committee of this year is doing itself proud with its many successes.

The trade all made quite a bid for the business of St. Valentine's day. Pennock Bros. had a great display of heart shaped boxes and hampers from small sizes, suitable for boutonnières up lifted, disclosing a wreath of flowers, was a feature. A well flowered plant of Pink Pearl rhododendron gave a charming color effect.

Lily of the valley is one of the scarce articles, but is seen in quantity with Edward Reid. Splendid carnations are also a feature. Very large shipping orders were sent out last week.

Top notch carnations, the best of the season, are seen at the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange. Their Russell and Mock roses are high grade stock.

Berger Bros. are carrying a large stock of bulbous flowers. Violets and lily of the valley are specials for the early buyers.

Spring flowers, Spencer sweet peas and lilac are leaders with the Leo Niessen Co. Gardenias are also seen in quantity.

CHICKASHA, OKLA.—Mrs. Stella Johnston, proprietor of the Chickasha greenhouse, says her business was one-third better the last six months of 1915 than in 1914, and in January 1916 it was more than double that of January, 1915. Mrs. Johnston is looking forward to a record breaking trade this spring.

PRICES FALLING.

There is little change in the condition of the wholesale market since our last notes were written, but the tendency of prices is downwards. Roses are not, as a rule, reaching the high figures of a month ago, but they are holding up better than most other stocks. This has been particularly true of American Beauties, which have been scarce, but with an increasing supply and a light demand there are indications of a break. Carnations are very plentiful and cheap, the bulk of fresh stock selling at from $1.50 to $3 per 100; probably $2 or $2.50 is a fair average. The left overs go for most any old price. Violets continue very slow. The weather having been generally dark and threatening, has not been favorable for their sale, and, anyway, there are too many of them. There is an abundance of tulips and narcissi, the ruling prices being from 25 cents per bunch of one dozen to three bunches for $1. Some special varieties of tulips are higher.

NOTES.

February 14.—The feature of Saturday, February 12, was a heavy snowstorm that began in the afternoon and continued throughout the following day with falling temperature. Although there was considerable delay in transportation, the weather being clear today, the city force and the transportation companies keep traffic moving. An inexcusable feature, noticed this morning, was thousands of carnations and other flowers that reached the wholesale district in a frozen condition. One dealer states that 3,000 carnations reached him that were frozen; others report minor quantities. This may be attributed to rank carelessness on the part of the packers, for there was ample warning and even the dogs knew it was cold weather. St. Valentine's day did not make much impression on the cut flower market. There were additional sales to retailers from the outlying cities and towns, but the youth of New York seem too blasé to send valentines. Violets were in over-supply and at this writing there are tens of thousands of them in the ice boxes. American Beauties and other roses are holding up well, though $60 per 100 is about the best for American Beauties this morning. Carnations continue cheap. In bulbous and other stocks there is a general decline.

NOTES.

The so-called "rose and carnation show," under the auspices of the Country Life Permanent Exposition, opened February 10 in the Grand Central Terminal. We are always glad to mention any meritorious production in the horticultural or floricultural line. All the exhibits noticed were from private estates. John Downey, Portchester, N. Y. (Thos. Ryan, Gr.), exhibited and took special prize for a vase of Carnation Pink Sensation, which looked very fine, the flowers being large and on good stems. The color is light pink. W. E. Reis, Greenwich, Conn. (Robt. Grunert, Gr.), took first prize for 25 carnations, mixed varieties. Mrs. Ridley Watts, Morristown, N. J. (S. Golding, Gr.), took first prize for a table decoration of carnations. Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y. (P. W. Popp, Gr.), special prize for tulips. Wm. Ziegler, Jr., Noroton, Conn., won a special prize for freesias.

A number of the retail florists had suitable window decorations in honor both of Lincoln's birthday and St. Valentine's day. At Malandre Brothers, Broadway and 72d street, February 12 a bust of Lincoln was prominent in their show window. Their St. Valentine's day decoration was a large heart, three feet in diameter, with miniature heart-shaped bouquets. David Clarke's

John H. Small, of Washington, D. C., was in this city February 11 visiting his brother, C. Albert Small. John H. Small is looking well and is cheerful over the condition of business. He says that their Washington business (J. H. Small & Sons) has been better this winter than for a number of years. About May 1 the New York business of this firm will be removed from 1153 Broadway, where it has been located for 24 years, to a location further up town.

William F. Gude, of Washington, D. C., was a visitor February 12. He was accompanied by P. S. Moova, a popular Washington merchant. They were here on business connected with the great amateur bowling tournament that will be held in Washington in April, and attended a meeting of local bowlers. This promises to be the greatest bowling event ever held in this country. Mr. Gude reported the florist business in Washington as prosperous.

Goldstein & Futterman is the name of a new firm that has opened a wholesale store at 102 West 28th street. E. Futterman has been employed by the well known firm of Gunther Brothers for 18 years. Henry Goldstein was with the Greater New York Association of Brooklyn for eight years, and has been with Guttman & Raynor, Inc., for one and one-half years. Both these young men are hustlers and should be successful.

M. Rovatsos, chairman of the committee of the Greek-American Florists' Association for its annual entertainment and ball, to be held February 24, wishes to state that the entire committee is working hard for this year's affair, the biggest and best ever held. In addition to the dancing, there will be eight vaudeville acts. It will be held in Terrace Garden, 58th street, near Lexington avenue.

Alexander M. Westwood, the Pennsylvania Terminal retailer, reports excellent business, and as he deals almost exclusively with the traveling public, that seems to indicate that the country is not quite going to the dogs. At Walter F. Sheridan's we have recently noticed very fine stock of snapdragons. He continues to receive fine roses, carnations and a good line of bulbous stock.

The match game between the New York Florist Club team and the Patchogue, L. I., team has been indefinitely postponed on account of the storm.

tastefully covered with moss. Business continues good at this store.

The finest cyclamens we have noticed for a long time were on sale the past week at the store of William Kessler, 113 West 28th street, some of the plants having 40 to 60 blooms. He is also handling good cinerarias. In cut flowers his stock of freesias and lilies is exceptionally good.

Paul Meconi, the wholesaler of the Coogan building, and his salesman, William Horn, are anxious to arrange a bowling match, for a prize, with any members of the Florists' Club team or any other florists in this city.

The chauffeurs who operate cars for the florists of this city will give an entertainment and ball, early in April. They are quite a clever lot of young men, and it is expected that the event will be well managed.

On February 15 the New York Florists' Club bowling team will go to Patchogue, L. I., and bowl a match game with the Patchogue team.

"Long Lost" Lettuce

Pkt., 25c; oz., 50c; 2 oz., 90c; ¼ lb., $1.50; ½ lb., $2.75; lb., $5.00, postpaid. ¼ off to the trade.

The most wonderful Lettuce produced in the whole world during the past one hundred years. Excels all others on the market as a shipper, as a keeper, in quality, in sweetness, in flavor, in color, in profits, in reliability, in hardiness.

Produces the best early heads, large heads, sure heads, solid heads, compact heads, tender heads, globular heads, firm heads, uniform heads.

LONG LOST LETTUCE.

The Jewel Recovered.

On June 8, 1915, Mr. Carl Hoffacker, of Union Co., N. J., writes: "Although weather conditions were not exactly favorable, your 'Long Lost' Lettuce seed produced most solid, tender, white heads, proving it a 'Jewel Recovered,' and giving more satisfaction than any other variety grown."

On July 10, 1915, Mr. A. E. Steffa, of Tama Co., Iowa, writes: "In a trial of 27 varieties of Lettuce, your 'Long Lost' Lettuce stood at the head for solidity of head and long-standing, also was the most uniform."

On Aug. 3, 1915, Mr. John J. Sickles, of Monmouth Co., N. J., writes: "Your 'Long Lost' Lettuce is the best I ever saw. Got Big Boston beat a mile. Refused to take one dollar a head for it. I grow fancy Lettuce."

On June 7, 1915, Mr. Henry Tubbs, of New Haven Co., Conn., writes: "Your 'Long Lost' Lettuce is all O. K., and next Spring I shall get all my seeds from you."

On June 21, 1915, Messrs. Gibney Bros., of Marion Co., Mo., write: "We set out a fine lot of transplanted 'Long Lost' Lettuce plants. They grew fine and made a fine lot of heads, very large and creamy. We think it a fine Lettuce and will try it again this Fall."

On June 19, 1915, Mr. Wm. B. Hill, of Clermont Co., Ohio, writes: "I gave your 'Long Lost' Lettuce seed an outdoor test and must say it is fine. Can't be beat. But it has been so awfully wet here. Finest flavored, better than I ever ate. All who have eaten it pronounced it fine. Will give it a better trial next year. Will get it out earlier."

On Oct. 8, 1915, Mr. George E. Bradley, of Aroostook Co., Maine, writes: "The 'Long Lost' Lettuce seed I bought of you last Spring has done the best I ever had any Lettuce do, both in greenhouse and garden."

LONG LOST LETTUCE.

The Jewel Recovered.

As a splendid shipper, "Long Lost" Lettuce far surpasses every other Lettuce, including the Big Boston.

As we started with less than an ounce of seed, you can quickly realize the amount of seed we have produced this year is very limited. We, therefore, urge you to send us your orders immediately if you want to grow the "Long Lost" Lettuce this season.

The famous Tomato grower, John Baer, says "Long Lost" Lettuce is the very best Lettuce the market gardeners ever knew. There has never been any Lettuce equal to it, for it is something extra good.

On June 21, 1915, Mr. I. R. Schnebly, of Grundy Co., Iowa, writes: "The 'Long Lost' Lettuce seed grew fine. It is very handsome in appearance, excellent flavor, and the most valuable variety I have ever grown."

On June 26, 1915, Mr. Ben H. Keely, of Cecil Co., Md., writes: "I received an order of 'Long Lost' Lettuce seed from you early in the Spring and it has proven to be the most wonderful Lettuce I have ever grown."

On July 24, 1915, Mr. G. Ralph Laighton, of Rockingham Co., N. H., writes: "I take pleasure in saying that your 'Long Lost' Lettuce has done splendidly with me this season. The heads were very large, solid and crisp, and the flavor excellent. I have another crop of 'Long Lost' Lettuce that will be maturing soon and have also sown seed for a late crop. I shall continue cultivation of the 'Long Lost'."

On June 7, 1915, Mr. S. W. Carman, of Lancaster Co., Pa., writes: "In regard to your 'Long Lost' Lettuce, there is none better or as good. It beats any I ever had in quantity and nice, tender heads. Flavor can't be beat."

On June 19, 1915, Messrs. Vogt Bros., of Baltimore Co., Md., write: "The 'Long Lost' Lettuce is the very best heading Lettuce we have ever raised, and will stand the heat, as heads will burst open before going to seed. We do not want anything any better."

On June 15, 1915, Mr. Wm. Horner, of Baltimore Co., Md., writes: "The 'Long Lost' Lettuce which I purchased from you early this Spring is all that it is claimed by your firm. I like it so well I purchased some more. I certainly recommend it to market gardeners."

On June 19, 1915, Mr. Cris Gobb, of Baltimore Co., Md., writes: "The 'Long Lost' Lettuce turned out for me just as it is advertised. I want no better."

On Aug. 9, 1915, Mr. Henry Seymour, of Vanderburg Co., Ind., writes: "I have words of praise for your 'Long Lost' Lettuce. First, it stands drought better than any other kind. Second, it matures quicker and makes larger heads in less time than any Lettuce I know of. Third, it is tender, crisp and of a very fine flavor."

On June 14, 1915, Mr. John Tyndall, Wholesale Market Gardener, of Baltimore Co., Md., writes: "Bol-giano's 'Long Lost' Lettuce is without doubt the best Lettuce I have ever raised."

On June 19, 1915, Mr. Wm. B. Hill, of Clermont Co., Ohio, writes: "I gave your 'Long Lost' Lettuce seed an outdoor test and must say it is fine. Can't be beat. But it has been so awfully wet here. Finest flavored, better than I ever ate. All who have eaten it pronounced it fine. Will give it a better trial next year. Will get it out earlier."

On Oct. 8, 1915, Mr. George E. Bradley, of Aroostook Co., Maine, writes: "The 'Long Lost' Lettuce seed I bought of you last Spring has done the best I ever had any Lettuce do, both in greenhouse and garden."

On June 21, 1915, Mr. I. R. Schnebly, of Grundy Co., Iowa, writes: "The 'Long Lost' Lettuce seed grew fine. It is very handsome in appearance, excellent flavor, and the most valuable variety I have ever grown."

On June 26, 1915, Mr. Ben H. Keely, of Cecil Co., Md., writes: "I received an order of 'Long Lost' Lettuce seed from you early in the Spring and it has proven to be the most wonderful Lettuce I have ever grown."

On July 24, 1915, Mr. G. Ralph Laighton, of Rockingham Co., N. H., writes: "I take pleasure in saying that your 'Long Lost' Lettuce has done splendidly with me this season. The heads were very large, solid and crisp, and the flavor excellent. I have another crop of 'Long Lost' Lettuce that will be maturing soon and have also sown seed for a late crop. I shall continue cultivation of the 'Long Lost'."

On June 7, 1915, Mr. S. W. Carman, of Lancaster Co., Pa., writes: "In regard to your 'Long Lost' Lettuce, there is none better or as good. It beats any I ever had in quantity and nice, tender heads. Flavor can't be beat."

On June 19, 1915, Messrs. Vogt Bros., of Baltimore Co., Md., write: "The 'Long Lost' Lettuce is the very best heading Lettuce we have ever raised, and will stand the heat, as heads will burst open before going to seed. We do not want anything any better."

On June 15, 1915, Mr. Wm. Horner, of Baltimore Co., Md., writes: "The 'Long Lost' Lettuce which I purchased from you early this Spring is all that it is claimed by your firm. I like it so well I purchased some more. I certainly recommend it to market gardeners."

On June 19, 1915, Mr. Cris Gobb, of Baltimore Co., Md., writes: "The 'Long Lost' Lettuce turned out for me just as it is advertised. I want no better."

On Aug. 9, 1915, Mr. Henry Seymour, of Vanderburg Co., Ind., writes: "I have words of praise for your 'Long Lost' Lettuce. First, it stands drought better than any other kind. Second, it matures quicker and makes larger heads in less time than any Lettuce I know of. Third, it is tender, crisp and of a very fine flavor."

On June 14, 1915, Mr. John Tyndall, Wholesale Market Gardener, of Baltimore Co., Md., writes: "Bol-giano's 'Long Lost' Lettuce is without doubt the best Lettuce I have ever raised."

Fifty to 100 fruit to each plant. Ripens evenly, right up to the stem. Twenty-four fruit exactly fill a six-carrier basket.

Each beautiful "John Baer" Tomato weighs about 6½ ounces. Mild, deliciously sweet flavor. The finest flavor you have ever tasted.

Most perfect High Crown Tomatoes ever grown, entirely free from core. Just enough foliage—will stand plenty of sunning up to going to vine. Set plants 33½ feet.

Almost seedless; it requires 6 to 8 bushels of "John Baer" Tomatoes to make one pound of seed.

No cripples, no scalds, no blight, no cracked, no wrinkled, no one-sided, uneven, scarred fruit. When dead ripe will not burst.

The "John Baer" Tomato is the result of Fifteen Generations of Improvement and Selection for earliness, quality, shape, fruit, color and shipping quality.

Falmayra, N. J., June 10, 1915.

Messrs. J. Bol-giano & Son, Dear Sirs:—Last Winter I sent to your store and bought some "John Baer" Tomato seed. On Thursday, the 17th of June, I picked a number of fine, ripe Tomatoes and have picked some every day to date. I planted them in the open field April the 21st. If we had not so much cold and cloudy weather in May I think I could have picked by the first of June. I planted them in the same field with "Earlianas" and they are far ahead.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) PENNEL COOPER.

Originator's seed is scarce this year; demand is heavy. We urgently advise you to order at once to be sure of obtaining your supply of this wonderful tomato.

JOHN BAER TOMATO.

The Earliest and Best Tomato on Earth.
From Market Growers' Journal of Louisville, Kentucky, Sept. 1, 1915.

"John Baer" has withstood the rigors of this season the best of all the varieties we have, which include also Bonny Best, Earlibell and June Pink. The excessive rains of the last four weeks have caused our entire plantation to become affected with the oedema. The John Baer, however, does not seem to suffer from it, as a very much smaller proportion of its foliage dies than with the other varieties. "John Baer" is a very good variety for heavy soils. —Maplehurst Gardens, Southern Michigan.

G. BRUNNER'S SONS, FLORISTS,
Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 7th, 1915.

J. Bol-giano & Son, Gentlemen:—Out of 50 "John Baer" plants I picked on an average of a half bushel every other day, when on my other plants I did not average a small measure a day. By me "John Baer" is more than you claimed for it in your ad, last year.

FAIR ST. VALENTINE'S DAY TRADE.

The demand for stock for St. Valentine's day was good, but not strong enough to clean up all receipts. At the end of the business some double violets, lily of the valley and orchids were left over. Single violets, sweet peas, red roses and red carnations sold very well and, taken as a whole, business for the day was very good. The supply in the market was fairly large, and with the exception of roses, able to take care of all present requests. Roses are still rather short, but with an even break in weather, should be in a better supply at the end of a fortnight. American Beauties are good and are plentiful and may be had in all sizes. The carnation supply is good and about sufficient for present requirements. Easter lilies are plentiful. Dutch hyacinths and tulips in quantities have been added to the list of smaller bulbous stocks. The supply of greens is easily sufficient for present needs.

CLUB MEETING.

The florist society's February meeting at Labold & Newburgh's was well attended in spite of the extremely cold weather. The preliminary flower show committee's report was almost holding a fall show this year. The society adopted a resolution whereby the club will ask the governor of Ohio and the mayors of Cincinnati and adjoining cities, to say "a bright flower for mothers living, and a white flower for mothers dead," instead of white carnations, when these executives issue their Mothers' day proclamations. The society will also ask all Ohio societies to do the same in their respective localities. After the meeting music and songs by a string trio, "served" with refreshments, took up the balance of the evening.

NOTES.

Ed Buschle is recovering from his recent operation and expects to leave the hospital during the present week.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in a nice line of Dutch hyacinths and tulips in addition to daffodils and jonquils.

P. J. Olinger had a good supply of red roses and red carnations for St. Valentine's day. All sold quickly.

Visitors: Alfred J. Vander Horst, St. Mary's, O.; Fred Rupp, Lawrenceburg, Ind.; Jos. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; S. S.

Skidelsky, Philadelphia, Pa.; A. M. Anderson and A. M. Hanson of A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and G. Hampton, representing Jos. G. Neidinger, Philadelphia, Pa. H.

New York Notes.

We have had frequent occasion to notice the activities of Joseph Trepel, who conducts six stores in Brooklyn, and necessarily does a large business. We recently called at his Greenpoint store, 805 Manhattan avenue. The interior finishing is unique and it might be taken for a hunting lodge, were it not for the profusion of flowers. The whole interior is covered with white birch bark, which also recalls the lodges of the original Americans, who were here long before that wonderfully capacious ship, the Mayflower, came over.

Fred H. Wilshire, foreman for John Condon, of Brooklyn, has just returned from a southern trip of three weeks, being accompanied by Mrs. Wilshire. They visited Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Norfolk and other points and enjoyed themselves immensely.

The carnation, Laddie, as exhibited at the florists' club meeting, was greatly admired. It is a large flower and has beautiful shading of the petals, the centre being bluish pink, the outer petals more of the Enchantress shade.

August Millang, one of the well known Millang brothers, has a nice store and greenhouses at the corner of Pulaski street and Stuyvesant avenue, Brooklyn. He has also another good store at Jamaica.

The schedule committee for the national show held its final meeting at Secretary Young's office, February 15, and completed all details for final schedule to be sent out March 1.

Sargent & Tooker have been for a number of years located at 1061 Flatbush avenue, Flatbush. Their store is very neat and tasteful and they have a good trade.

John Donaldson of Patchogue, L. I., was in the city February 10 and gave the boys of the florists' club team a few lessons in bowling. Come again, John!

Thomas Reynolds, 757 Manhattan avenue, Brooklyn, is one of the older florists of that section. He has a good store and a nice business.

Herman Weiss, who recently started in business for himself at 106 West 28th street, is handling a good line of stock and is making good.

Dreer's Famous American Asters

DREER'S SUPERB LATE BRANCHING ASTERS

The finest Asters for late August and September blooming.

The plants form strong, branching bushes, 2 to 2½ feet high bearing on long strong stems their handsome Chrysanthemum-like flowers, which, under ordinary cultivation, average 5 inches across. The form of the flowers, together with the length of the stems, places them at the head of Asters for cutting. They come into bloom from two to three weeks after the average type, usually being at their best during September, and filling in the gap between the general run of Asters and Chrysanthemums. We offer eight beautiful and distinct colors, viz.:

	Trade pkt.	Per oz.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Boigiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20-22, 1916.

VISITED CHICAGO: W. N. Arterburn, of Wood, Stubbs & Co., Louisville, Ky.

ORANGE CITY, FLA.—Albert Dickinson and wife, of Chicago, are greatly enjoying their winter stay here.

CINCINNATI, O.—Two carloads of commercial beans are reported seized by the United States authorities as unfit for food.

AKRON, N. Y.—George W. Fisher, proprietor of the Akron Seed Co., died at the home of his son, February 3, aged 75 years.

DUTCH mail remittances for American bulbs are reported missing, probably taken off Dutch mail steamers by the British authorities.

TWO RECENT BULLETINS of the Colorado Experiment Station, at Fort Collins, are "Forage Crops for the Colorado Plains," and "Studies of Health in Potatoes."

ONE French grower claims Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora crop of 1916 will be five francs higher than last year. Others predict only one to two francs increase.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—Condon Bros. report that the state board of administration has awarded them contracts for supplying practically all seeds to the various state institutions for this year.

IN order to make competition more stringent along the line of free distribution of government seeds, against the American seed merchant, seeds grown abroad and consigned to the department of agriculture are entitled to entry duty free.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, February 16, were as follows: Timothy, $6 to $8 per 100 pounds.—Vaughan's Seed Store reports wholesale mail order trade on all lines as excellent. It is reported that 10 carloads of onion sets have been rejected in Oklahoma City.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—Gustav Schneider, the florist, was sued in local common pleas court on September 7, 1915, by the Luther Burbank Co. for $300, with interest at six per cent from October 24, 1914, claimed due on three promissory notes. He brought a counter-suit and on February 10 was awarded the sum of $86 against the plaintiffs.

FARIBAULT, MINN.—The Farmer Seed & Nursery Co. has purchased the business of the Faribault Seed Co., of this city. They will continue the business under the old name as their up-town retail store. The Faribault Seed Co. has been in existence about 20 years. The Farmer Seed & Nursery Co. reports a record-breaking mail order business up to this date as compared with the previous season and an increase of 60 per cent is shown. The item most sought for is seed corn.

California Conditions.

The seed growing sections have been reveling in sunshine for a week, according to telegraphic reports received February 16, and late planting is being rushed. All the growers are busy hoeing and cultivating. The abundant rainfall has caused no serious damage, but gives promise of good crops if future conditions are favorable. The 1916 crop onion seed is fully contracted and further orders are being refused by all growers.

Seed Trade Legislation in New Jersey.

Clever and able representatives of the seed trade in New Jersey and New York appeared before the house committee of the New Jersey legislature on agriculture at Trenton, February 8, to protest against the passage of house bill No. 34, introduced by Roberts of Moorestown, Burlington county, January 17, entitled an act regulating the selling, offering or exposing for sale of agricultural seeds in the state of New Jersey. Among those present were Marshall Duryea, of the Henry Nungesser Seed Co., Hoboken, N. J.; Patrick O'Mara, of Peter Henderson & Co., New York; Alexander Forbes, president of the J. F. Noll Co., Newark, N. J., and Curtis Nye Smith, counsel for the American Seed Trade Association. Representatives of H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., and other firms were also in attendance. A bill along the same lines has been introduced in the senate by Mr. Ackerson, but the house bill is the more drastic. Well informed seedsmen consider the Roberts bill as impracticable and impossible. It has passed its second reading, but is likely to have a rocky road to travel if it ever becomes law.

The Early Mail Trade.

We have received reports as follows from a number of firms doing catalogue business:

L. L. May & Co., St. Paul, Minn.—Our comparison of the mail business with a year ago is hardly a fair basis as our catalogues went out about two or three weeks later than in 1915. The month of January has been exceedingly cold with much snow, which undoubtedly has prevented the volume of business which we ordinarily would have had if conditions were more normal. Our January business is not up to that of a year ago, but we have a strong feeling that the season of 1916 will be one of the best the seedsmen have had for a number of years. Our seed orders in our wholesale seed department are ahead of a year ago for January. There seems to be a brisk demand for packet and bulk seed from the country merchants.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—Because of the delay in getting our covers and colored inserts we were two weeks late in the first mailing of our catalogue and for that reason January business of this year was a little behind 1915. At the present time, however, we have mailed about 40,000 catalogues more than last year and we are still receiving applications for catalogues way in advance of any preceding year. In fact, some days the individual applications exceed the corresponding day of last year by as many as 6,000. The average amount of our orders is well above last year and everything is pointing towards a fairly good season.

Stokes Seed Farms Co., Inc., Moorestown, N. J.—We are glad to report a gain of practically 100 per cent in the gross volume of our business to date over and above the figures at a corresponding time last season. This, in the face of two very general storms which have affected all of the north Atlantic states, is certainly most encouraging for the season's outlook.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York.—Chicago mail trade has been probably 10 per cent below last year to date. At our New York store mail order business is running ahead of last year.

John A. Salzer Seed Co., LaCrosse, Wis.—Our January mail order business showed an increase over 1915 of 20 per cent with less catalogues out.

R. H. Shumway, Rockford, Ill.—My mail trade since January 1 has not exceeded three-fourths of that of same dates of 1915.

A. Currie & Co., Milwaukee, Wis.—Our January business was fully equal to last year.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—The West Coast Seed Co. has removed from East Seventh street to 620 South Spring street, nearer the center of the business district.

HELENA, MONT.—The State Nursery Co. will erect a four-story seed warehouse to cost $30,000. The new building will be equipped with conveyors and seed cleaning machinery and will be up-to-date in every respect.

New York Seed Trade.

The store force at Weeber & Don's is now exceptionally busy with filling and shipping orders which are reaching them in unusually large volume, but they are well prepared to handle anything that comes their way. John Morrison, well known among private gardeners, is again on the road to visit his many friends in the interest of this firm. This time he is speeding through the country in his new automobile.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. has recently added a very fine stock of garden furniture, consisting of rustic vases, chairs, tables, etc. In a short time this firm expects to open a new addition, its third store.

Loewith, Larsen & Co. say they only represent a European concern in the claim against the Griswold Seed Co., mentioned in our issue of February 12.

Gladiolus Tariff Decision.

Gladiolus bulbs—Mother flowering bulbs.—Gladiolus bulbs classified at 50 cents per thousand are claimed free of duty under paragraph 210, tariff act of 1913, as mother flowering bulbs. Opinion by Waite, G. A. It was found that the bulbs in question are mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes. They were held entitled to free entry under paragraph 210.

Grading and Packing Cantaloupes.

Central packing houses in areas where the production of cantaloupes is an important industry are suggested in Farmers' Bulletin, No. 707, of the United States department of agriculture, as a means of solving some of the problems of the grower. About one-half of the trouble in marketing cantaloupes, says this bulletin, appears to rise from the difficulty of securing a steady and properly prepared output of uniform grade, quality and appearance. This difficulty would be overcome to a large extent if individual growers in any community produced crops of the same variety and quality, handled them in the same way, and were both competent and willing to grade and pack them correctly.

A very important factor in securing the desired attractiveness is uniformity. Under the present system, grading and packing is frequently done by the same man. This, in the opinion of specialists in the department of agriculture, is a mistake. Whenever possible the packer should be left free to give his attention to securing a pack of standard count which is both tight and attractive. The grader should have thrown out beforehand all undesirable fruit and also should have graded the cantaloupes according to their ripeness. Fruit designed for long journeys should be packed when less mature than that intended for marketing near at hand.

The packing of cantaloupes would be simplified and the packages made more attractive by the use of a much smaller variety of containers. The full sized standard crate and standard flat crate meet most of the demands of the market and should be used whenever practicable. Whatever type of crate is used, it is important that the melons in each container should be of the same size. This is insisted upon by dealers who supply large restaurants, hotels, railway dining cars, and similar institutions. In consequence, the market discriminates against crates in which large and small cantaloupes are packed together.

Spring Tomato Crop.

For the spring tomato crop, seeds should be sown at once if not already up. This is especially true where a warm house is not at hand. If we have the advantage of a house at 60°, good plants can be produced in six or seven weeks; however at 50° much more time is needed. We have seen cases where tomato seeds were hard to sprout, owing to low temperatures. In such a case, if no warm spot can be found, we resort to the manure hot bed inside of the greenhouse. By furnishing bottom heat, and covering with sash or cloth we can sprout the seeds readily, and as soon as well up we can remove the covering to harden the plants. By keeping the seedlings on the manure bottom heat, as long as possible, we can generally get through the winter months, when conditions will be more favorable.

As regards varieties, we need a larger tomato for the spring trade than in winter; we have found Bonny Best, the best scarlet and Beauty or Globe the best pink varieties. The Bonny Best is a trifle small, but it is wonderfully regular and perfect, and with a little extra feeding can be brought up to the required size. Tomato plants do well in a fairly rich soil, and we obtain it by mixing 2-3 garden soil with 1-3 spent hot-bed manure; and by restricting moisture to actual needs, we can regulate growth. Under no condition should the plants be allowed to grow soft and rapidly; what we need is a short-jointed sturdy growth and powerful roots. It is surprising how much drying they stand; if in danger during a sunny spell we syringe them several times a day, yet keeping the roots dry.

Damping Off Control.

Damping off of coniferous seedlings has been one of the worst enemies of nurserymen. This is caused by several parasitic fungi which attack and rot the stem and root of young seedlings. The loss from this source is not generally appreciated, for the poor stand of seedlings is frequently laid to poor germination. While the loss in one year from this cause may amount to but 10 per cent, yet in the next year damping off may cause a total failure of the stand. This uncertainty of crop has resulted in the high cost of coniferous trees for forest planting and has in the past caused American nurserymen to purchase their seedling stock in Europe. On account of the white pine blister rust and the pine shoot moth introduced on imported pines from Europe, an embargo has been placed on all pine nursery stock grown in Europe. This makes it doubly important that the damping off of seedlings be controlled, according to the United States department of agriculture.

A measure of control has been secured at some nurseries by the use of sterile subsoil in small scale experiments, but this is not altogether practicable when considered on a large scale. Excessive moisture and shade in the seed bed should be avoided. Seeds should not be sown any thicker than necessary to secure a good stand, for a crowded stand makes it easier for the damping-off fungi to spread from one plant to another. Sowing in summer or late fall has resulted in decreased losses at some nurseries and is worthy of trial. Soil disinfection, however, has proved the best method of combating the disease. Sulfuric acid, copper sulfate, zinc chloride and formaldehyde have given better results than a large number of other chemicals used, in experiments carried on in 21 different localities.

It is only possible to learn by trial just which chemical agent will best control damping off in any given locality or in a given soil. At most nurseries sulfuric acid has given the best results. Treatment with this acid not only reduces loss from damping off, but increases germination. The number of seedlings secured in the treated beds has ranged from one and one-quarter to 10 or even 20 times that secured in adjoining untreated beds. One of the most desirable features of the acid treatment is the reduction in the number of weeds. The saving in the cost of weeding has at one Nebraska nursery more than paid for the cost of the acid treatment. The reduction in the weeds and the stimulation given by the acid treatment has at a Kansas nursery resulted in jack pine seedlings three times the height of seedlings grown in untreated beds. Sulfuric acid is applied to the seed beds in a solution of water just after the seed is sown and covered. From $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ fluid ounce of acid per square foot is dissolved in from one and a half to two pints of water, and applied with a paraffin-coated sprinkler. Care is necessary in the use of the solution to keep it from the clothes and shoes, because of its corrosive action. Chemical injury may result in some cases to the roots, and it then becomes necessary to sprinkle the beds during germination once or twice daily. When the seedlings have their roots down three quarters of an inch, there is little danger from chemical injury. The department of agriculture has a special bulletin dealing with "Injury by Disinfectants to Seeds and Roots in Sandy Soils." Individual conditions at each nursery must decide how much acid is necessary and whether special watering is needed to prevent acid injury to the roots.

Where there is a considerable quantity of carbonates in the soil, their presence being indicated by an effervescence when a strong acid solution is applied, acid is not likely to be effective as a disinfectant. Copper sulphate and zinc chloride have been found good substitutes. The range of use of these chemicals which have proved successful in controlling damping off is for copper sulfate $\frac{1}{2}$ to 5-16 ounce per square foot, and for zinc chloride $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ ounce per square foot. These should be dissolved in water as for the acid treatment. Both the copper and zinc salts have at times been found injuring the roots of seedlings. Special watering will prevent the injury.

Formaldehyde has been found injurious to seeds and must therefore be applied before seed sowing. At a Minnesota nursery best results were secured by applying nine days before sowing a formaldehyde solution of from $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ ounce per square foot, in from one and one-half to two pints of water. It is necessary to cover the seed bed immediately after applying the solution in order to secure thorough penetration, and to prevent the too rapid evaporation of the gas.

Heat sterilization of the seed bed has been of value at some nurseries, though this method of treatment is more expensive than the acid treatment. Of all the treatments acid should be given the first trial, since it has proved more successful on more soils than any of the other chemicals used. If any nurserymen contemplate the use of soil disinfectants, they should write to the department of agriculture, for specific advice adapted to their particular location, and keep the department informed of their experience.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY TRADE HEAVY.

Daily fogs with an abundance of moisture have been the rule here for the last six or seven days, and it goes without saying that there will be little talk about methods of irrigation to offset the usually arid climatic conditions that obtain here for some months to come. The storemen say that business is good. The trade for St. Valentine's day was a record breaker; not only was the city trade heavy, but thanks to vigorous advertising on the part of some of the retailers, there was an unprecedented call from towns all over the state.

NOTES.

Furrow & Co. and the Stiles Co. both made unusually elaborate window displays February 12. Not only was there evidence of a plentiful supply of all seasonable kinds of cut flowers, but there was shown a seemingly endless variety of accessories for valentine purposes, every conceivable kind of a heart, arrow, and cupid were represented; the shapes, of course, were orthodox, but the materials they were formed of were multitudinous.

J. F. Hickey, formerly manager of the Barteldes interests in this city, is now secretary and manager of the firm of Lucas, Shannon & Hickey, wholesale seedsmen.

S. S. B.

Nassau County (N. Y.) Hort. Society.

The monthly meeting of the above society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, February 9, and was very well attended. Thomas Lucas was elected to active membership. An offer was received from one of our honorary members, of a silver cup for 10 varieties of gladioli, six spikes of each, to be competed for at our coming dahlia show which will be held in October. The competitive exhibits of the evening all called for carnations, and James Gladstone, Harry Goodband and George Gilder were appointed judges. Their report showed that Robert Jones had made a clean sweep in all three classes, being awarded first for 12 white with Matchless, first for 12 Pink with Philadelphia and first for 12 of any other color with Princess Dagmar.

John F. Johnson read a very interesting essay on "Botany and Its Use to Gardeners in Their Work." The Holyoke and Northampton Florists' Club.

The monthly meeting of this club was held February 8 at E. J. Canning's Prospect Heights Nursery, Northampton. Members turned out in good number and President Butler kept things moving in good style. By unanimous vote it was decided to change the meeting night from the second to the first Tuesday, to take effect at the March meeting. On behalf of the members G. H. Sinclair presented our worthy secretary, James Whiting, with a gold stick pin, as a slight token of appreciation of his good work in this office for the past four years. Instead of a paper being read and discussed, each member brought a question on a slip of paper. These were shuffled and drawn and each one allowed five minutes to answer. Facial expressions during the brain-racking process were a fine study. The plan was a great success, each member had to be heard from and the questions were such as to uncork much useful information. Exhibits of good quality added greatly to the interest of the meeting.

F. D. Keyes & Son staged a vase of Carnation Gorgeous and a large specimen, which same plant was exhibited a year ago and in the interval had matured a good crop of seed. G. H. Sinclair brought a fine spike of Clivia miniata and vases of sweet peas, Mrs. Sims and Christmas Pink. D. J. Gollman showed a fruiting plant of Ficus pandurata, and H. E. Downer of Smith College Botanic Garden a pan of hyacinth La Grandesse and six plants of cyclamens. One new member was elected. H. E. D.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—W. H. Showers has bought the flower store of Marvin P. Champlin at 226 Nott terrace.

LANCASTER, PA.—Following the explosion of a boiler at H. A. Schroyer's greenhouses, January 25, about 15,000 feet of glass were destroyed and plants valued at $2,000 killed by the cold.

At the greenhouse range of Butler & Ullman there is much of interest to be seen at any time. A large assortment of plants are grown to meet the requirements of a high class retail trade. A recent visit found Mr. Ullman enthusing over sweet pea Yarrowa, which is producing large flowers on long stems and sells on sight. Other varieties noted in flower were Mt. Blanc, White Orchid and Mrs. Wallace. In the rose department, Ophelia reigns supreme, and some particularly good blooms of Mrs. Chas. Russell were also noted. Carnations fill two large houses, represented by good standard varieties and very well grown. Violets were in splendid crop and wonderfully clean and healthy. In miscellaneous stock, bulbs in variety, callas, calendulas, candytuft, heliotrope and pansies were providing good material for cutting. At their store on Main Street, Mr. Butler in charge, business has been decidedly brisk for some time, which has resulted in continued clean ups of stock. Last week a special feature was made of well flowered plants of Chinese primroses. Artistic window displays were always a feature at this up-to-date store, and good use is made of basket ware and fancy pottery. The latest is a black glass bowl. With daffodils the effect is stunning.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Violets.

With the approach of spring the violet plants grow rapidly and quantities of runners will spring from the old stools and propagation of the runners at this time will save much time and room later in the season when the spring stock is insistently demanding space, and much better plants are procurable from cuttings taken now than from divisions in May, when the days are often warm and the plants more or less exhausted. And if the young stock is procured now the old plants can be thrown out as soon as through blooming, securing available room at once. These runners or laterals root easily at this time in a propagating bench or can be taken off with a few small roots and either potted or placed in flats and will take but little room, and as early as possible placed in a cold frame. Treated in this manner splendid stock may be obtained for planting out early, either in the field or in the houses, and with good strong stock to start with much better results are sure to be attained than by being obliged to plant small, weak stock latter in the year. As the warm days approach the houses will need to be shaded, for the sun bleaches the flowers, and a watering of liquid manure will greatly assist in maintaining the size of the blooms and also keeping up the color.

Mignonette.

The grower will always find some plants in his beds of mignonette that produce exceptionally large spikes of bloom, the plants are more vigorous in foliage or the blooms of better form, and these spikes that show special characteristics should be selected and the seed saved, and in this way the grower can procure a strain which after two or three years' selection will be far ahead of any seed he can buy.
This seed should, however, be saved before the bees and other insects are flying around and attracted to the houses, for they will cross-fertilize the flowers with undesirable strains. The seeds of mignonette do not ripen all at once, and as the pod remains open, the ripe seed falls out and is lost, so special preparation must be made to receive it. Select the spikes that are to be saved for seed and tie them to strong stakes and mark them. The flowers should then be cross-fertilized by rubbing a camel's hair brush up and down the flowers. This should be done every bright day so as to secure a thorough pollination. To catch and hold the seed take a piece of heavy brown paper and roll it into a cone shape, and after winding a piece of cotton around the stem and stake below the flowers, tie the small end of the cone-shaped paper around the cotton, the paper spreading upward so as to catch all the seeds that drop out of the seed pods. This can remain until all the seed has ripened and as the spike grows the cross-fertilization continues, but care should be taken that no water gets into the paper to wet the cotton, and the seed must be gathered before the days become so warm that insects and bees are in the houses.

Easter Lilies.

The one important crop to the plantsman at this time is the lilies for Easter, for they must be properly timed to be at their best on that date.
Easter this year comes April 23 and most growers like to see buds on their plants six weeks before that time. If the buds are not showing, the temperature will have to be increased to 70° at night. This will do the plants no harm if they have good sunlight during the day, and are given all the ventilation possible, but the ventilators should not be opened unless the sun is shining and the thermometer at least at the same degree as the night temperature, and avoid all draughts possible, for the plants grown so warm are very tender. It is next to impossible to bring a lot of lilies in all together, so it is better to grow them so the slowest ones will be in on time, and move those that are more advanced into a cooler house and retard them, but this should not be done until the buds are nearly full grown. A lily retarded when the buds are forming is very difficult to start into active growth again, but after the first buds begin to turn white the plants can be moved into a house of 50° or lower and they come on slowly and will be of better quality than those grown warmer. The plants should be all tied to a neat stake as soon as the buds form, if not already done, for the buds add considerable weight to the top of the stem and they bend over very quickly. When the buds form, if the plants are pot bound, a watering of liquid manure will increase the size and substance of the flower. It will be a continual fight against aphids from this time on and fumigation or spraying with nicotine will have to be regularly and continually practiced to bring the plants into bloom in the best condition.

Hydrangeas.

The greatest demand for hydrangeas is in May and June and to have them in the best condition at that time the plants should be started before March 1. While they may be started later and forced harder, yet the plants so grown are not as sturdy and do not give so good satisfaction after they are placed on the porches. Start the plants in a cool house and if the wood has become dry in their winter quarters, frequent syringing will assist in softening it. When they begin to grow do not crowd them. Crowding and too much heat are the principal causes of the long, ungainly plants so often seen. If they are grown in a cool house, with plenty of room, the plants will be sturdy and short-jointed, covered with beautiful foliage and shapely, and are a great ornament, which surely cannot be said of the tall plants with small foliage and bare stems toward the base. When the plants begin to grow rapidly they will require plenty of water and during the warm, sunny days of spring, when the houses are hot, all the ventilation possible, and at this time watch carefully for red spider, which gather in great numbers on the young growths and blooms and quickly spoil them. If they appear, syringe heavily until they are overcome. Keep the plants staked and tied as soon as required.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The Morris-Zogg Floral Co. has succeeded the Pierce-Christain Co.

PARKERSBURG, WEST VA.—J. W. Dudley & Son will build an 80-foot extension to one of their large rose houses this season. This firm has its usual fine showing of Hydrangea Otaksa for their wholesale and retail trade. Mr. Brainard Dudley reports excellent business at all of the firm's branches, including those at Clarksburg and Huntington, West Va., and at their latest addition in Marietta, O.

NEW ALBANY, IND.—Anders Rasmussen has had a good winter season with Spencer sweet peas, including Yarrowa, in solid benches and will follow them with Comet tomatoes after St. Valentine's day, the tomato plants having been grown on to good size in 4-inch pots for this purpose. Mr. Rasmussen had Le Marquis, a sweet pea of the early flowering grandiflora type, navy blue, in full bloom for Christmas when it is in strong demand, taking the place of violets in corsage work.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

Co-operative Advertising.

A well directed plan of publicity in which the judicious use of billboards, window placards and newspaper space proved a success, was a feature of the St. Valentine's day business at the establishments of the florists of Albany, N. Y., this year. Although only four of the retailers contributed to the fund to cover the advertising expense, several of the growers aided the movement and a fund of nearly $50 was available. "Let Flowers Be Your Valentine" was the slogan, and fifty posters, each four by nine feet were displayed in advantageous locations, while attractive window cards, bearing the same suggestion were distributed to all florists in the city regardless of whether they had contributed to the fund or not. A neat advertisement about five inches square, a reproduction of which is presented herewith, appearing in each of the four local newspapers, served also to remind the public of the appropriateness of flowers for the occasion.

Notwithstanding the fact that it snowed both Saturday and Sunday preceding St. Valentine's day, and that the temperature on the holiday fell below zero, according to Wm. C. Gloeckner, well known Albany florist, commenting on results secured, his business was better than a year ago and he believes the trade in general are more than satisfied. The entire expense was less than $50 and is considered very reasonable considering the amount of publicity received and the results obtained. Among the members of the craft who aided in making the publicity plan a success were F. A. Danker, H. G. Eyres, Rosery Flower Shop, Wm C. Gloeckner and John T. Travison & Co.

Basket of Carnations.

The basket of carnations as shown in the accompanying illustration contains 100 blooms. Delight, White Wonder and pink Wards were the varieties. Delight filled one end with the Wards at the other and White Wonder uniting the two in the center. The basket was generously deep, with a zinc lining. This was filled with clump moss and then with water. The stems were stuck in without wire. Clump moss admits the stems much better than sphagnum. A broad, pink ribbon, with a large bow in the center and long ends drawn through the flowers, together with the addition of maidenhair, gave a fine finish to the arrangement. A few broad leaves of the bird's nest fern were also used with good effect. This basket was exhibited on "carnation night" at the Florists' Club of Philadelphia by Vollers' House of Flowers, and was much admired.

Seals.

Superior service is what the up-to-date, careful retailer aims at all times to give his customers. Good service counts mightily in the business, very much more than other things that are thought by some most essential. The flowers may be of the best, arranged nicely in a box that leaves nothing to be desired in its quality, color and printing. It is neatly tied with the latest cord or tape; its tag is an exclusive design. Up to this point, nothing has been found lacking, and in most cases the service would have been perfectly satisfactory. But at times trouble comes, and doubt arises about this or that delivery because the count was not correct, the card was not enclosed or it had been tampered with. Some one had thought a flower or two out of the lot would not be missed. Others wondered who had sent this fine box and had evidently tried to find out by a clandestine look at the card. Superior service guards against this intrusion, by the aid of the seal, which is attached to and binds the ends of the tape securely to the surface of the box in such a manner that any attempt to meddle with it in endeavoring to open the box breaks the seal, showing at the first glance that the fastening has been tampered with by some one other than the rightful owner.

Seals are made in great variety, the most simple and exclusive being made of sealing wax, which can be had in all shades of color. The wax in stick form is held over a candle or gas jet and when enough of the melted wax is dropped on the point to be sealed a die with the firm's name or monogram is pressed into the center and the operation, which takes about a minute, is complete. In dull times a stock of seal impressions may be made on glass from which they are easily detached and stored. When needed the under side is softened over a candle and quickly applied. A good and easily adjusted seal, suitable for all boxes, is a gummed, embossed paper label, which is made in fac simile of the wax or in any form desired. This, when applied, holds the ends of the cord or tape securely and must be broken before the package can be opened.

Many may think this a useless expense and trouble, but I am convinced that it pays, mainly on account of the protection and privacy and also the complete and finished appearance of the box, which, after being neatly tied up, has the ends of the tape caught and made doubly secure with the seal.

K.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Wm. Walker is planning a new water plant at his big Anchorage greenhouse establishment. Miss Edith Walker, his store manager, is to be commended for her exquisite and original window displays, the latest attraction being of crotons and large sprays of Buddleia Asiatica with edging of blue grape hyacinths in miniature pink baskets.

Callas-Harrisii Lilies.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Small brown spots appear on the edges of the leaves of my callas, which gradually increase in size until the leaf has a brown rim. The bulbs were potted in seven-inch pots in September, have had plenty of water, top-dressed with bone dust twice and since beginning to flower have been watered with liquid manure once a week. Can you advise what causes this browning of the foliage?

I also have a batch of Harrisii lilies in the same house, which are showing bud and seem to be making a fine growth except that the foliage is tipped with yellow. These were potted September 1, kept in cold frames until top growth started and then grown on a greenhouse bench with just enough water to keep them moist, receiving weak liquid manure at intervals of 10 days.

P. C. E.

CALLAS.

The older leaves of the callas are very often affected with this brown edge, due to something that is lacking in the soil or too much of some substance in the water. I do not think that you are helping the plants any by the top-dressing with bone dust. Best results are obtained with callas by giving them rich soil, enough to get them well establish and rooted, and then treat liberally with plain cow-manure and an abundance of water. The one drawback to liberal treatment is that the flowers are likely to come too large for general purposes. It may be that your treatment with the bone dust has been too severe and caused the browning of the edges of the leaves, but if the plants are blooming freely, and it is only the older leaves that are affected, why worry about it?

HARRISII LILIES.

I am inclined to think that there is something lacking in the soil for these lilies to work on. To be successful with Harrisii or any other lilies, the soil must remain in a condition for the roots to work all the time. When in full growth they need plenty of water, but until the roots obtain control of the soil they should be watered sparingly. Poor drainage that has a tendency to clog and sour the soil will cause the tips of the leaves to turn yellow. Standing the pots on coal ashes that the gases have not been thoroughly burned out of, has also been found to be the cause of a great deal of this trouble.

C. W. JOHNSON.

THE CARNATION.

Mulching and Propagating.

The plants that have been producing flowers and cuttings are beginning to show the need of a mulch, which if put on now will greatly benefit them in their present state, as well as assist them to build a good growth for producing a continuous steady crop of flowers until the end of the season. From now on, as the winter breaks up, the plant growth will be much stronger, using up the material in the soil more rapidly, consequently for best results it becomes necessary to furnish more substance to the soil from time to time as the season advances, and the cheapest and easiest way of doing this is by mulching the beds. If the plants are in a healthy, growing condition, if a mulch is put on at this time and another the latter part of April a good crop of flowers can be cut right up to the time when it becomes necessary to clear out the old plants to make way for the new. At the annual meeting of the American Carnation Society recently held in St. Louis a lively and instructive discussion took place among the members as to the relative merits and the means of using the different kinds of fertilizers for carnations, and according to the methods followed by a majority of the growers of the best carnations at the exhibition, the mulching of the beds two or three times during the season, with a mixture of either horse, cow or sheep manure and soil produced the best results. One grower gave his experience between tankage and pulverized sheep manure very much in favor of the sheep manure. Another used dried blood for quick results, and some of the eastern growers had obtained good results from the use of Scotch soot, but in summing up the whole discussion it was made very plain that when the animal manure could be obtained in sufficient quantity, there was nothing better for producing good results, but the good results depended greatly upon the soil conditions and the attention the grower gave his plants. A weak, sickly plant cannot be worked out of its sickness with fertilizers, but strong healthy growing stock can be aided in their work of producing good flowers. The mulch should not be put on while the material is in a wet state. The plan we have followed with good results is to bring in the material and spread it out on the potting shed floor until it is dry enough to run through a 1/2-inch mesh soil sifter or crusher.

We use a mulch made up in the following proportions: 1 load soil, one-third load of well rotted horse manure, .50 lbs. pulverized sheep manure; the material is mixed up together and run through the sifter and then spread one-half inch thick evenly over the beds. After the mulch is put on it should be watered in, then the bed should be allowed to dry out to a moderate extent before watering again. After mulching there is greater danger of the soil getting too wet for the plants' good than before unless extra caution is used.

National Flower Show Headquarters.
Hotel Walton, Philadelphia, Pa.

The general routine care of the plants should receive close attention all the time. The plants can be given an occasional syringing as the weather will permit from now on. It will refresh the plants and clean out the red-spider; choose a bright morning for the syringing and be sure the weather conditions are such that the plants will dry up well before night.

Any propagating that has to be done should be attended to during the next three weeks; cuttings put in after March 1, take longer to root and do not have time enough to make good plants for planting in the field. Pot up the cuttings now rooted in the sand; they should be taken out as soon as they have made a nice bunch of roots and not allowed to remain until their roots begin to get long and wiry. The soil to use for potting the young carnation plants should be a live, fresh soil of porous nature, but not heavily charged with manure or anything that is likely to cause a soft growth. They need a light, cool place, close attention to the watering and see that they are kept free of insects.

Referring to the exhibits at the American Carnation Society exhibition the question arises before us, "What is the matter with the carnation or carnation growers of the middle west?" In looking over the awards, anyone not acquainted with the facts would think that the exhibition was held in an eastern city instead of St. Louis, and one of the Boston scribes makes the severe assertion that had one or two other growers that usually exhibit been able to attend, they, the easterners, would have made a clean sweep of it. That is like rubbing it in. However, we heartily congratulate our eastern brethren, and are forced to admit that either the western carnations are not good enough, or the growers do not support the American Carnation Society as they should do. The prizes awarded in the classes of 100 blooms were distributed as follows:

Class 1—New York, 1st; Indiana, 2nd.

Class 2—New York, 1st.

Class 3—Indiana, 1st; Massachusetts, 2nd.

Orange Blossoms, Double.

June brides and the fast increasing number of fiancées ought to be interested in this. A. L. Miller, chairman of the flower show committee of arrangements of the New York Florists' Club, who from time to time improves on nature, but has never tried to paint the lily, has developed a double orange blossom. This flower is pure white and perfectly formed and the natural fragrance of the orange blossom is increased to such an extent that half a dozen blossoms fill a room with their rare perfume. Matty Dobbins, master of ceremonies at the marriage bureau, commenting on the new flower, said: "It's lucky some one has jumped the size of the orange blossom. There's been a big jump in the number of marriages and the year looks good way along into July. If business keeps up even a three-ply orange blossom will be none too big to meet the needs."—New York newspapers.

SUPERIOR, WIS.—Mrs. C. E. Ashley has purchased the flower shop of Miss L. O'Sullivan on Tower avenue and will conduct same under the name of the Tower Floral Co.

THREE VICE-PRESIDENTS TRI-CITY FLORISTS' CLUB.

Miniature Dutch Hyacinths.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

We grow a quantity of miniature Dutch hyacinths in three-inch pots and are having some trouble after bringing them from the beds well rooted. The flower shoots up about two inches and damps off, and in a great many cases, the entire bulb is very soft, or practically rotten. The flower spikes shoot up about 10 days before they should. What is your advice on how to handle these bulbs successfully? We have used a large quantity of water on our plants, inasmuch as a three-inch pot does not carry a large amount of soil. We have endeavored to keep the water from the bud as much as possible in watering our plants. We maintain a temperature of about 50 degrees at night.

South Carolina.

G. G.

I think the trouble you are having with your miniature Dutch hyacinths is caused by over forcing them when not well enough rooted. This size Dutch hyacinth is not suited for early forcing, but is more desirable for later or Easter flowering, which allows for them to grow along and flower more naturally. We grow a large number of these bulbs for our Easter trade and find them very suitable for this purpose.

Our method of culture is as follows: When the bulbs are received, which is usually the latter part of September or early in October, they are potted up in the different size pots or pans to meet our requirements. A large number are grown one bulb in a four-inch pot, others three bulbs in a six-inch bulb-pan, and others five bulbs in a seven-inch bulb-pan. I have never tried growing these hyacinths one-bulb in a three-inch pot, and am inclined to think that this size pot is too small to produce the best results. The bulbs are given a live, moderately rich, fresh soil and after being potted are set outside in a frame, where the soil has been taken out to allow for the bulbs to have 10 to 12 inches of covering. After the pots are set the bulbs are given a good watering in to settle the soil and insure a moist condition. A covering of an inch or so of clean sand is then thrown on, and after this, the frame is filled in to the top with fine soil, which, as before said, gives the pots a covering of about 12 inches and on top of this soil covering a good layer of leaves, held down by some heavy boards, is put on. I may say here, that during the severest winter the frost seldom gets down to the bulbs, and then only around the edges of the frame. We do not try to flower these bulbs before needed so they are left out in the frame until three or four weeks before they are needed to be in bloom, according to the date of Easter. This year, owing to that date being so late in April, our greatest trouble will be to keep the hyacinths back and have them dwarf at the same time. We shall have to take off the soil covering and leave them outside in the frame under boards to hold them back as much as possible, and then allow them about 10 days to finish up in a cool greenhouse. The temperature allowed them for flowering is about the same as for carnations, 50-52 degrees at night with 56-58 degrees on cloudy days, and on bright days as near these marks as possible without extreme draughts. For South Carolina these methods of culture would have to be modified to a certain extent, but it should be borne in mind that this size hyacinth is most desirable for late flowering.

BUSINESS IS QUIET.

Business during the past week has been rather quiet. Prices have dropped on nearly every line of stock to a small extent owing to the larger supply and the decrease in retail demand. Roses held up the best of any of the staple lines, the prices being from $3 per 100 up, according to grade. Ophelia, Russells and Hadley found the best market, although there was good demand for the newer Killarney varieties. Carnations moved rather slowly, prices being from $1.50 to $3 per 100. Pink Delight, Matchless and Ward are by far the best sellers. Bulbous stock is plentiful, the best Spurs going for $2, and in some cases $2.50 per 100. The shortage of green continues, and no difficulty is experienced by the growers in disposing of it at three bunches for $1.

CLUB MEETING.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston held its regular meeting February 15. The meeting was well attended and was very interesting, as it was carnation night. There were a fine lot of exhibits. S. J. Goddard of Framingham had a display of seedling No. 1012, receiving a report of merit. He also had a few of the new Dorner & Sons Co.'s creations, of which Rosalia received an award of merit. His Pink Sensation also was very fine. R. E. Wadsworth Co. showed a vase of the new seedling Samuel Wheeler, which received honorable mention. A. A. Pembroke had a fine vase of Rosette grown from two-year-old plants. The Cottage Gardens Co., Inc., exhibited a vase of the new Crystal White and Cottage Maid, which were awarded an award of merit and honorable mention, respectively. E. K. Farr, of Stoneham, had Harry Fenn and Benora of exceptional quality. C. S. Strout, of Biddeford, Me., exhibited Pocahontas, Champion, Matchless and Beacon. A very nice variegated seedling was shown by N. Seaver, of Dover, N. H. Peter Fisher had a vase of Flecked Beauty, a mottled seedling and a fine vase of Alice. An award of merit was given to H. J. Borowski & Sons for a display of cyclamens. Interesting talks pertaining to carnations and their culture were given by S. J. Goddard, David Ward of the Cottage Gardens Co., Inc., C. S. Strout, Peter Fisher and Wm. Downs. John H. Stafford, of Bar Harbor, spoke on the coming sweet pea show at Bar Harbor, and the club voted $25 to be used as a prize for the exhibition.

NOTES.

Arthur Robbins and Arthur Liebman have opened a large store at the corner of West and Washington streets. They will keep it until the spring trade is over. It will be remembered that last year they had a shop on Washington street during the spring trade and sold thousands of flowers daily at "popular prices" to a trade that otherwise would not buy flowers elsewhere.

W. D. Howard, of Milford, is cutting a fine lot of carnations at present. He specializes on Ward, being the largest grower of this variety in the vicinity. He also has a fine crop of his salmon pink sport of Winsor.

R. E. Lassman, of Waverly, one of the pioneer florists of the country, celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday February 9. His friends in the trade presented him with an armchair as a token of their respect.

Penn, the Florist, had a record breaking Valentine trade. Some idea may be obtained of the volume of business by the fact that he bought from one grower, Wm. Sim, of Cliftondale, 100,000 violets.

Some of the finest peas in the market come from Kidder Bros., Lincoln, Mass. The flowers are of remarkable size and length of stem. They are also cutting about 30,000 violets per week.

The many friends of Joseph Guerin, manager for Wm. Filene's Sons Co., offer their sympathy upon the death of his wife. Mr. Guerin had been married but eight months.

During the recent snowstorm Walter B. Cobb, of Canton, Mass., had one of his houses collapse with the weight of snow, completely wrecking the structure.

Peter Hylen, of Randolph, has a fine line of bulbous flowers. His Golden Spurs, Victorias and Poeticus are especially fine.

Frank White, of Holbrook, is cutting some very fine wallflowers. He also grows good callas and Liliun longiflorum.

The Boston Florists' Bowling League met February 17 at the Boston alleys. The competition is becoming keen and each meeting proves to be very exciting. Aronson won the honors for the high individual string of the evening with 140. The team standing is as follows:

Pittsburgh.

TRADE VERY SATISFACTORY.

Trade has held up wonderfully well during the month of February, with stock of all kinds bringing very good returns. There has been no marked scarcity of flowers with the possible exception of roses, and the demand has been almost in keeping with the regular supply. Cooler weather has been the rule of late, but does not noticeably affect the market in any way. Both funeral and transient business are good, but decorative work has fallen off greatly. Bulbous stock is in heavy supply at present, especially tulips and daffodils, but Paper White narcissi appear to be scarce, as many of the local growers report that a good percentage of bulbs of the latter variety have gone blind this season. Easter lilies are scarce and bring good prices. A feature of the market's offerings is the fine Spencer sweet peas that have found so much favor among the retailers. Carnations are plentiful and of splendid quality.

NOTES.

It is rumored that another Pittsburgh department store is to follow the example of Kauffmann Bros. by opening a floral department, but more in the artificial line, featuring made-up door bunches, sprays, designs, etc. We might add that this is not a bad move, as local florists do not carry this line quite as extensively as is done in most of the larger cities.

Oliver Langhans is now doing road work for the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., relieving Wm. Usinger of some of his territory, which will enable Mr. Usinger to broaden his field considerably.

Increased business has necessitated the McCallum Company to add two men to their supply department, George Martin and Earl Schuler having been added to the force recently.

The sympathy of the trade is with Mrs. W. F. Zane, of Wheeling, in the death of her son, which occurred February 19.

Visitors: Leo Heuman, of Chicago; Ted Fryer of Tajimi company, New York, and Mr. Bieber, New York.

SPLENDID ST. VALENTINE'S DAY BUSINESS.

Thanks to consistent advertising by a few enterprising members of the trade here who held to the courage of their convictions, the public of this city are fast being educated to realize the appropriateness of flowers as valentines, with the result that St. Valentine's day has become one of the best flower days in the year. Co-operative advertising and compelling window displays are in a large measure responsible for the excellent results obtained. The weather was fine and the public took advantage of the opportunity to be out-of-doors. Violets and sweet peas were the leaders in popularity and an unusual number of plants were disposed of. There has been a heavy demand for funeral work, and as the social season is in full swing the supply of stock is quickly absorbed.

NOTES.

Schramm Bros. have been making consistent gains during January and February. This firm pushed Valentine day sales to the limit, calling attention to their service for the occasion with attractive window displays, newspaper advertisements, folders, etc. Their Lincoln window, with log cabin, representing the boyhood days of the martyred president, was both unique and artistic. It was executed by Geo. B. Schramm.

Emil Kuhnke, east side grower, who for a long time had been suffering from ill health, has sold his flourishing business on Woodville street and is now in the south taking a well-deserved rest. The local florists' club, of which he was one of the charter members, and ever one of its most active and progressive boosters, will miss his genial personality and his encouragement.

A window that for simplicity in art has never been surpassed in this city was noted at Mrs. J. B. Freeman's. Many people stopped to admire the clever arrangement for which Robert Blake deserves much credit.

M. Klunder of the Lindley Floral company is a genius when it comes to designing baskets, boxes and designs for special occasions. His Valentine boxes made a hit with the shopping public.

The Mussbach sisters have opened a flower store on Oliver street. Both of the young ladies are hustlers and a host of friends wish them every success, which they deserve.

Cincinnati.

GOOD SUPPLY MOVES EASILY.

With the coming of warmer weather and brighter days the daily cut increased materially in size and gave a supply of flowers that was sufficient for all present needs. Relatively speaking, the demand from out-of-town is better than that in this city itself. Prices are fair. The cut of American Beauties is large and good, and is available in every size. The market in other roses is now easy, owing to heavier receipts. Carnations are very plentiful and generally of good quality. Sweet peas are having a very active market. Lily of the valley is in very good supply, but is not selling any too well. Easter lilies and callas have only a fair market. Other offerings include tulips, jonquils, daffodils, Dutch hyacinths, freesias, violets and narcissi.

NOTES.

P. J. Olinger, accompanied by his brother-in-law, Fred French, who has been visiting him for the past month, and who is returning to his home in North Dakota, visited the Olinger greenhouses on February 21.

Orders for wire baskets have kept E. G. Gillett's wire working department working overtime.

C. E. Critchell is receiving outdoor daffodils from the south.

Visitors: Miss Harriet Van Meter, Springfield, O.; Mrs. Heiser, Miss Lodder, Miss Federle, Walter Gray and Wm. Lodder, Hamilton, Ohio.

Westchester and Fairfield Hort. Society.

We expect our clever correspondent, P. W. Popp, to write a more detailed report of the entertainment and dance of the above society, which took place in the town hall, Greenwich, Conn., on the evening of February 16, but it is up to an "invited" guest to speak a good word for a good show. The "Harrison Minstrels" were the star attractions and their songs, dances, and jokes kept the audience in a mirthful mood. Even among stars, there are some stars of superlative magnitude. Though the writer will acknowledge the gray hair, he yet likes to see good dancing. The star of the last number was a dancer, such as Mackworth Praed must have had in mind when he wrote the "Belle of the Ball."

I saw her at a county ball:

There when the sound of flute and fiddle
Gave signal sweet in that old hall
Of hands across and down the middle,
Hers was the subtlest spell by far
Of all that sets young hearts romancing;
She was our queen, our rose, our star;
And when she danced—O Heaven, her dancing!

After the minstrel show was over, the floor was cleared for one step, waltz, schottische and other dances. Refreshments were served.

Horticultural Society of New York.

The Horticultural Society of New York held a very creditable exhibition in the American Museum of Natural History, February 16. As the museum is open daily and has an abundance of space for an additional modest exhibit, these monthly shows require no very elaborate preparation, are free to the public, and we believe, help to popularize flowers. Following the opening of the exhibition a meeting of the society was held, an interesting feature of which was the lecture by Arthur Herrington, Madison, N. J., on "Irises for American Gardens." Noteworthy exhibits, with the awards, follow:

Collection of cut orchids—Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y. (Jas. Stuart, Gr.), 1st; F. E. Lewis, Ridgefield, Conn., (J. W. Smith, Gr.), 2nd.

Vase of roses, 50 blooms—Mrs. F. A. Constable, 1st; F. E. Lewis, 2nd.

Vase of roses, 25 blooms—Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y. (P. W. Popp, Gr.), 1st.

Vase of sweet peas, 100 sprays—Mrs. Fred Frelinghuysen, Oakhurst, N. J. (Geo. Masson, Gr.), 1st; F. E. Lewis, 2nd.

Vase of snapdragons—F. E. Lewis, 1st; Henry Goldman, Deal Beach, N. J. (Anton Bauer, Gr.), 2nd.

Narcissi, three vases—Mrs. H. Darlington, 1st.

Freesias, 50 arranged for effect—Henry Goldman, 1st; T. D. Leonard, Morris Plains, N. J. (E. Yeandle, Gr.) 2nd.

The following were also awarded special prizes: Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., for collection of orchid cut blooms; Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J. (J. P. Moosman, Gr.), for new and rare collection of cattleyas; Mrs. H. Darlington, for tulips and other bulbous flowers; D. G. Reid, Irvington, N. Y. (Arthur Golding, Gr.), for Narcissus Golden Spur, lilies and freesias; F. E. Lewis for vase of mixed carnations, Hamilton Farms, Gladstone, N. Y. (Fred Huyler, Gr.), vase of Rose Hoosier Beauty; Mrs. F. A. Constable, vase of buddleia and L. Speciosum; Mrs. Fred Frelinghuysen, narcissi; Adrian Iselin, Jr. (Jos. Tiernen, Gr.) three vases of Cattleya Trianae. Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., exhibited a collection of hardy flowering shrubs and blooming bulbous stock. A. F. F.

Wichita, Kan.

DEMAND HOLDS UP WELL.

Since the holidays trade has held up well with funeral work the heaviest item. January weather was severe and not favorable to production, causing the buying of much stock from the wholesale centers and the prevailing high prices were taken quite seriously. St. Valentine's day trade was very good—probably better than last year. There was good sale of valentine boxes in special designs, etc.; also good sale for specimen plants of azaleas, cyclamens, primulas and made-up plant basket arrangements. This class of goods received special notice from the married people, and there seems to be a place for the good plants to help out the cut flowers as on other special occasions.

NOTES.

The first carload of material for the new greenhouses planned by Chas. P. Mueller has arrived. He is building an extensive garage at the greenhouses. He finds use for three cars in his business, besides the touring car for personal use, and rumor has it that his order is out for a "Hudson Six." Newspaper reports state that Mr. Mueller will open a second store in the Palace Theatre building about March 1. The equipment will be of the best and very handsome. Miss Mattie Barley, for some years confidential clerk and office manager at the store on Main street, will have charge.

Herman Springer, greenhouse foreman for W. H. Culp & Co., has purchased the Butler greenhouses at Chillicothe, Ohio, and takes immediate possession.

Elwood Kline, of Kline's Flower Shop, Hutchinson, Kan., has sold the shop and moved to this city and taken a position in the store of W. H. Culp & Co.

C. A. Rose and F. Kuechenmeister both report good business.

Visitors: Leonard Vaughan, representing Vaughan's Seed Store; W. M. Reid, of W. W. Barnard Co., and Wm. Jacobs of A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. C.

Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Fine weather, a good supply of flowers in nearly all varieties and a well arranged publicity campaign were the factors in making St. Valentine's day business one of the best in years. Corsages, the old-fashioned bouquet and bulbous stock in pots, sold especially well, although the heart-shaped boxes enjoyed their usual popularity.

NOTES.

Decorations for several St. Valentine's day and Washington's birthday dances, together with table decorations for several banquets, have kept the Flick Floral Co.'s force busy. Aaron Shive, superintendent at the greenhouses, has been a sufferer from a severe case of grippe of several weeks' duration.

Visitors: Ernest F. Hoehle, representing S. S. Skidelsky & Co.; I. M. Bayersdorfer, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., and J. P. McCarthy with M. Rice Co., all of Philadelphia.

BETTER SUPPLY AND PRICES MODERATE.

Pleasant days which have been the rule for the past two weeks have increased the supply and caused a proportionate drop in prices. Roses are more reasonable in price and are arriving in larger numbers, but carnations set the pace for quantities with bulbous stock crowding them fast, especially tulips and jonquils, the latter selling as low as 75 cents per 100. Pot plants are still moving fast in the better grades especially cyclamens, lilacs and freesias. Other popular offerings include Butterfly sweet peas, daffodils and lilies.

NOTES.

Business at Arthur Newell's establishment is all that could be desired. The spacious windows here offer opportunity for clever decorations and pans and boxes of white lilac and azaleas are now attracting much attention. Adolph Wren, formerly of Atlanta, Ga., has been added to the force as assistant to Earl Lacey and is already popular with the trade.

At a meeting of the Jackson County Apple Growers' Association held at Independence, February 19, officers were elected for the following year. W. E. Schilling of this city is secretary-treasurer of the organization.

The monthly luncheon of the Missouri Valley Horticultural Society was held February 18 at the Coates House. Following the repast a number of interesting papers were listened to.

W. J. Barnes is kept busy and is cutting a good supply of stock. Pot plants continue in good demand here and his stock coming on for Easter is showing fine form.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. reports trade as being at top notch. Stock in good supply is arriving from the greenhouses and is readily disposed of.

T. J. Noll & Co. report shipping trade as being especially brisk. A daily clean up in all lines is the rule.

Moline, Ill.

Arvid Anderson, gardener to the Deere estate, was married in Chicago, February 18, last. He married Miss Anna Peterson, a Davenport girl of great popularity. The Rev. F. Lambrecht of Chicago performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kehr were in attendance. The bride, a charming young lady, was handsomely gowned in a blue traveling suit and wore a massive bouquet of orchids. After spending a brief honeymoon in Chicago they will return home to this city and some explanation will be in order for not taking any of Mr. Anderson's many friends into his confidence as it was a great surprise to his fellow florists, who all thought he was a confirmed bachelor.

OBITUARY.

August Junge.

August Junge, for the past 15 years and until six months ago, a member of the firm of Komitsch & Junge, growers, of Secaucus, N. J., died February 15 of gas poisoning, supposed to have been inhaled with suicidal intent. The firm of Komitsch & Junge began business in a very small way about 15 years ago and were very successful. They became growers of probably the largest output of orchids of any one firm in this country, in addition to heavy crops of chrysanthemums and sweet peas, which have always been shipped to Traendly & Schenck, New York. The health of the deceased began to fail about 18 months ago, and six months ago Mr. Komitsch bought his interest and the partnership was dissolved. It is stated that he was worth $60,000, mostly cash. After selling his interest, his malady increased and his mind became seriously affected. He spent some time in a sanitarium, but did not improve. He was unmarried, a native of Germany, and about 43 years old. Previous to his illness he had been a hard worker, and was a man of a genial and companionable temperament.

Darius Easterday.

Darius Easterday, originator of the Woodrow Wilson apple, and a pomologist of note, died at his home near Washington, N. J., February 19. It had, for years, been his ambition to develop an apple of unusual size, and when he finally succeeded in producing one that is said to have weighed 20 ounces, he took it to the White House and got the president's permission to name it for him.

ELKHART, IND.—Hugh Hills has sold his business to the West View Floral Co. of this city.

LANCASTER, PA.—R. P. Antes and Charles F. Edgar will open the Rose Shop about March 1.

CORTLAND, N. Y.—Harry J. Brownhill has purchased C. V. Hike's interest in the Hike-Allen Floral Co.

CHARLESTON, WEST VA.—F. H. Winter has returned from an extensive tour of the Ohio and Indiana growers.

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y.—The Susquehanna Valley Greenhouse Co. will erect a range on Brown street to cost $3,000.

CATONSVILLE, MD.—One new house, 35x100 feet, to be devoted to sweet peas, will be added to the range of Charles H. Cook.

BALTIMORE, MD.—The Baltimore Florists' Supply Co. is a new concern located at 11 East Pleasant street. J. Ward Perry is manager.

SAULT STE. MARIE, MICH.—Wm. E. F. Weber has recently opened a store downtown and will handle flower and vegetable seeds in addition to flowers and plants.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—Geo. Blackman, of the Wm. Blackman Floral Co., had a serious fall during the Christmas holiday rush, causing a painful sprain of one shoulder, which is improving slowly.

COLLEGE STATION, TEX.—Professor J. J. Taubehaus, for several years plant pathologist at the Delaware agricultural experiment station, has been appointed plant pathologist and physiologist at the Texas experiment station and will make his headquarters here.

ONE grower says the Mrs. Charles Russell rose is fine except in December, January and February.

BUDDEIA ASIATICA 'grown under glass by Wm. Korb, Louisville, Ky., sold for 50 cents per spray early in February.

Lily of the Valley Importations.

Reports of importations of lily of the valley pips are being issued, stock arriving via Rotterdam. Records of last season for shipments sent in January show that nearly half of them were lost by sprouting because the Rotterdam-New York Dutch steamers had no ice storage facilities. If December and January shipments arrive sprouted, what will be the chances for stock forwarded under similar conditions as late as February or early March?

Gas Poisoning From Bulbs.

With reference to the alleged exhalation of poisonous gases by bulbs in shipment in steamer's hold, report of which was made in our issue of September 18, page 484, W. A. Taylor, chief of the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, in response to a request, writes: "We appear to have no record of any disastrous effect of such exhalation unless the news dispatch is an accurate statement of fact. As practically all living plant material, including fruits and vegetables, exhales more or less carbon dioxide, the presence of a large quantity of such material in a closely confined space is certain to vitiate the air if ventilation be entirely lacking, rendering it dangerous for persons to breathe. The opening of a storage chamber or vessel's hold some time in advance of entrance to it to permit ventilation, would remove any possible risk, just as is now known to be necessary in the case of silos, which have been tightly closed for any considerable period after filling. Experimental work in the storage of fruits and vegetables has proceeded sufficiently far to indicate that sufficient ventilation to prevent the accumulation of carbon dioxide in the storage chamber is advisable from the standpoint of the best preservation of these products themselves, and the same would probably be true in the case of bulbs."

Fourth National Flower Show.

PHILADELPHIA, MARCH 25-APRIL 2.

The Hotel Walton has been chosen as hotel headquarters for the National Flower Show.

Several additions have been made to the schedule in the way of special prizes. Geo. C. Thomas, Jr., Chestnut Hill, Pa., offers a prize of $50 in the classes for private growers for the best collection of cut roses, comprising the varieties Killarney, or Double Pink Killarney, Lady Alice Stanley, My Maryland, Jonkheer J. L. Mock, Ophelia, and Mrs. Aaron Ward. He also offers in the same section a $50 prize for the best collection of climbing roses in flower.

A splendid location has been decided upon for the exhibits of retailers, and J. J. Habermehl's Sons, of Philadelphia, have reserved 600 square feet in this section. This reservation, with the others previously reported, insures a good representation of retailers.

The orchestra is to be placed on a platform over the aisle leading from the main floor to the main floor extension, a position which is very good acoustically, and forms a connecting link between the two floors.

The ladies having in charge the tea garden at the New York show are arranging to visit the Philadelphia show in a body, the friendly rivalry existing between the two cities in regard to their respective tea gardens creating quite an interest in the entertainment features of both shows.

The Boy Scouts of Philadelphia will officiate as ushers at the show, and will place themselves at the service of the visitors with their usual ability.

The schedule for the show includes an aquarium exhibit such as was never before attempted. Aquatic plants will, of course, be a feature in this section. There are over 50 classes in this section, and it will prove to be a unique feature of the show. The final schedule of the show is now in the printers' hands, and will be distributed about March 1.

The trade space on the main floor is practically now all reserved, but some excellent locations on the main floor extension, which will be a popular section of the show, are still available.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS NORMAL.

Market conditions are what we would call normal at this time; the supply of roses, lily of the valley, bulbous stock, violets and lilies, is such that the steady demand takes care of all from day to day. Carnations are a little ahead of the demand, but owing to their good keeping qualities, little or no stock goes to waste, the only bad feature being the drop in prices, which are not so bad but that they could be a good deal worse.

NOTES.

Fred Craneheld, secretary of the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society, who had a little chat with several of our members February 11, will be a guest at the florists' club meeting, March 2. He will make a strong plea for the affiliation of the local florists' club with that of the state horticultural society. Mr. Craneheld is an interesting talker and his coming should insure a good attendance.

While our two patients, Alfred Schiller and Walter Holton, are well enough to be up and around, they still lack the strength to attend to business. While we are pleased to give the foregoing report we regret to state that J. Seal, bookkeeper for the Holton & Hunkel Co., is confined to his home with la grippe.

Aug. F. Kellner is busy as a bee these days attending to various details connected with the charity bazaar to be held in the Auditorium March 2-9. The proceeds of this affair will go to the German and Austrian sufferers on the other side of the Atlantic.

A. Hare, who is the chairman of the club's entertainment committee, is a very busy man these days supervising the preliminaries for the dancing sociable to be given, Wednesday, March 1.

Gust Rusch & Co. state that the rose cut from the Cudahy range is increasing from day to day, which will make that line a little more satisfactory than it has been in the past.

Otto Sylvester, Sr., was a caller last week. He says in all his days he never saw a time when funeral work was so brisk as it has been with him for the past three months.

John M. Dunlap of Wauwatosa, a pioneer florist of Milwaukee, reports the arrival of a baby girl at his home last week. He is now the proud father of five boys and two girls.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. reports satisfactory business for St. Valentine's day.

E. O.

Johnson City, Tenn.

Gunnar Teilman has a range of 10,000 feet of glass advantageously situated near the railroad station and express office, giving him excellent shipping facilities. In the carnation house, Beacon and White Enchantress were seen in fine condition. The rose house and the part of the establishment devoted to decorative plants were also filled with good stocks. An acre of ground is reserved for nursery stock.

James Venable, Sr., who had been a successful florist here for a number of years, died February 6, aged 65 years. His son, James, Jr., will continue the business.

TRADE RATHER QUIET.

Trade the past week has been rather quiet and stock has accumulated to such an extent that there is now plenty of everything with the exception of American Beauty roses to go around. While there appears to be a large supply of stock in the market, there is no great oversupply to speak of and a few brisk days would find quite a change in the market conditions. Some may take exception to this but it is nevertheless true and the only reason that there is so much stock seen now is because trade is unusually quiet. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are quite plentiful, but are in good demand and clean up fairly well at good prices. Roses in general are in larger supply with one or two exceptions but taken all in all there have been more than enough to go around in almost all the varieties the past week. Carnations are seen in unusually large numbers and are selling at reduced prices with very choice stock obtainable in all the leading varieties. Orchids and gardenias are plentiful but clean up nicely each day and the same holds good for lily of the valley. Sweet peas are in large supply but hold up well in price considering the large supply of other stock offered. Tulips, jonquils and daffodils have dropped somewhat in prices, and the same applies to Paper White narcissus and Romans which do not appear to be any too plentiful. Lilies are arriving in much larger quantities and a fair supply of stocks is seen. Violets are seen in large numbers but are not moving any too well and are selling at very low prices. Freesia is still being offered in large quantities but is not moving as briskly

George Wienhoeber had an order this week to reproduce the North Chicago golf grounds in miniature from the members of the club which was the main object of interest at a dinner held at the Standard Club, Saturday evening, February 19. It was a very good reproduction and if one ever had the pleasure of visiting the north side grounds and could have seen the miniature, he would recognize the place in a moment with the club house on one end and the rustic bridge near the centre. The piece was about 24 feet long and 2 feet wide, with every detail carried out so carefully that it seemed that the party who laid out the original grounds was the same one who reproduced the miniature.

A. T. Pyfer & Co.'s receipts of roses and carnations are very large, but clean up nicely each day considering the general market condition. Mr. Pyfer says his firm managed to secure a large quantity of green dye for St. Patrick's day for wholesale purposes and has plenty on hand to fill all orders.

C. L. Washburn says that about 20 homes at Hinsdale are quarantined with scarlet fever, among which is that of Charles Swanson, who is an employe at Bassett & Washburn's greenhouses. The public schools, churches and theatres have all been ordered closed until further notice.

Weiland & Risch report receiving an order from the Plant Bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., for Champ Weiland, their beautiful new rose of a cherry glow.

O. A. and L. A. Tonner announce the opening of their new store at 30 East Randolph street, where they are prepared to serve their customers with a complete line of cut flowers and supplies. Miss O. A. Tonner will continue to look after the wholesale cut flower department and Miss L. A. Tonner will manage the supply end of the business. She was formerly with E. H. Hunt and later with Vaughan, McKellar & Winterson, then with McKellar & Winterson and still later had charge of the A. L. Randall Co.'s supply department from 1906 to 1912. Both of the young ladies are well experienced in their lines and are capable of taking care of all orders that may be entrusted to them. Miss Anna Tonner, another sister, will keep the firm's books, so the family will be well represented in the wholesale market.

John Mangel, the Palmer House florist, always keeps his conservatory in tip-top condition and if one drops around just at the right time he will find him on duty in his glass house where one of the finest collections of rare foliage plants are to be found in any one retail establishment in this city.

Bassett & Washburn, E. F. Winterson Co. and the E. C. Amling Co. opened up their stores at nearly midnight Monday, February 21, to accommodate the Ernst Wienhoeber Floral Co. so it could get out a rush funeral order, and fortunately the three firms had enough stock on hand to make a large casket cover and fourteen other designs for a large Catholic funeral held the following day.

F. J. Bentley still speaks highly of the rose Mrs. George Shawyer and says 16,000 plants will be given bench space next season at the Bentley greenhouses at New Castle, Ind. Most of the Bentley stock is sold at Kenicott Bros. Co.'s store, where F. F. Bentley makes his headquarters.

Frank Ayres has received another unpleasant visit again from his old enemy, king carbuncle, who seems to drop around every year regularly about the time that Chas. W. McKellar offers green carnation dye for St. Patrick's day.

Percy Jones never had such a fine and complete supply of bulbous stock as he is offering right now. Business at this house is pretty good, considering conditions, and the sales so far this year have been very encouraging.

VIOLETS AND CARNATIONS

Large supply fancy Carnations in all the leading varieties and the best Double Violets in the market. A trial order will be appreciated.

G. C. Steffens, 2813 Broadway, has an attractive store since he enlarged his place. He reports business is good and has succeeded in making a store pay in a location where several others could not meet expenses.

H. N. Bruns reports very satisfactory growth of his retail business and thus far the difficulties of importing have shown no decrease in the supply of his high grade lily of the valley.

Joe Marks will represent the A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co. at the annual convention and exhibition of the Illinois State Florists' Association, to be held at Moline, March 7-8.

J. Swenson, formerly with the George Wittbold Co., and later with Ronsley, has accepted a position with Raske's Flower Shop, 170 West Jackson boulevard.

Mary Hartshorn, daughter of Wm. Hartshorn, gardener at Shaw's estate at Winnetka, was operated upon for throat trouble at the Evanston hospital last week.

The John Kruchten Co. is receiving a good supply of gardenias from the Deerfield Nurseries, of Deerfield, who have grown them on a large scale for many years.

Chas. Erne, of Erne & Klingel, is rapidly recovering from the effects of his recent operation and expects to pay the force a visit at the store next week.

John S. Witt & Son, 10429 Wallace street, will start work soon on two new houses 20x126 feet, which will be devoted to the growing of bedding stock.

Albert A. Sawyer, Forest Park, has discontinued the growing of asters and pansies owing to the demand for his land in building operations.

A. Henderson & Co. have their first catalogue in preparation and expect to have the retail seed department equipped for business this week.

Frank Oechslin's handsome new residence on Jackson boulevard is nearing completion. The building will be heated by a Kroeschell boiler.

Bob Newcomb and George Mohn, of Vaughan's Seed Store, have returned from prolonged trips and report business good.

August Koch has a fine display of cinerarias and tulips in the newer kinds at the Garfield park conservatories.

Joseph Ziska, Sr., and Emil Jehlik are planning on spending a few weeks at Mineral Springs, Fla.

Zeck & Mann's store force bowled the A. F. Ameling Co.'s greenhouse force at Maywood last Monday, February 21, when the Ameling team won three exciting games from the local team. Collatz of Maywood starred with an average of 218 and after the match game was over he and Allie Zeck bowled a game to decide who was the best man. Collatz rolled 248 and Zeck 245.

Peter Reinberg is cutting heavily in Mrs. Chas. Russell roses in the longer stemmed grades and reports a brisk demand for same. Milady and Richmond are also seen in large supply at this store, and Felix Reichling says that while trade is not as brisk as it might be, his firm has no cause whatever to complain of dull times.

Wietor Bros.' receipts of carnations include all the best new and standard varieties and particularly noticeable now are Philadelphia, Alice, Bonfire, Rosette and Champion. A good supply of American Beauty roses is reaching the store each day, but are in such good demand that they clean up at an early hour.

The National Plant & Flower Co.'s new greenhouses are well under way and will be ready for occupancy soon. The Ickes-Braun Mill Co. is furnishing the material and Mike Winandy, Jr., is doing the erecting.

William Sullivan, of Sullivan Brothers, 871 East Sixty-third street, reports trade as good at both of their south side stores.

J. A. Budlong has a fine cut of roses and a good supply of Double White Killarney is included in the shipments.

THE SIGN OF QUALITY

John Poehlmann, Sr., visited Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s store for the first time Wednesday, February 16, since he underwent his operation and it is needless to add that he was as welcome as the flowers in May and sometimes in January. John Poehlmann, Jr., who graduated from the Culver Military Academy last year with the rank of lieutenant, and adjutant, attended a meeting of the veterans of the various wars and their auxiliaries at Palmer Park, One hundred and eleventh street and Indiana avenue, Tuesday, February 22, when General James E. Stuart was the principal speaker. Nearly everyone present was in uniform and the only reason that John did not occupy a seat on the stage was because a beautiful young lady desired his company in the audience. Roland Poehlmann, who is a student at the Western Military Academy at Alton, spent a few days with his folks, Mr. and Mrs. August Poehlmann, at Morton Grove, this week.

Ronsley has closed his store in the Westminster building and is now in the employ of the Flower Market, 6 East Monroe street. It is understood that he will file an involuntary petition in bankruptcy.

M. C. Gunterberg said the sales on one day during Valentine week were as good as the best day Christmas week.

Visitor: C. C. Sander, St. Louis, Mo

Allie Zech rolled 275 for the florists in his recent game in the Mercantile League last week, which is a new record and saved his side from being whitewashed by the Rickets. He averaged 207 for the three games played. The scores are as follows:

Players	1st Game	2nd Game	3rd Game
Zech	164	149	125

MARKET IN GOOD SUPPLY.

The market is now well supplied in all lines of cut flowers and plants. Azaleas, genistas, tulips, daffodils and other bulbous flowers in pots and pans are seen everywhere and are moving nicely. Carnations have become more plentiful the past week, but are moving in quantity at reduced rates. Roses, too, are coming in more plentifully, especially Killarneys, Wards and American Beauties. Bulbous stock in all colors and varieties cover the tables and counters of both wholesalers and retailers. Sweet peas are good stock, in all colors. Orchids are moving quickly and stock is exceptionally good. Lily of the valley is not so good this week, but the demand is fair. Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri are again in good supply, as is adiantum. Freesias have been moving nicely. Snapdragon is short of the demand. Calla lilies are good stock.

NOTES.

Westman & Getz, florists at 5923 Euclid avenue, have been incorporated as The Westman & Getz Co., with a capitalization of $10,000. The parties interested are Charles E. Adams, formerly connected with the Cleveland Hardware Co.; Miss Hester Getz, H. W. Dirkson, formerly with the Cleveland Trust Co.; C. E. Dirkson and A. C. Adams. When Westman & Getz first began business about 14 years ago on Euclid avenue, near East Eighteenth street, competitors gave them just six months to go. They are still at it—and growing. Miss Westman died several years ago, but the business has been carried on by Miss Getz, until it has now grown to such proportions that incorporation and more help was needed to carry it along.

Herbert E. Bray, newly appointed assistant general manager at Warrensville Farm, has had wide horticultural training, notably at O. C. Barber's estate, the Anna Dean Farm, which is estimated to be worth about three and one-half million dollars, composing 3,600 acres of land, and producing flowers, dairy products, food stuffs and cattle.

PRICES DROP WITH INCREASING SUPPLY.

Market conditions have shown considerable improvement since our last report. Roses are more plentiful and prices have taken a tumble. American Beauties can be had for from $3 to $9 per dozen for specials, while Shawyer, Killarney Queen and Radiance, equally as good as far as stem and flower are concerned, are offered at from $20 to $30 per 100. Other varieties, including Ophelia, Ward, Russell, Mock, the Killarneys, Richmond and Taft were quoted at prices varying from $4 to $12 per 100. Sweet peas are plentiful and never were better at this time of the year. Bulbous stock is plentiful but prices remain firm.

NOTES.

Elmer Maybury, manager for the DuPont Floral Co., reports business beyond his expectations and he has had to increase his working force. The window displays at this establishment are always an attractive feature and the object of much favorable comment.

From present indications this city will be well represented at the national flower show in Philadelphia, March 25-April 2. One retailer will have all of his employees visit the exhibition at his expense, and his force is a large one.

W. Clark & Sons are sending in some of the finest jonquils to be seen here. Their Silver Wedding variety is especially fine and the supply is not sufficient to meet the demand.

J. H. Small & Sons had the decoration for the fancy ball at the New Willard hotel. Over 75 cases of southern smilax were used in the embellishment of the walls and ceiling.

O. A. C. Oehmler has added to his force. Sam Everett has given up his stand in the Eastern market and can now be found at the Oehmler store on G street.

HEAVY SPRING TRADE ANTICIPATED.

February 19 was the first pleasant Saturday we have had so far this year. It was an ideal spring day and the flower stores were thronged with crowds the entire day. Business along all lines has been quite good all the week, and now that people are beginning to make preparations for their spring gardening, trade is going to increase materially. The call for canna tubers and sweet-pea seed is already developed to quite an extent.

The fact of Easter being so late this year will be rather a disadvantage here, as the chances are the weather will be quite warm by that time and there will be much difficulty in holding some lines of stock back; however, there is no doubt that beneficial conditions will arise that will more than offset the drawback of a late Easter, and we are looking forward to the largest spring trade ever experienced in this city.

Saturday bargain day sales continue to be a feature with the florists. This week, Furrow & Co. made a run on flowering plants and had a fine showing of azaleas, Dutch hyacinths, lilac and cyclamens. The Stiles Co. made a run on cut flowers with violets and carnations as the special features.

Gov. R. L. Williams officially designated February 20 as "Fathers' day," and through the suggestion of Col. Leecraft, the governor's private secretary, the violet was selected as the emblem to wear on Fathers' day, so our state now has both a Mother's day and a Fathers' day, and someone has suggested that a week be designated for the children.

The high prices of thread, ribbons, tin-foil and ties for corsages are the cause of much comment here. Traveling men lay the blame to the European war, lack of dye stuffs, etc. Of course, there is no come back to such explanations and we have to admit that the effects of a great war can be far-reaching.

Mrs. Eager, of Furrow & Co., visited in Guthrie this week.

Lancaster County Florists' Club.

One of two things is certain—either 3:30 is a more popular hour than 1 o'clock, or W. B. Girvin has a magnetic attraction to draw a crowd, for our visiting trips this winter have not been overcrowded numerically, but this time we had a full 25 and they were all well repaid.

Carnations are of course the principal feature at this, as at all Lancaster county ranges, and his Matchless proved that this variety is a profitable one, for although the main crop was just off, enough flowers were coming into bloom to cover expenses until the second large crop would follow, which will be about Mothers' day. Talk about your gold mines or "Bethlehem steel"; they are not "one, two, three" alongside of this proposition. The place as a whole is what might be termed, between crops. Beacon, while not quite as good as last season, has produced its quota and will soon be ready for pulling out to make room for young stock. Mrs. C. W. Ward is producing some very fine flowers, but along with them about five per cent of splits and poorly colored blooms. Mrs. Akehurst is highly thought of and will be planted very extensively next season; in fact, nearly to the exclusion of all other pinks. Gloriosa is in good shape, as is Pink Delight, but successors that will produce more cuttings are being sought. The cut of carnations from this place during January was 32,000. Chrysanthemum cuttings and carnation cuttings are a feature here and are in the sand by the tens of thousands; in fact, pot stock runs into large figures, and in talking of plumosus Mr. Girvin glibly rolls over his tongue, the numbers 25,000 to 50,000—hundreds are a forgotten quantity here.

Returning, Dennis Connor and the writer stopped at the station and met the essayist of the evening, M. C. Wright, and the writer was the only member of the club to take dinner with him, although a number of the members were hailed and asked to join us. Right here is where this club falls down with a dull sickening thud. It is a cold-blooded proposition to ask a man to give his time and money to come and favor us with such papers as we have been receiving from our out-of-town essayists, allow them to be met at the station by one lone member of the club, accompanied to dinner by the same lone member, and often after the lecture, a beggarly two accompany the lecturer back to his hotel or to the railroad station. Reciprocity is the order of the day, and when we stop to think of the time such men as Messrs. Wright, Pennock, Vincent and others give to us, is it absolutely essential that we make the first car out of town after the meeting? There is one place where we do not fall down, however, and that is in proportion to membership, the club holds the record for the United States in turning out to hear our different speakers. Mr. Wright certainly had a large and appreciative audience, and the vote of thanks at the end was a real one from the heart. The slides accompanying the paper were highly appreciated and added much to the body of the paper.

On the exhibition table we had a very handsome bunch of sweet peas from E. P. Hostetter, of Manheim; Purity freesias from John R. Shreiner, and Rudolph Nagle proved to us, by his vase of mignonette, that he knew the business well enough to make his first attempt a complete success. Among the visitors were T. J. Nolan, of The King Construction Co., Dennis Connor and M. C. Wright, of The Lord & Burnham Co.; Mr. Kenny, of the Cumberland Floral Co., Harrisburg, Pa., and E. S. Rutt, of Elizabethtown, Pa.

In addition to the routine business of the club a proposition was presented by H. Horter Fricke for The Philadelphia Press in relation to a special issue for flower show week, and in which the club has taken a five-inch double column space for general publicity purposes, and in which will appear a full list of our membership. It was also moved that we buy 100 tickets for the use of our club members, and arrangements are on foot for a "Lancaster day" with special train and special rates.

The programme committee, through its chairman, H. K. Rohrer, has in store for us at the next meeting, March 16, an illustrated lecture by Richard Vincent, Jr., on the bulb industry in Holland and we are going to have our wives and sweethearts at this meeting. Our new president, Mr. Schroyer, seems determined to give the girls a chance at our bachelor florists this leap year, and has appointed a committee to arrange for a ladies' night the Thursday following Easter to take the place of our April meeting, which would fall three days before Easter, an inopportune time for most of us. TRADE INCLINED TO BE QUIET.

During the past week business was rather quiet with the exception of roses which are still very scarce and consequently high priced. There is a good demand for short roses. Carnations sell at $1.50 to $3 per hundred, according to quality, but the market on them cleans up readily each day.

NOTES.

Among the notable events of the week was a decoration by the Mullanphy Florists at the formal opening of the Mill Creek Sewer which cost $3,500,000. There were 192 guests banqueted, among those present being the city officials and several bankers. The walls were white washed and decorated with smilax. Palms were also used. The tables were arranged on either side of the semi-cylindrical arch about 250 feet long, and were decorated with jonquils and red carnations.

Julius Schaffer of the Mullanphy Florists, took the contract for the decoration at the Washington University gymnasium. A shipment of wild smilax from the south has been received for the occasion.

Conrad Bergstermann, proprietor of a flower shop at 3117 South Grand avenue, was found dead in his home, February 20, the cause probably due to heart trouble. He was 59 years old.

The floral department of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney Dry Goods Co. has been quite busy the past week with funeral work.

Foster, the Florist, will remove from North Sixth street to Eighth and Olive streets in the near future.

COLD WEATHER SHORTENS SUPPLY.

The extremely cold and cloudy weather of the past week shortened up the stock considerably in the rose section. American Beauties are particularly scarce and held at high prices. Ophelia is another variety that is shy—growers say it appeared to be resting during January, but expect it soon to get into action. Red roses are also scarce. Carnations appear fairly plentiful, but clean up satisfactorily; the quality is fine but there seems to be rather too many whites. Sweet peas are a great factor; all high grade stock sells at sight at top prices, while the seconds are draggy. Complaint of dropping buds is heard from the growers, due to the cloudy weather. All kinds of spring bulbous stock is now in full supply and as prices are low, however, but little goes to waste. Snapdragons are still scarce, not many being sent in. Easter lilies and callas are to be had now for all requirements. Violets keep about up to demand, also lily of the valley, which is 20 per cent higher than last season, which price appears to be sustained. The St. Valentine's day business appears to have been satisfactory all around. Nearly all retail stores report having had a splendid demand. Boxes of flowers and corsages of choice stock were the staples, with the heart shaped baskets coming next. Very little advertising appeared in the papers—there was no concerted movement to advertise the day, the combined publicity movement which started so auspiciously having apparently fallen through.

NOTES.

National Flower Show matters are being rapidly pushed forward. Every effort is being made to keep ahead of the work. The larger retail stores are being solicited to take part and as one or two new ones come in every few days the retailers' section will doubtless be second to none in the show.

Ten acres of ground on the Northeast boulevard at Bustleton street have been purchased by the Aschmann Brothers. New houses will go up during the summer to give much needed room for their increasing business.

Wm. Leonard, of Lansdowne, has secured an interest in the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange, which with this added impetus, will go forward and become quite a factor in this city.

The Robt. Craig Co. will, among their other exhibits at the coming show, layout a rose garden. A look at the plan shows that this will surely be one of the features of the exhibition.

Daffodils have been good stock this season. Growers have fought shy of them after the oversupply of last year and the market has been able to handle all that was offered at good prices.

Godfrey Aschmann's azaleas are now in fine shape. Great preparations are being made for the Easter trade. Well budded hydrangeas are also a feature.

Edward Reid is handling something very choice in Mock roses. These are from Myers & Samptman of Chestnut Hill.

Spring flowers are the slogan with the Leo Niessen Co. Gardenias are also seen in quantity. K.

FINE WEATHER AND GOOD CROPS IN SIGHT.

Trade has about held its own during the past week and the supply of flowers has about equaled the demand. Roses are still scarce, but carnations are very good and plentiful, overcoming the want of a sufficiency in roses. The bulbous stock, too, comes in just now at a very opportune time. Funeral work has been good and plant sales very fine. The weather keeps fair and already the landscape gardener is getting in his work. If the weather continues as it is at present roses will soon be abundant. It is fair and sufficiently cool to hold back vegetation. Violets are blooming on the outside and some jonquils, with a few hyacinths, are venturing forth and many of the more hardy shrubs are putting lines, has a big reputation for landscape gardening and has already filled orders in this department with a great many more booked for early delivery. Some of these orders are for private homes and amount to a great deal; others are for public work on civic grounds and institutions. They are also experts with window gardening and have stimulated much trade in this particular.

The Joy Floral Company, ever in the front rank with new ideas and up-to-date enterprises, had a beautiful "George Washington" window that attracted much attention. A bust of the "Father of His Country" on a pedestal behind which was draped the national flag, while in the foreground was the historic cherry tree with the inevitable hatchet, and all around were the early spring blossoms. They had a fine trade this week and very good cuts of flowers.

Geny Bros. have had very good cuts of roses and a great abundance of violets, which are blooming profusely. They are having a fine cut of carnations, lily of the valley and Easter lilies. Trade has been good, especially in funeral work.

TRADE CONDITIONS SHOW IMPROVEMENT.

The cold snap mentioned in our notes of February 19 did not last long. From February 15 for three days there was a thaw and the streets were a sea of slush and mud, thickly dotted with little islands of snow, which the street cleaners had piled up and carefully preserved as landmarks. The weather here in New York, this winter, has kept the inhabitants in the position of not knowing what a day or an hour may bring forth. February 18 was a day in which heavy clothing was a burden; by the following morning a hurricane was sweeping the city with nearly 20 degrees of frost, but no snow, for which we are truly thankful. Business was quiet during the early part of the week, but braced up considerably February 19 and stock cleaned up fairly well. American Beauties and other roses remain firm, with no surplus. The supply of American Beauties is yet rather light. While the prevailing price for specials has been at the rate of $60 per 100, there have been a few sales at $75. Three dollars per 100 is the best price for the average stock of carnations, with a few fancies going at $4, but much stock sold during the past week for $1 to $2, partly due to its poor condition. The sweet pea crop seems to be pretty well cut out as many seen on the market have short stems and are stringy. Lilies are plentiful, and it takes good stock to bring 10 cents per flower. There is little change in lily of the valley, tulips, narcissi and freesias. The sale of violets in this city has degenerated to a peddling business. If any time between now and Easter a day comes that we do not see six to a dozen boys hiking from store to store with boxes of violets under their arms, then "faith, we'll go and print it." The tide seems to have turned in the orchid market and higher prices may be looked for from now on. The asking price for good cattleyas, February 19, was 50 cents per flower. Throughout December and January the low price of orchids, in a period of high prices, was a noteworthy exception. What has become of the old fashioned florist who used to tell us that the orchid supply would soon be exhausted?

February 21.—The weather continues very cold and the supply is somewhat lighter. Roses continue firm and orchids are doing better. In other stocks there is little change.

NOTES.

On February 19, in the new tunnel being bored under the East River, the air pressure blew a hole in the bottom of the river and three men were shot up through 25 feet of mud and 20 feet of water to the surface of the river. John Young, who was at the point of the blow-out, held on to the iron shield and saved himself. To relieve the anxiety of his many friends, we will state that it was not the esteemed secretary of the S. A. F., but another John Young. We mention the incident to show that in the aggregate the John Youngs are a clever and resourceful lot of men. Many of Secretary John's friends are calling him "Grandpa" and we are wondering what it means.

Van Nievelt, Goudriaan & Co., successors to Van Nievelt & Co., custom house brokers, Rotterdam, Holland, advise us that they are well prepared to take care of all orders relating to the forwarding of bulbs, plants or seeds for this country, it being well known that much of the stock from Europe now comes through the port of Rotterdam.

J. G. Leikens, Inc., Madison avenue and 55th street, says that this has been the best winter's business he has had for a number of years. On February 17, he arranged a fine wedding decoration at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

The new firm of Goldstein & Futterman, 102 West 28th street, is handling a fine stock of Freesia Purity and other bulbous stock, as well as roses and carnations. They have made a good start, which is half the race.

L. M. Noe, the well known rose grower of Madison, N. J., was in this city, February 19. He has but recently returned from a month of hunting in North Carolina and is in fine health and spirits.

Alexander McConnell is busy getting up a catalogue. Though best known as a florist, he is also a nurseryman and his nursery at New Rochelle is well worthy of a visit in the spring.

William Bogart, buyer for his brother, Peter L. Bogart, has been laid up for a week with lumbago. We hope to see him out again soon, for he radiates cheerfulness wherever he goes.

D. C. Arnold & Co., 112 West 28th street, are receiving heavy shipments of carnations from their range at Babylon, L. I., and are selling out well.

Charles F. Lawrence, the retailer of 344 Columbus avenue, was chairman of the executive committee for the annual masquerade ball of the St. George's Club of this city, which was held at the Amsterdam opera house on the night of February 17. His brother, George R. J. Lawrence, who is a designer with J. H. Small & Sons, was chairman of the reception committee. There was, previous to the dance, a drill by the Highland Guard of New York, Company A, New Jersey Scottish Highlanders and the New York Scottish Highlanders. There was also an address by a popular clergyman, and popular songs. The gross proceeds went to the Prince of Wales relief fund.

President M. A. Bowe, of the Associated Retail Florists, is taking an active interest in securing a large delegation for the national show at Philadelphia on "New York day," March 28.

MARKET CONDITIONS MUCH IMPROVED.

The market is again well stocked and the local trade is well satisfied with business conditions. Roses are getting into shape and the stock in this line is filling up again. Carnations and violets are of good quality and are in good supply. Sweet peas are also to be had in liberal quantity. Bulbous offerings include narcissi, jonquils, anemones, freesias, hyacinths and tulips.

NOTES.

The Redondo Floral Co. reports a very good trade following removal to its new location. A heavy demand for funeral work has kept the force at this establishment busy.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. is doing a big business in landscape work. Business in other departments is better than it has been for several years.

From all indications St. Valentine's day business was good and all novelties for the occasion cleaned up well.

Wright's Flower Store is well supplied with seasonable stock and the force is kept busy.

The Broadway Florists report a very satisfactory business.

G. H. H.

CHARLESTON, WEST VA.—Mrs. J. W. Alexander reports an excellent St. Valentine's day business.

Toronto.

TRADE GENERALLY SATISFACTORY.

Business has been fairly good with stock scarce, but the weather has moderated in the last few days, with the result that the supply has increased and the volume of business has decreased. Roses, which have been off crop since the first of the year, are again in good condition. Hoosier Beauty has proven itself the best of the reds in this locality and the better flowers command good prices. That foremost variety, Ophelia, has placed itself in the front rank and is the best seller of the day. Double Killarney Brilliant, Sunburst, Hadley and Shawyer are all in good shape and fine, long stemmed stock can be had. Carnations are again plentiful and prices have dropped two to three cents. Daffodils and tulips are also plentiful. Violets are a drug. Snapdragons, freesias, sweet peas, myosotis and mignonette are all in good condition. St. Valentine's day sales again proved good, the business being in excess of last year's in volume, the demand being largely for violets and corsages. It was at first thought that inasmuch as at least 40,000 young men have gone to the front from this city, that the sales for the occasion would not be up to previous years, but the trade was agreeably surprised.

NOTES.

A large number of the bulbs that arrived on the S. S. Ryndam last fall have failed to bloom. On cutting the bulbs open it has been found that the flower has been killed in the bulb, evidently from over-heating. One firm alone lost over 150,000 bulbs.

It is reported that one of the local growers cut only 60 per cent in January compared with his cut of a year ago, but his returns for the month were 75 per cent higher. No wonder the storemen are complaining about prices.

M. O'Field & Son are sending in fine roses and carnations from their range at Grimsby. This firm started in business in the spring of 1915 with 650,000 feet of glass and their success has been phenomenal.

R. Jennings, of Brampton, is shipping fine cuts of carnations and violets to this market. An average crop of excellent stock can always be depended upon at his establishment.

Dreer's Famous American Asters

DREER'S SUPERB LATE BRANCHING ASTERS

The finest Asters for late August and September blooming.

The plants form strong, branching bushes 2 to 2½ feet high bearing on long strong stems their handsome Chrysanthemum-like flowers, which, under ordinary cultivation, average 5 inches across. The form of the flowers, together with the length of the stems, places them at the head of Asters for cutting. They come into bloom from two to three weeks after the average type, usually being at their best during September, and filling in the gap between the general run of Asters and Chrysanthemums. We offer eight beautiful and distinct colors, viz.:

	Trade pkt.	Per oz.
Azure Blue. A rich, deep lavender.....	$0.25	$1.00
Pure White. Extra fine stock.....	.25	1.00
Shell Pink. An exquisite shade.....	.25	1.00
Rose Pink. A very desirable color.....	.25	1.00
Deep Rose. Rich and brilliant.....	.25	1.00
Deep Purple. Royal deep purple.....	.25	1.00
Lavender. A pale grayish-lavender.....	.25	1.00
Crimson. Very rich.....	.25	1.00

The above is but one of our many fine varieties, for complete list and prices see our General Wholesale Price List.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20-22, 1916.

VISITED CHICAGO: Francis C. Stokes, of the Stokes Seed Farms Co., Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.

FLOODS are said to be serious in the Holland districts devoted to the culture of biennial seed crops.

BOSTON, MASS.—Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. reports business very satisfactory thus far this season.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, February 23, were as follows: Timothy, $6 to $8 per 100 pounds.

THE eastern mail trade continues good and that of the west, which has been backward, shows some improvement this week.

WARDWELL beans probably made a record price in the parcel sold by Vaughan's Seed Store during the recent canners' convention at Louisville, Ky., at $20 per bushel.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Northrup, King & Co. report that while January usually is not a very heavy month with them in the mail order business, still this year's trade compares favorably with last year.

CATALOGUE makers will be interested in learning that the price of paper has advanced very materially, said to be due to the use of wood pulp, from which much paper is made, in the manufacture of gun powder.

FULLY 25 per cent of beet sugar factories of United States will be forced to reduce output from 10 per cent to 25 per cent unless means can be discovered to supply deficit of necessary seed. Only half enough seed is said to be in sight.

THE Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce has issued an exhaustive report ("Commerce Reports" No. 42) on "Foreign Bean Production and Trade," covering Algeria, Canada, Denmark, Egypt, France, Great Britain, Italy, Hungary, Japan, Manchuria, Netherlands, Roumania and Sweden.

WE ARE in receipt of an unconfirmed report to the effect that Holland salesmen or travelers will not be permitted to visit the British Islands this season. The only plausible excuse for this action seems to be that these travelers also visit Germany and other countries and may carry information from one warring nation to the other.

Onion Sets.

The onion sets in Chicago warehouses are beginning to move now to points all through sections south of Springfield, Ill. It takes a lot of hand-picking to put the stocks in merchantable shape. Nearly all the warehousemen are in the same boat and samples sent out to contract carload buyers for approval look none too well, but those who propose to fill orders for sets this year will have to take the run of the crop or go without.

Wisconsin Seed Pea Contract

The _____ Seed Company, of _____, seller, in consideration of the covenants hereinafter mentioned, agrees to furnish and plant or cause to be planted for the _____ Canning Company of _____ Wisconsin, buyer, seeds sufficient of each variety hereinafter mentioned, based upon seller's average fold for the last five years, seller's seed being reserved, and to deliver to the buyer all the stock set opposite each item at such prices and on such terms and in such quantities as are hereinafter set forth. Seller agrees to plant in the aggregate sufficient seed on same basis of yield to cover all of its contracts.

In the event, however, of the crop producing less than the above estimated yield, seller will be bound only, after reservation of its seed, to deliver the balance of the crop pro rata under its contracts. Any loss of a portion of the crop by fire or otherwise while in store and in transit will excuse the seller from the delivery to the extent thereof.

The seller further agrees to use due care in the selection, growing, rouging and handling of the seed stock and crops and to thoroughly screen and hand pick all crops unless otherwise specified.

The product is to be delivered after harvest at the time specified below in good, sound, merchantable condition suitable for seed purposes, and to comply with provisions of the seed laws of the State of Wisconsin.

The seller agrees to keep the peas in the various fields separate, as far as possible, and to deliver them without blending and to designate the various lots by properly marked tags on each bag when making delivery.

The seller warrants that the seed to be delivered herewith

- (a) Will be grown in the state of _____
- (b) Will show a germination test of not less than _____ % at the time of delivery.
- (c) Shall be screened over sieves having a mesh not smaller than _____ sixty-fourths inch.
- (d) Shall not have to exceed _____ % by weight of impurities or foreign matter therein.

Wrinkled Peas shall weigh 56 lbs. to the bushel; other Peas 60 lbs. unless otherwise specified.

SHIPMENT

TERMS: Sixty days net or one and one-half per cent discount for cash within ten days from date of shipment, and if buyer's financial condition is unsatisfactory to seller, payment less the cash discount may be required before shipment.

WISCONSIN CANNERS' SEED PEA CONTRACT.

Non-Warranty and Wisconsin Seed Law.

The Wisconsin Canners' Association having succeeded in passing through the legislature of that state an amendment to the seed law favorable to their interests are now circulating forms on which they propose to have written all the contracts for seed peas which are to be grown for them. The Canners' further propose to eliminate from these the well known disclaimer of the American Seed Trade Association. Up to this time responsible and reputable houses have declined to book any contract growing business except under this non-warranty provision, and it was not thought that any house would waive that well established protection. This week it has come to the attention of THE FLORIST that one Wisconsin firm of growers, long members of the American Seed Trade Association, is about to repudiate the disclaimer and that one or more minor concerns, with everything to gain and nothing to lose, have also made a bid for the canners' business, on any terms.

It would be a matter of great regret and injury to the entire seed trade of the United States if precedents like this should be established, counteracting well done work for the disclaimer which has practically fixed it as the custom-made seed law of the land.

We reproduce the essential parts of the canners' contract form herewith, omitting only the spaces reserved for varieties and quantities.

Offer to Sell Not Binding Contract.

The Supreme Court of Nebraska, in the case of the Nebraska Seed Co. vs. Harsh, has decided that a letter sent by a company to another party, offering to dispose of a certain amount of goods on hand at a certain price, must be regarded merely as an invitation for a purchase and is not a binding contract of sale. A lower court had ruled that there was a valid offer and acceptance thereof, but on appeal the superior court decided that it must only be treated as a circular letter. In the case in question the defendant refused to make delivery after having written the plaintiff a letter in which he offered 1,800 bushels of millet seed, or thereabouts, for which he asked $2.25 per 100 pounds.

Replanting Lettuce Beds.

At this time of the year, when it is generally risky to water mature lettuce, the beds are often subjected to a severe drying out by the time the crop is removed. We have seen growers cut and replant a house the same day, setting the young plants into dust dry soil. They claim the moisture can be replaced while the plants are re-rooting; while this is no doubt correct in regards the moisture, it is not good for the plants. They are subjected to too long continued exposure to water; sometimes to too much beating and washing if a hose is used and worse than all these, insufficient moisture underneath. The proper way is to replace the moisture before planting and give the beds a few days' time to dry off.
We have run the water into the trench while spading up the beds, or soaked the beds after spading, leaving the ground as rough as possible. The object is to get the water into the subsoil, enough to grow the next crop, and get the surface layer of soil into a nice, pliable condition. If the weather is dark we often water each plant at the root after setting and as soon as we can, cultivate the beds. Then no more water is used, if possible, until the crop is again removed. If conditions are right, this method is a big success, as there is no greater danger in winter than frequent watering. This same method is used upon seedlings and plants in the plant beds, as soon as these are established, water is withheld entirely and the houses kept cool and dry. Thus mildew and rot are avoided for there is no better remedy than prevention.

Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June, 1916 VISITED CHICAGO: Peter Bohlender, of Peter Bohlender & Sons, Tippecanoe City, O.

PIGGOTT, ARK.—H. H. Ballard, T. L. Davis and E. H. Ballard have incorporated the Piggott Nurseries.

DES MOINES, IA.—J. W. Hill, of the Des Moines Nursery Co., is being urged to enter the mayoralty race in this city.

REDLANDS, CALIF.—G. B. Southard has disposed of his nursery business and will engage in the manufacture of paper pots.

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—A. W. Sander-son has purchased a five acre tract on Arcade avenue and will engage in the nursery business.

ALBANY, N. Y.—The conservation commission has offered to distribute to landowners in the state 10,000,000 forest tree seedlings at cost. The number is sufficient to reforest 10,000 acres of land. The commission is anxious to encourage the reforestation of the state in several sections where it is believed the work will increase the value of farms. The prices announced are: $1.50 a thousand for two year old seedlings and $4.50 a thousand for four year old transplants. One thousand trees will reforest an acre of land at a cost, including labor, of $10.

Connecticut Nurserymen's Association.

The tenth annual meeting of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association was held at Hotel Garde, Hartford, February 18, 1916. Meeting called to order with President W. E. Campbell in the chair. After the president's address of welcome had been responded to, minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The report of the treasurer showing the financial condition of the association to be in first class shape was rendered, his books audited, and report accepted. The report of the standing committees showed that nothing had occurred during the year to cause them any great annoyance, or much work. No new business being brought before the association, we opened under the applications for membership. F. B. Kelly of Manchester was proposed, ballot being spread, he was elected to membership. Under election of officers, W. E. Campbell, of Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, was re-elected president; F. S. Baker, of New Haven, was elected vice-president; F. L. Thomas, general manager of the Pequod Nursery Co., Meriden, was re-elected secretary; W. W. Hunt of Blue Hills Nursery, Hartford, re-elected treasurer. Adjourned for dinner. Meeting again called to order at 2:15 p. m., when the following program of entertainment and instruction was carried out:

Address by W. W. McCartney, "Standardization of Nursery Stock"; address by Prof. Ralph C. Hawley,

"Results of Our Appearance Before the Federal Board in Washington, D. C."; address by J. R. Barnes, "Possibilities of Machinery for Reducing Cost of Labor in the Nursery Business"; address by Dr. Geo. P. Clinton, "Heteroecious Rusts Found in Connecticut Nurseries"; address by Stephen Hoyt, "Is the Motor Truck Practical for Our Business?"; address by Dr. W. E. Britton, "The Problem of Inspection Quarantine."

We were disappointed in that two of our expected guests and speakers were unable to be present, viz.: Alex. Cummings, Jr., Cromwell, who was to speak on "Commercial Handling of Roses," and W. B. Hatch, who was to speak on "Suggestions from an Experienced Landscape Gardener." All speakers were applauded, and answered many questions relative to their subjects in hand.

The president made the following appointments of standing committees for year 1916: Legislative—F. E. Coe, New Haven, chairman; Stephen Hoyt, New Canaan; J. R. Barnes, Yalesville. Executive—W. W. McCartney, New Haven, chairman; Gustave Minge, Hartford; F. S. Baker, New Haven. Entertainment—Paul M. Hubbard, Bristol, chairman; Charles Turner, Hartford; E. A. Brassill, Hartford. Meeting adjourned at 4:20 p. m.

F. L. THOMAS, Sec'y.

MR. PETER, FISHER, Ellis, Mass.

Dear Sir:—

LIMA, OHIO, Jan. 19th, 1916.

We thought it might be interesting to you to receive a report of your new carnation "Alice" as grown in this territory.

Alice has made a wonderful showing with us. We are growing some twenty different varieties of carnations. To date we have cut more blooms per plant from "Alice" than any of the other varieties. The blooms come almost 100 per cent perfect.

This carnation has proved all that you claimed for it, and we do not hesitate to say, that we believe this variety to be the very best carnation of its color, being offered the Trade today.

You are to be congratulated on "Alice."

Very truly yours,

ROLF ZETLITZ.

THE NEW ROSE

MRS. BAYARD THAYER

that we are offering this season, will make a fine addition to a class of large flowered roses which is rapidly coming to the front, since we introduced Mrs. Chas. Russell of which the new claimant is a sport. The color is a most beautiful clear rose pink, inside of petals a shade lighter. The foliage heavy and smooth and carried on strong stems. It won the American Rose Society Medal, over a strong class of competitors, at the Cleveland Show, scoring 90 points.

Columbus, O.

SUPPLY PLENTIFUL AND TRADE GOOD.

Everything is plentiful and cheap, following the St. Valentine day flurry, which had greater force than in any previous year. The dark weather that had held back cuttings in January has resulted in a glut, now that the delayed flowers have begun to come in. Some growers and dealers lost carnations last week because there was not demand enough to absorb the supply, many selling at 35 cents per dozen. Roses, sweet peas, violets and all other seasonable flowers have fallen in price. However, there is a good volume of business. Local florists say there has never been a time when the demand for social events has been larger. The recent opening of a half-million dollar club house, with over 1,200 members has been a big help, as the novelty of a new place of entertaining, and one of palatial character, has led to numerous balls, receptions and other functions. Funeral work is still heavy. In pot plants the primrose is a reigning favorite. Some of the most beautiful varieties grown are reaching the market here in abundance from special near-by growers. All kinds of bulbs are active, but with no shortage in any source of supply.

NOTES.

The largest and finest refrigerator showcase in town has been installed by the cut-flower department of the Livingston Seed Company. It is 12 feet long, 10 feet high, and three feet deep. The finish is golden oak, with silver-plated mountings. The interior has a plate mirror background. Other new equipment in the way of shelving and floor cases help to give the store a transformed appearance.

James Underwood, superintendent of Franklin Park, and brother of Underwood Brothers, florists, announces that the park conservatory will have to be closed down owing to lack of funds, the appropriation for the year being reduced by about $5,000. As this is the principal pleasure ground of the city, some effort may be made to supply the needed money by other means.

At a recent meeting of the Columbus Market Gardeners' Association the following officers were elected: Peter Fornof, president; A. A. Roshon, first vice-president; A. H. Eben, second vice-president; Theodore Alpp, secretary, and Ernest Vick, treasurer.

CORFU, N. Y.—David J. Scott has been elected a director of one of the local banks.

KING CONSTRUCTION COMPANY, North Tonawanda, N. Y.GREENHOUSES*We Claim Maximum Strength and Minimum Shadow. Investigate*Essex Co., N. J., Florists' Club Banquet.

The banquet and entertainment of the Essex County (N. J.) Florists' Club which was held at Kreuger Auditorium, Springfield and Belmont avenues, Newark, on the evening of February 17, was a most enjoyable event. From the fact that it was "ladies' night" there was additional interest, as there was a representative attendance of the wives, daughters and sweethearts of the assembled florists. Good instrumental music and several very clever vocal entertainers were features of the programme. A number of visiting members of the New York Florists' Club were present. After the good things of this life in the culinary line were disposed of, President Hornecker rapped for order, and in a happy and felicitous vein introduced Walter F. Sheridan, who spoke interestingly for the New York Florists' Club.

He was followed by Charles Schenck, for the wholesale florists, who made a hit. Edward Jacobi, Sr., who was introduced as the "Father of the Essex County Club," made an interesting address. J. A. Rassbach, the second president of the club, was another speaker who was well received. John Crossley, a retailer, who we believe was the first secretary of the club, made a clever and witty speech. A. F. Faulkner responded for the horticultural press and J. A. Shaw for the ladies. The growers were ably represented by Jacob Hauck of Bloomfield, E. W. Fengar of Newark, and Edwin Person of Irvington. Joseph A. Manda of West Orange, who is a member of so many horticultural clubs and societies that he needs a special calendar to enable him to keep track of them, was another interesting speaker. The affair was highly enjoyable throughout and it is worthy of repetition that the Essex County Club is on the horticultural map to stay. A. F. F.

Providence, R. I.DEMAND IS NORMAL.

The weather during the past week has been favorable, but ended with a cold snap. Although there was nothing startling in trade conditions, there were several weddings, but the orders were not large. Funeral work has been quite brisk and has helped to absorb the surplus stock that is on the market now. Carnations are becoming more plentiful, and tulips, daffodils and hyacinths, both in pots and cut, are welcome additions. Roses this season have been very much off crop with everyone, but as the demand for this flower is not very heavy, the shortening has not been felt. There are just about enough to go around from day to day. Lily of the valley and orchids are equal to requirements. Violets are good, with the prices low. Pansies are having quite a call now, as are also the little yellow daisy.

NOTES.

Macnair now has a display of some of the finest azaleas that have been seen in this city in some years. The plants are his own importation and the stock is perfect. The varieties are Vervaneana, Simon Mardner and Prof. Walters. The heads on the plants are

APHINE MANUFACTURING COMPANY
MADISON, N. J.

Newark, N. J.

The florists of this city seem to be well satisfied with the condition of business, as there have been many decorations and much funeral work.

Henry Hornecker is located in East Orange, but he is so near the line that he is looked upon as a citizen of Newark, which is quite plausible, as he is president of the Essex County Florists' Club, which meets in Newark. He is both a grower and retailer, having a considerable glass area and a nice store at 75-77 Central avenue. He has five houses filled with stock that is being forced for Easter.

On February 17, Phillips Brothers had a large order for the funeral of Matthias Plum, aged 75 years, a life long resident of this city and one of its prominent business men.

J. H. Harvey, the well known retailer of 453 Broad street, has had a five weeks' tussle with grippe and bronchitis. He recovered sufficiently to be able to be out, then had a relapse, but it is hoped he will soon be about again.

We found Ernest Radany and wife, 596 Central avenue, quite busy on funeral work, February 17, but they were through in time to enjoy the banquet of the Essex County Florists' Club, held on that evening.

John Crossley, 39 Belleville avenue, reports good business. He has a nice family trade and is a constant buyer in the New York wholesale market.

F. A. Kuehn, who several years ago bought the business at 621-623 Central avenue, has made improvements and is prospering. He has quite a stock of bedding plants coming on.

Vice-president John Pfeiffer, of the club, and family, were among those present at the banquet. A. F. F.

Huntsville, Ala.

John Scott has completed four houses of Moninger construction, each 30 by 88 feet. He intends to overhaul and rebuild three other houses, 28 by 100 feet, in which he has been growing white and pink carnations and Killarney roses. The plants are full of buds and abundant crops of cut blooms are expected for Easter. He will enlarge his office and shipping room which will give him needed space. Mr. Scott was with the Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass., for some time and is in reality a "Montgomery" graduate. Fine stock of Lilium giganteum and Silver Pink snapdragons were also seen at this establishment, the latter being quite popular in this city. J. E. K.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Seeds For March Sowing.

The middle of March is the proper time for the sowing of the main crop of summer annuals. The seedsmen have seen that the growers have the catalogues, and the lists of the wants for the year should be made out at once, if not already done, and the seeds procured and sown. How often have we seen good growers spending valuable time during the busy days of May and June hunting for some small stock that could have been easily grown, but was neglected at the proper time. It is a good time now to look back at the sales of the last year or two and note what lines of stock were in short supply or were carelessly omitted. Such matters as this are the little things that count in a successful business, for the time taken in hunting up and procuring the cheaper kinds of stock during the busy season more than eats up all the profit received in handling it. The seeds that should be sown now are almost endless in variety, and they include asters, Phlox Drummondii, zinnias, marigolds, balsams, antirrhinums, begonias, calendulas, celosias, cobeas, cosmos, gauras, mignonette, nicotianas, nasturtiums, petunias, salpiglossis, ricinus, salvias, scabiosa, stocks, thunbergias and others that may be demanded. With the exception of Cobaea scandens, mignonette and ricinus, which should be sown in pots, these can all be sown in flats, and as soon as large enough, transplanted to pots or spaced in flats, and good stock be had for summer bedding.

Iceland Poppies.

A beautiful cut flower for summer use not often grown is the Iceland poppy. While it is a perennial, yet it can be treated as an annual if the seed is sown early and the plants transplanted. Seeds sown in March will bloom the coming summer, and the varieties of color range through the yellow and orange to white. The petals have a peculiar satiny texture and are beautifully crumpled, and if the flowers are picked in the early morning they will stand in water for a long time and are very decorative. There are few annuals that will attract more attention than a vase of these lovely poppies arranged with appropriate green, and besides they have a delicious fragrance. They are easily grown, and if the flowers are kept picked will continue to bloom all summer. Another poppy that can be grown for cut flowers is the Shirley poppy, but the flowers do not last as well as the Iceland poppies.

Camellias.

While it is a question if the camellia will ever become as popular as it was years ago, yet there seems to be a growing demand for the blooms of the "Japonica" as it was so familiarly known to the grandparents of the present generation, and the flowers are well adapted to certain classes of work or occasions. A few dwarf plants are now also seen in flower in some of the stores. They are easily grown, the prime requisite being a cool house, one with a night temperature of 45 degrees to 50 degrees, and the constant care throughout the year that all hard-wooded plants require. The large specimens which are grown for cut blooms may be planted in the ground of the house, first spading in a quantity of leaf-mold and rotted cow manure. The smaller plants are generally grown in pots, firmly planted in the same kind of soil, with plenty of drainage. They do not need repotting often and when done the shift should be to only one size larger, and this should be done just after the plant is through flowering, for it then starts to make its growth for another season. When the growth starts the plants should be given plenty of water and frequently syringed; in fact, careful watering is the one thing necessary in their culture. They should never become dry, and during the hot days of summer frequent syringings are required, which also greatly assists in keeping down mealy bug and scale, the only two insects to which the plant is subject. The cause of the buds dropping, which will sometimes occur, can invariably be traced to the plant becoming dry some time during its growth. During the summer, heavy shade over the plants will be required and an abundance of air should be provided at this time.

Lilacs For Easter.

A large variety of blooming plants can be grown for Easter, and dwarf, shapely lilacs are appreciated by all flower lovers, and the cut sprays have now become a standard winter flower. For the pot plants the imported budded stock is preferable, but for cut blooms any lilac may be lifted and they force quickly and easily in a warm house. The varieties most grown for pot plants are Marie Lagraye, white, and Charles X, purple. Four weeks in a temperature of 65 degrees will bring them into flower. The plants when placed in the greenhouse should be syringed several times a day in order to assist the buds to swell and kept in a dark place. As soon as the buds begin to open the plants can be placed in full sunlight. The common lilac can be forced in the cool house and frequently syringed until the eyes break, when they can be moved into warmer quarters and full sunlight. For June decoration there is nothing better in blooming plants than Crimson Rambler and the other rambler roses and hydrangeas; they make a beautiful combination and are also very decorative for porches.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

Dollar Boxes.

As a satisfactory and quick selling proposition the dollar box of cut flowers in many stores is a dependable fixture. There are those, however, who have no faith in it as a means of advertising the business, and doubt very much if it is profitable. Others have found it popular with their trade and a source of considerable income when flowers are plentiful, and their sale is encouraged by an advertised and con-

Like many other features of the business, this should be carefully thought out and looked at from every angle. The box is important; it should be ample in size, rather shallow and wide, so that the flowers may be spread out and show to advantage. Many cut flower boxes are so deep that only a few of the blooms on the surface are seen; the first view when the lid is removed, should be surprising, with nearly all the box contains exposed at once, as is the case in the shallow box, the best impression is made.

The packing, or proper placing of flowers in the box, should receive considerable attention. If this work is given into the hands of one or two persons they will soon be able to do it better and faster as the result of their experience. Some dealers advertise this as a gift box, and deliver it to any part of the city free of charge. Others claim that on account of the low price, or great value for the money, they must charge car fare. The cost of delivery is reduced as the trade is worked up and a quantity of orders are received daily, a number of boxes going in the same direction bringing this expense down very materially.

Selection and quantity of flowers for each special box should be made before it is packed, or one is apt to either slight the customer or give too many for the price. A few pieces of green or a flower or two more than necessary, will eat into the rather slender profit. With roses at $1 per hundred, three dozen will make a splendid box. Two dozen dahlias is another good bargain. Twenty-five carnations will please most people. Sweet peas, daffodils and tulips are all good leaders in their season, when the market is full. Even when there is no special effort made to push the sale, a box or two should be always on hand, made up, as many transient customers drop in who are in a hurry and will take a box along that is ready. Then, too, the art in a nicely arranged box often sells it, when the same flowers in their separate vases would fail to attract. The clever salesman will sell many higher priced boxes to customers who have been attracted by the popular special—just to call attention to something manifestly better at from a half to a dollar more, is often sufficient.

When a comparatively steady trade has been established for this special, orders will frequently come over the same manner. A bush, which is well set with flower buds, and these are easily distinguished from the leaf buds, can be lifted and planted in a bench and will furnish fine sprays of flowers. If the plant is kept shaded from the sun by spreading a heavy cloth over it the flowers of the purple varieties will be white when forced. The plants will require plenty of water, for they make but little root growth and bloom upon the vitality which has been stored.

Rambler Roses.

The plants of rambler roses that are intended for Easter blooming should now be showing color and if they are not, they will require quite a little forcing to have them in the best of condition for that date. If the plants are at all potbound, watering with liquid manure will be of great assistance to them and stimulate the flowers and make them much larger and an addition of soot to this will intensify the color. The plants will often, when setting the buds, make long growths from the base of the plants; these should be cut out, for they are taking much strength that should go into the flowers. These canes can be made into cuttings and propagated and will make small plants for next year's growing or can be planted outside and grown on for stock for the future.

There is always a good demand for well-grown pot ramblers for Memorial day and early June, and plants started now will be in the best of condition at that time. They can be started in a spacious display. Some stores make a feature of these boxes for week end sales and endeavor to work up a weekly or semi-weekly delivery the season through. With a lot of regular orders, together with what is sold from the window or store displays, and the advertised special daily sales, there is an outlet for a quantity of stock that may be in abundance in the market and which can be bought very cheap. This will enable the dealer to give his customers a bargain and insure future orders.

phone for patients in hospitals, the dollar box seeming to fit so many purses in moderate circumstances. For all stores except those who cater to the select trade, the dollar box will be found well worth while, and in the end a paying proposition. K.

St. Valentine's Day in Kansas.

"Keep St. Valentine's day on the calendar as an occasion for the giving of flowers" is the maxim of W. H. Culp & Co., well-known florists of Wichita, Kan., as shown by the advertisement reproduced on page 320. Despite the fact that the book stores in that city devote considerable attention to elaborate displays of valentine novelties, the florists have been supplying cut blooms and plants for the occasion where the call was for something choice. This appreciation of flowers and plants as valentines is becoming more in evidence each year, and it is also noticeable that the valentine displays in the book store windows have been much reduced during the past three years.

Notwithstanding the fact that home-grown stock was rather scarce, the wholesale markets rather uncertain as to prices, and a heavy demand for funeral work, a situation that gave a feeling of doubt as to whether advertising for the 1916 St. Valentine's day trade might possibly bring more trade than could be properly cared for, W. H. Culp & Co. were alive to the importance of holding the ground gained in the past, and the public was again reminded through the columns of the two leading newspapers of Wichita that flowers are the appropriate token of sentiment.

FLORISTS' PALMS.

Spring Care.

The month of March usually marks a period of change in the palm houses, for it is at this time that the majority of the palms in common commercial use become more active in their growth. This change is first noted in the condition of the roots, the latter showing active growing tips or points, an indication that is readily seen by those familiar with such processes, and at the same time the plants will be found to dry out more frequently, and new leaves will begin to push up, although the latter may not progress as rapidly as they will some two months later. Such indications will naturally show themselves more promptly where growing conditions are maintained, by which is meant, an even condition of temperature, moisture and fresh air, and not a variation from 80° in the daytime to 50° at night, such as is sometimes found in greenhouses where the heating is not adequate, or else is not carefully attended to.

In such an establishment, that is, where the heating is not efficient, there is likely to be little or no sign of active growth on the part of the palms so early in the spring, but on the contrary the plants will have that hard and inactive appearance that is at once apparent to those familiar with these peculiarities. But the growing conditions required for early and continued activity on the part of the plants are a night temperature of 60° to 65°, plenty of moisture, both overhead and at the roots, and as much ventilation as the weather will permit without dropping the temperature below 70° on a bright day, and to this may be added some shading on the glass after February 20, in order to avoid sunburn, the shading to be made somewhat heavier after the middle of April.

Potting soil should always be kept under cover in sufficient quantities that there may be no necessity to go for it in severe weather, and then to wait until it thaws out and dries enough to be used, for in such a case it is quite likely that some of the plants will be potted in soil that is too wet for the purpose, with the result that the plants so treated seldom drain properly. Be sure that no plants are dry at the time of repotting, else there may be much trouble in getting the moisture through the ball afterwards, and this will result in a check to the growth from which the plants will not recover quickly. Remove the old drainage material from the bottom of the ball, and then repot firmly, giving a good watering as soon as the plants are replaced in the greenhouse.

Some of the palms may be heavily rooted and badly pot-bound, and in order to keep the pots down to a convenient size, it may be advisable to wash out some of the old soil by holding the plant under a strong stream of water from a hose. This method removing the soil without injury to the roots, but any plants so treated should be protected from the sun, syringed frequently, and kept in a somewhat closer atmosphere for two or three weeks after being repotted. Of course all plants should be cleaned thoroughly before repotting. If there is any suspicion of insects upon them, bearing in mind the fact that plants in general do not like to be disturbed about the collar after repotting, and such a disturbance is very likely to occur in the operation of cleaning.

Not only the various species of scale insects give trouble to the palm grower, but thrips and red spider are also very likely to appear upon palms that are neglected in the matter of vigorous syringing, although the last two in particular may be made very scarce by regular spraying and dipping with soap solution.

Whatever may be on hand in the way of seedling palms that are in condition for potting off, should be among the first to receive attention at the potting bench, in order to enable these tender young plants to become established, while there is abundant fire-heat in the houses, and before the rapidly increasing power of the sun demands that the houses be freely ventilated. The first root of a seedling palm, generally speaking, is a rather stiff radicle, and this requires careful potting, for these roots are quite brittle, and when broken often cause the death of the seedling, so a little extra care in this operation will pay much better than any attempt to make a record numerically with the potting.

W. H. TAPLIN

Lilies for Easter.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I have about 2,000 giganteum lilies, about six inches high. Some of them are budding now and there are white spots on the leaves. The plants are in a house kept at about 60 degrees at night. How can I hold them back for Easter and get them at least a foot higher? What do you think is the cause of them being this way? I have kept them wet and about an even temperature. They were brought up about the middle of December.

J. A. N.

Massachusetts.

Not being able to see these lilies it is a hard matter to say definitely what ails them, but I am inclined to think they were forced too hard before the bulbs had made sufficient roots to stand it. When they were brought into the house about the middle of December, the temperature should have been held close to 50 degrees at night and 56 degrees by day, gradually increasing it as the plants grew stronger until by February 1 the night temperature would have reached 60 degrees at night and 65-70 degrees during the day.

While in the early stages of their growth the greatest care should be exercised not to overwater lilies or the roots will rot off at the ends and the growth of the plants receive a check from which they will not recover, but will develop into short stunted plants, such as described in the inquiry, and my conclusion is that overwatering before the plants were thoroughly well established is one of the causes of these lilies being so short and stunted. Easter falls on April 23 this year, so that any lilies showing bud March 1 should be on time easily in a night temperature of 60 degrees and an advance of eight to ten degrees during the day. If any appear to be coming ahead of time, remove them to a cooler temperature, but do not attempt this until the buds show white or the check will be too severe. I cannot tell the cause of the white spots on the leaves, but am inclined to think they are caused by insects.

THE ROSE.

Mulching.

During the propagating season, when most of the help are called upon to assist in hurrying this work along, the rose range usually gets a little ahead of us, and it is astonishing what a difference a few days make in the way of tying and other little details where the plants have been left to themselves for a short while, for what attention they receive on almost any range while the grafting is going on is of the hurried order and naturally something must be slightly overlooked.

As the sun is now getting stronger daily, and the plants feeling the beneficial effects of same, they will require a mulch at this time, and quite a generous one at that. First of all, get the tying done. Tie each plant carefully, and where, after tying, the plants seem to lean over the walks (as they sometimes do owing to their weight), between the wire supports, place a few more supports along the running wires, or wire the outside roses by fastening a wire to the running-wire, across and down to the lower edging of the border through the plants. In this way the plants can be straightened up nicely, the inside rows being evenly adjusted by placing a lath with a saw-curf at equal distances over the running wires and tying. We mention this piece of work for the importance of having the plants well out of the way when bringing in the mulch will be greatly appreciated, and there will be little or no growth bruised or broken during the operation.

After tying, the beds should be cleaned. Remove all of the old loose mulch that has been exhausted, leaving nothing but a solid foundation for the new mulch, and be sure to have the manure in good condition for handling; in fact, this should be done before removing the old mulch from the borders. The best manure for this purpose is cow manure about half decomposed. Fresh cow manure will spot the plants quite badly during the fermenting period and the old, completely rotted manure has not enough strength for a mulch at this season, yet, if one has nothing but green manure and some old manure on hand, by using the two a good mulching material will be the result. A mulch applied to the depth of an inch on an inch and one-half on the level, will not be too heavy along about March 1, preferably in ridges crosswise the beds when it can be washed down with the hose, the plants getting a good, strong feed at the first watering. Then in a few days, go over the mulch rapidly with the hands and break it up again. This should be done before a crust forms on the surface if one wants to avoid a great waste of plant food, for when the manure once gets hard its usefulness as a fertilizer is about over.

The grafting case will still be in use for several weeks and do not be in too great a rush to get the grafts out of the case. Air gradually, and be sure that the grafts are ripened enough to be placed outside on a bench before moving them; many plants are ruined that would otherwise make good, owing to their soft condition when taken from the case. The young stock will require careful handling outside for a week or ten days. Shade carefully, spray frequently, avoid draughts, etc. A night temperature of 65 degrees and a day temperature of 80 degrees for about a week will be beneficial.

EIGHTH ANNUAL DINNER OF THE NEW YORK AND NEW JERSEY ASSOCIATION OF PLANT GROWERS.

Hotel McAlpin, New York, February 23, 1916.

New York and New Jersey Plant Growers.

The eighth annual dinner of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers was held in the Green room of the Hotel McAlpin, New York, February 23. Those present declared it was the most enjoyable and successful function ever held by this association. After a hearty dinner J. H. Fieser, who is president, and who acted as toastmaster, in an appropriate address, welcomed the guests and then called upon numerous speakers, including F. R. Pierson, Anton Schultheis, James McHutchison, A. L. Miller, Wm. H. Siebrecht, senior and junior, and others. The attendance exceeded all expectations. The guests were seated at round tables which were so arranged as to leave dancing space at one end of the room and a goodly number of the diners danced between each course. After the speechmaking was over dancing was again indulged in until the early hours. The success of the affair, as well as all other similar affairs conducted by the association, is to be credited to the dinner committee, which was headed by A. L. Miller.

State Nur. Stock and Interstate Commerce

A paper by Curtis Nye Smith, read at the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Western Association of Nurserymen, Kansas City, Mo., December 8-9, 1915.

Two years ago, this country was desperately near a terrible war with a great nation, because one of our states had enacted a local law designed to protect its citizens from certain alien land owners. This law, however, contravened the terms of a treaty which the United States senate, acting within its constitutional duties and rights, had made with this foreign nation. There was a tremendous feeling of antagonism and criticism of the good faith of this country. The president sent the secretary of state, a most unusual procedure, to plead with the governor and legislature of this state to abandon the law, not on the ground of the illegality of the state law or because of its unconstitutional conflict with national rights and powers, but as a favor and to preserve peace. This is but one illustration, out of a countless number, of the extraordinary and lamentable contests between state and national powers. The historical, political, judicial and economic development of this conflict reads like a romance.

For the purpose of introducing the subject under discussion, it is sufficient to say, that, from the foundation of this government there has and always will be a contest between state and federal rights and powers. It was only after the most strenuous efforts, arousing bitter and enduring controversies, that the states surrendered to the national government by means of the federal constitution, adopted in 1789, certain powers, one of which was the right of congress to regulate and control the commerce between the states and foreign countries. This commerce between the states we call interstate. Just what is, or is not, interstate commerce is not defined by the constitution. For this definition we must and do look to the interpretations gradually, haltingly, and sometimes uncertainly enunciated in the decisions of the supreme court of the United States. As the methods of trading have changed or expanded, as the means of transportation and the communication of merchants have been made quicker and easier, this great court has added to its definitions of interstate commerce and explained the limitations of the state laws in restriction of such commerce. Nevertheless, the subject, except in its general principles, is difficult of understanding both theoretically and practically. The business man transacting business in many states, in which there are numerous and difficult restrictive laws, demands to know how he can safely ship his merchandise in interstate commerce without submitting to those burdensome laws. It is the object of this discussion to point out in ordinary language the relationship of state nursery stock laws to interstate commerce in such merchandise.

While the congress has, as we have seen, control of interstate commerce, there are two apparent, and in practice real exceptions to the general rule. By the federal constitution the states have reserved to themselves the power to inspect imports or exports. The other power, not mentioned in the constitution but reserved to the states, is the police power of the states to enact reasonable and appropriate laws to protect the morals, health, safety and general welfare of their citizens, and to prevent fraud and deception. Under these two powers only can interstate commerce be affected by state laws. The United States supreme court has recognized these state rights, but only with certain limitations, such as, for example, that the state laws must be reasonable, must not unfairly discriminate against interstate commerce, must not, under the guise of inspection laws be in effect revenue measures and a direct regulation of interstate commerce. As a result of the supreme court decisions it may with some assurance be stated that the states, with the probable exception of New York state, which, except in certain particulars, has, by its constitution prohibited inspection laws, may enact these nursery stock laws in order to provide inspection for the detection and elimination of injurious plant diseases and pests, and for the sole purpose of paying the cost of such inspection may charge such reasonable fees as have a proper and direct relationship with the costs of such inspection. These laws may in direct terms, prohibit or restrict the introduction of nursery stock affected by such diseases or pests. The practical effect is that interstate commerce is regulated by this class of laws just described. On the other hand, these nursery stock laws have been very carelessly drawn by persons unacquainted with the constitutional limitations, or indeed, with little knowledge of proper statutory construction. It is, of course, impossible in this brief discussion to catalogue all the faults of the numerous state nursery stock laws. It is sufficient at the present time to cite a few examples of state nursery stock laws which appear to offend the constitutional requirements above noted. A Maine nursery stock law required "agents" who wished to sell nursery stock to take out a license fee of $10.00, these fees going into the general treasury of the state. An agent of a New York nurseryman, not paying this fee, was arrested, tried, found guilty, but, on an appeal, the supreme court of Maine, reversed the judgment on the ground that the agent was not selling nursery stock. The court did not discuss the constitutional question raised, namely, that the license fee was a revenue measure, and so a burden on interstate commerce. However, this law was promptly amended to conform to the criticism on the constitutional question, thereby recognizing the justice of the nurseryman's contention. Cannot the same thing be said of the Michigan nursery stock law where the license fees are paid into the treasury of the state without any provision for the use of such moneys for the charges of inspection?

The state entomologist of Oklahoma has recently requested ex-state nurserymen to file a bond, one of the conditions of which is that the nurseryman desiring to solicit orders for nursery stock shall buy, sell, etc., only such nursery stock as has been duly inspected and certified by an official state inspector of the state of Oklahoma. In the first place this bond appears to have a fatal defect because the statute from which it must derive its force and effect wholly fails to provide what this bond is for and what shall be its conditions. To give it life by judicial construction or administrative regulations would practically be a usurpation of legislative functions. Another rather amusing defect of far-reaching results is that the bond is required of one who "desires" to sell. Now the criminal and civil law is not interested in an intent harbored in the mind and it is not punishable, as the Maine supreme court decided in the nursery stock case above cited, in which the objectionable law penalized one who desired to sell nursery stock.

This Oklahoma bond raises a constitutional question which is unanswerable. It requires the agent of ex-state nurserymen "desiring" to solicit orders in Oklahoma, a purely interstate transaction, to buy and sell, etc., only Oklahoma inspected stock. This of course is physically impossible. Under the limitations imposed by the federal supreme court as above mentioned, this requirement is thoroughly unreasonable, and for the further reason, propounded by the supreme court, that the inspection would necessarily be beyond the jurisdiction of Oklahoma. The regulation is an unwarranted burden on interstate commerce. These objections being presented to the Oklahoma officials, a new form of bond has been offered to the nurserymen, but still fatally defective, though omitting the impossible inspection by Oklahoma officials in another state.

The Michigan nursery stock law provides, in one section, that all nursery stock imported into Michigan must, before entry, be fumigated by hydrocyanic acid gas, while Michigan grown stock is only required to be fumigated if grown within one-half mile of where San Jose scale exists. This is an obvious discrimination against interstate commerce, which, under some decisions of the United States supreme court and in the opinion of some attorneys, is unconstitutional. Even if, as is the opinion of some lawyers, the writer being one, there can be discrimination against ex-state products under certain conditions, we still have the question whether this is a reasonable regulation of interstate commerce. From opinions of those competent to give advice as to the effect of this gas on nursery stock if used in sufficient quantities to kill the San Jose scale, it is alleged that certain kinds of nursery stock would be destroyed by this fumigation process. It is also stated by these experts that not all forms of nursery stock are affected by the San Jose scale. These facts being true the Michigan law requiring the ex-state nurseryman to fumigate all nursery stock offered for importation into Michigan is burdened with conditions not imposed on the Michigan nurseryman. Some of his stock which is never affected by the San Jose scale has to be fumigated; some of his stock though it is free from the San Jose scale cannot, because the fumigation process destroys it, be imported into Michigan. The only possible reason whereby this discrimination can be upheld is that this extreme regulation against interstate commerce is the only means by which this obnoxious San Jose scale can be kept out of Michigan. This is not the case. This scale can be readily detected by inspection without any difficulty and by a perfectly feasible system of inspection of imported nursery stock. If such inspection discloses the presence of San Jose scale, let the authorities take proper action to prevent further shipment, or let there be penalties for the introduction of nursery stock affected with the San Jose scale. The situation is somewhat comparable to the Missouri statute which absolutely prohibited the introduction of all cattle from certain states for a large part of the year. The statute was designed to keep out of Missouri the dreaded Texas fever. The United States supreme court held this statute an unreasonable burden on interstate commerce, because as is evident, it prohibited interstate traffic in healthy cattle.

If we now consider in the briefest manner what the United States supreme court has held to be interstate commerce, we can conclude these remarks. It is interstate commerce:

(1) When goods are shipped F. O. B. by the vendor in one state to purchasers in another state. Method of payment for goods is not a determining factor.

(2) When orders for goods are solicited in another state by advertisements, catalogues, traveling salesmen or other methods.

(3) When, as a result of acceptance of orders secured by traveling salesmen, advertisements, catalogues, etc., the goods are delivered at seller's risk and cost at purchaser's residence in another state, method of payment of goods not being a determining factor.

In these circumstances or when shipment is bill of lading to shipper or order, draft attached, there is technically a retention of title in vendor until after arrival of goods in the other state, but the United States supreme court has stated that this is merely an incident of collection of payment, the contract of sale being consummated in the vendor's state.

(4) When vendor in one state ships goods to a factor or broker in another state for sale on commission, the title to remain in the ex-state owner until goods are sold.

(5) When ex-state persons establish and maintain branch offices or agencies in another state provided the agents merely solicit orders which are sent to the home office for acceptance.

(6) And these branch offices may also act as distributing agents for the interstate shipment and delivery of the goods on orders previously sent.

High Mark in Flower Sales

New York and New Jersey Growers' Association Dines and Hears of Big Increase in Demand for Potted Plants—New York Is Buying More Blooms Than Ever.

WHEN it comes to potted plants—and it comes to them around Easter among other times—the New York and New Jersey Growers' Association is about the whole thing. For this little association—it has less than twenty-five members—supplies nearly 90 per cent. of the potted plants bought by New Yorkers.

The association held its annual dinner at the Hotel McAlpin on Wednesday night with an attendance swelled by almost as many guests as members. For like all the gatherings of the potted plant growers it included their wives.

Mayor Frank R. Pearson of Tarrytown was the principal speaker at the dinner. Mayor Pearson is a florist and in potted plant circles is regarded as an expert. The dinner was arranged by A. L. Miller of Jamaica, a past president of the association, who is now functioning as Chairman of the Dinner Committee. President J. H. Flesser of North Bergen, N. J., was toastmaster.

There has been a big increase in the demand for potted plants during the past year. The high prices for cut flowers is the reason for this condition. When a prospective flower purchaser discovers that he can get a potted plant for the price of a bunch of American Beauties, he often follows the lines of least resistance. But dealers in cut flowers are doing well, too. For as Mr. Miller explains, New Yorkers are buying more flowers than they ever did before.

Flowers will be unusually plentiful this Easter. Azaleas will vie with lilacs in general popularity.

(7) When an ex-state vendor maintains a storehouse in another state to which goods can be shipped as ordered and from which they can be distributed.

The obvious conclusion of this discussion is that the state's interference with interstate commerce by means of the state's police power and its constitutional right of inspection is one of great difficulty, and that these laws should be carefully drawn. Nurserymen admit, I believe, that state nursery stock laws are entirely proper and necessary to protect the farms, orchards, and woodlands of this country from devastating diseases and pests likely to be introduced on nursery stock. I am equally positive that these nurserymen do not agree that this means a license to state legislatures and more particularly to over-zealous inspection officials to enact or promulgate unfair burdens on interstate commerce contrary to the rights secured by the federal constitution. When a state official charged with the execution of a nursery stock law not only persistently interferes with interstate commerce, even when such interference is unsupported by the provisions of the state statute, but frankly admits, as he did to the writer, that he "did not believe in, nor approve of, the nursery business carried on through any catalogue measure," and that if nurserymen of other states wish to take advantage of the markets of his state, they should pay for that privilege, the nurserymen are justified in inquiring if they have any rights under the federal constitution.

SHORTAGE OF LONG AMERICAN BEAUTIES.

There has been plenty of stock for all requirements during the week just passed, with the possible exception of long American Beauties. Carnations were plentiful as were roses in the shorter grades. On Saturday, February 26, a number of retailers had "carnation sales" at 50 cents a dozen. Spring flowers also were sold for 50 cents a dozen retail. Orchids have been moving well and the stock, although not so large as formerly, is of exceptionally good quality, mostly of the lighter shades. Sweet peas, forget-me-nots, daisies, snapdragons, calendulas and lily of the valley are good stock and meet with a good demand. A few Easter lilies are beginning to arrive. Callas are more plentiful, while bulbous stock seems equal to the demand. Pink and White Killarney and shorter grades of American Beauties are sufficient for requirements. Greens are plentiful.

NOTES.

Al. Barber, of the Jones-Russell Co., spent last week in the east, visiting all of the larger flower centers, including Boston, Mass. He returned Monday evening, February 28.

T. J. Kegg, florist, West Park, O., was selected as one of the jury that is to decide the fate of Biauchetti, who strangled Dolores Evans at the Prospect hotel in January.

W. J. Swanger, of New London, O., is at Huron Road hospital, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis.

C. F. B.

OWENSBORO, KY.—J. A. Tapscott reports greatly improved business since moving to his new location, which affords opportunity for fine displays of flowers and plants. Mr. Tapscott showed a considerable number of unusually large and well finished azaleas for St. Valentine's day.

GOOD BUSINESS FOLLOWS DULLNESS.

Although business was quiet during the first part of the week, it took a turn for the better towards the latter part, and on Monday, February 28, it was quite brisk. Roses remain about the same in price, but as the supply seems to be shortening, better prices are expected soon. Carnations are becoming scarce and the price has gone to three cents on the best quality stocks, such as Matchless, Ward and Pink Delight. Bulbous stock moves rather slowly, as there is an over supply of stock not up to the standard. Tulips are plentiful and do not bring very good prices, although some of the best flowers reach the two-cent mark. Freesias are scarce and easily sell for six cents. Violets vary in price according to the weather. Plumosus and Sprengeri are still scarce and sell readily. Snapdragons are coming better and sell fast. The best quality go for $2.50 per dozen, and other grades vary from 25 cents up, according to size and color.

NOTES.

J. Stafford & Son, of Braintree, are cutting a nice lot of freesias. They grow the colored sorts as well as Purity, and find a good market for all of them. A few plants of Buddleia Asiatica were grown this year with good success, six cents being received for each spray.

Caroline Ball, of Southboro, has some of the finest snapdragons seen in Boston. Pink, yellow and white are grown, and all are exceptionally fine flowers. The carnations at this range are doing well this year, Enchantress Supreme and Ward being especially good.

John Barr, of South Natick, will cut down the number of varieties of carnations for next season. Matchless, Pink Delight and Ward will comprise the bulk of his stock. He thinks well of Good Cheer, and is propagating all that is possible from his stock.

Welch Bros. report trade as showing improvement and predict a good market for the coming week. A fine lot of carnations and roses were noted in their store; also a good supply of very fine bulbous stock.

F. L. W.

Washington.

Business is still at its best. The supply of stock coming to the market is plentiful, but prices have not changed. Roses are plentiful and sell at fair prices. Carnations are not overly plentiful and the quality is none too good. Pot plants, such as azaleas, hyacinths, primroses, tulips, lilacs, etc., are seen in numbers.

NOTES.

The next meeting of the florists' club will be held March 7. The following officers have been nominated: Lloyd Jenkins, president; Adolph Gude, vice-president; Wm. Gude, treasurer; C. L. Linz, secretary. H. B. Lewis will make a report at this meeting regarding the arrangements that have been made for the visit of the local florists to the Philadelphia flower show. Over 100 will make the trip from this city.

Geo. H. Cooke, president of the florists' club, has been appointed a member of the manufacturers' committee of the Chamber of Commerce. William F. Gude, Edward S. Schmid and Wm. H. Ernest, members of the club, are also identified with the Chamber of Commerce, serving on various committees.

John Bickings, fern specialist, has taken unto himself a helpmate. Both he and his bride have the best wishes of the local members of the craft.

Geo. C. Shaffer has been exceptionally busy with decorations during the past week. Funeral work has also been heavy.

OBITUARY.

Max Rudolph.

Max Rudolph, president of the Cincinnati Florists' Society and well-known to the trade in many cities, died unexpectedly following an attack of heart trouble at his residence on College Hill, Cincinnati, Ohio, February 22, aged 52 years.

Max Rudolph was born in Leipzig, Germany, and after serving his apprenticeship, came to the United States in 1882, working in several greenhouse establishments until 1891, when he opened a flower store in Cincinnati, continuing in the same location until his death. About 15 years ago he erected a range of greenhouses on College Hill, which is a model of completeness and contains about 20,000 feet of glass. During the day preceding his death, he appeared to be in good health and was in his usual happy frame of mind. He attended to business at his store and after partaking of his supper after his arrival home, walked to his greenhouses and chatted with his night foreman. While returning to his home he became violently ill, and although a physician summoned by his wife arrived in a few minutes, he was beyond medical aid and died within an hour.

To his many friends, both in and out of the trade, the sad news which spread quickly cast a gloom, and to the members of the Cincinnati Florists' Society, the passing of their brother member and friend comes as a severe loss for those who knew him best respected him for his life of simplicity, truthfulness and uprightness, and the heartfelt sympathy of all who knew him goes out to his widow and son who survive.

The funeral services were held at his late residence, the pall bearers being Julius Peterson, Chas. E. Critchell, Gustav Adrian and Henry Schwarz, all of whom were among his closest friends in life. The floral offerings were beautiful and numerous. His remains were cremated.

SAMUEL UNTERMEYER has paid $150,000 for 30 acres of unimproved land at Palm Beach. He will spend $1,000,000 for villa and grounds, build 300 feet of land into Lake Worth and make a chain of small lakes.

THE department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., recently issued an exhaustive and well illustrated bulletin on Termites, or white ants, so destructive to many forms of vegetation. This is Bulletin No. 333, of the Bureau of Entomology, by L. O. Howard.

WHEN in need of stock or supplies of any kind in a hurry it will be a great advantage to have a copy of the latest edition of our Trade Directory at hand for names and addresses. The price of the latest (1915) edition is $3 per copy, postpaid.

Florists' Hall Association.

John G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J., secretary of the Florists' Hall Association, has forwarded the twenty-eighth assessment notices to members of that organization. The association has paid, since the beginning of its highly successful career nearly 20 years ago, 2,260 losses aggregating $350,000 and also has secured an enviable record for fair dealing.

The one-way fare is $3.58. There are no party or other special rates on this trip.

Other Rock Island trains for those who can not leave on the club train are as follows: Leave Chicago 3:45 p. m., due Moline 8:15 p. m. Leave Chicago 6:00 p. m., due Moline 10:03 p. m. Leave Chicago 1:30 a. m., due Moline 5:55 a. m. Lower berths are $1.50, upper berths, $1.25.

American Rose Society.

The gentlemen who have accepted the positions of judges for the American Rose Society at the coming National Flower Show to be held in Philadelphia March 25-April 2, are: Frank H. Traendley, New York; W. J. Palmer, Buffalo, N. Y.; Eugene Daille-douze, Flatbush, N. Y.; Robert Craig, Philadelphia, Pa.; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.; Alex. B. Scott, Sharon Hill, Pa.; Wm. L. Rock, Kansas City, Mo.; Emil Buettner, Park Ridge, Ill.; James Forbes, Portland, Ore.; Admiral Aaron Ward, Roslyn, N. Y.; Fred Burki, Gibsonsia, Pa.; J. H. Dunlop, Richmond Hill, Ont.; George C. Thomas, Jr., Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pa.; Victor Groshens, Roslyn, Pa.

There will be submitted at the annual meeting of the society the report of the committee on standardizing the length of stems of roses and the question concerning the renaming of roses. A proposed standard for outdoor roses made up by Dr. Robert Huey, Jesse A. Currey and George C. Thomas, Jr., has been submitted to the executive committee. The annual bulletin for 1916, covering the business of the society for the year 1915, with a series of papers upon roses, colored illustrations, etc., is now ready to be mailed to each member of the American Rose Society. This book is a publication of uncommon worth, and was a special effort to increase amateur membership.

The promise now is that the display of roses at Philadelphia will be the best that has ever been brought together, which is saying a good deal. The extensive list of prizes is bountiful; the private donors number over 50.

New York Summer Show.

A meeting of the International Garden Club was held Thursday, February 24, at the house of the president, Mrs. Chas. F. Hoffman, 620 Fifth avenue, New York, to discuss the coming summer flower show to be held June 1-4, at the club house and grounds, Pelham Manor, Pelham Bay Park, on Long Island Sound. The International Garden Club will offer a prize list of at least $3,000. Many representatives of the trade were present and the following were asked to act as a committee to draw up a schedule and to act in an advisory capacity: Harry A. Bunyard, New York; George E. M. Stumpp, New York; Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Julius Roehrs, Rutherford, N. J.; F. L. Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.; John B. Lager, Summit, N. J.; P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; W. H. Duckham, Madison, N. J.; Wallace Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; David Ward, Queens, N. Y.; M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.; I. S. Hendrickson, Flowerfield, N. Y.; John Canning, Ardsley, N. Y.; J. Harrison Dick, New York; Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.; Leonard Barron, Garden City, N. Y.

The International Garden Club will invite the co-operation of national and local societies, and it is hoped that an additional $3,000 may be secured for a prize fund, the profits to be divided in ratio to the amounts subscribed by each society. If possible, the show will be arranged as an integral part of the gardens and grounds adjacent to the club house rather than grouped under a tent or marquee. Possibly the latter might have to be erected for groups of tender indoor plants, Rose gardens, rock gardens, groups of rhododendrons, flowering and other shrubs, herbaceous plants and water gardens and similar features will be encouraged. Further progress will be reported from time to time and suggestions and active co-operation are invited.

Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Roses and lily of the valley are the only stocks that are not in sufficient supply to take care of the demand. Bright weather has resulted in flowers of better quality in all lines and prices are holding firm. Flowering plants continue to sell well.

NOTES.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey have received a large shipment of orchid plants in several varieties. They have of late been cutting some very fine cattleyas; also good Shawyer, Sunburst and Ophelia roses, for all of which they find a quick market.

The Flick Floral Co. had a special sale of spring flowers February 26 and reports good sales. Elaborate decorations for a wedding also helped to make a busy week for everyone connected with this firm.

Extensive improvements have been made at the downtown store of A. J. Lanternier & Co. The premises have been enlarged, re-decorated and new office fixtures installed. They report brisk business.

Herbert Zurmuehlin, proprietor of the Augur Flower Shop, 114 East Washington street, discontinued business March 1, being unable to secure a renewal of the lease on the premises.

The Doswell Floral Co. has been very busy during the past week. This firm has been cutting some fine sweet peas as well as wholesaling a good cut of single violets.

H. K.

Connecticut Horticultural Society.

A most interesting meeting of this society was held in the County building, Friday evening, February 25. President Hollister succeeded in securing Dr. W. E. Britton, state entomologist at the Connecticut agricultural experiment station, New Haven, to address the members on the "Life History and Habits of Some Kinds of Insects." There were many photographs taken from life and specimens had been secured showing how they get in their deadly work in the vegetable and tree world. The lecturer was given a rising vote of thanks for his instructive address.

Alfred Cebelius, head gardener for Professor M. W. Jacobus, exhibited six pots of Boddington's Matchless cineraria and eight pots of Boddington's cactus flowering cineraria, the group making a fine combination of color. N. Slocombe, of Farmington, displayed a vase of Acacia pubescens, and H. R. Hurd, of the Beach estate, Elmwood, exhibited three fine lemons.

The president named as judges to make the awards, Howard Senf, A. Righenzi, and F. Roulier. The lemons received honorable mention, the acacia a first-class certificate, and the cineraria, a cultural certificate, all of which was ratified by vote.

Friday was unusually stormy and on this account the attendance was small. The meeting to be held March 10, will be "cineraria night."

ALFRED DIXON, Sec'y.

BATAVIA, ILL.—A nearby gas main has caused injury to the stock at the greenhouse establishment of Andrew Anderson to the extent of about $3,000, leaving him practically without material to carry on his business.

TRADE STILL VERY QUIET.

Trade at this writing is still very quiet and the report at nearly all the houses is that there is practically nothing doing, consequently stock of all kinds is plentiful with the exception of lily of the valley and good American Beauty roses. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are plentiful but continue to clean up nicely each day at good prices. Roses in general are in good supply and choice stock is obtainable in quantity lots at reasonable prices. Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, White Killarney and Double White Killarney are seen in large numbers at all the stores and the receipts of the other varieties are steadily increasing. Lilies are much more plentiful, but sweet peas seem to be in good demand, and there does not appear to be any great surplus to speak of. Orchids are in good supply, but clean up well each day. Gardenias are plentiful and there are enough on hand to fill all the orders. Carnations are arriving in larger quantities and very choice stock is obtainable at greatly reduced prices. Some especially fine Belle Washburn, Philadelphia and Washington are included in the shipments and find ready buyers. Tulips, daffodils, jonquils, daisies, pansies, Paper White narcissus and Romans are to be had in quantity, and the same holds good for violets. Greens of all kinds are in good supply. Both the local and shipping demand are very quiet and the sales during the past week have been very discouraging. There should be some New Orleans business next week on account of Mardi Gras, but so far very few advance orders have been booked. The supply houses are having trouble in listing their goods

2,000,000 Feet of Modern Glass

M. Weiland, of Evanston, had a narrow escape from being seriously injured Monday morning, February 28, when he was passing in front of Winterson's seed store and a piece of glass fell from the third story window, striking him on the head. Fortunately, Mr. Weiland had a heavy cap on, otherwise the injury would have been more serious, for as it was the gash was quite large and it was necessary for him to have medical treatment right away.

Thos. Heaven, of Benton Harbor, Mich., was in the city this week buying stock for his new retail store that he will open in that city in the near future. He has 10,000 feet of glass devoted to miscellaneous stock, and ships quite a large quantity of adiantum to this market. Mr. Heaven reports business as good, and his many friends wish him every success in his new undertaking.

Bassett & Washburn are more than pleased with the demand for Belle Washburn carnation cuttings, and received an inquiry this week from a subscriber of THE AMERICAN FLORIST from far away Japan, who is very much interested in carnations and seems to be particularly impressed with their variety as described in their advertisements.

Herman Schiller reports business as good at Schiller's north side store and he is making preparations for the spring trade. He has a large number of window boxes already on hand, and expects that the demand for them will be better than ever this season.

L. Hoeckner will have a flower booth at the Coliseum when the medal winners at the Panama-Pacific exposition will be on display. It will be understood that Stogie's Hoop-a-la girls will help him out at the booth, which is sure to be an added attraction.

We have handled this coloring for the past two years and find it to be the most satisfactory green coloring in the market and have never known it to injure flowers in any way, not even destroying their fragrance.

We offer this to you at 50c per package (enough for one or two quarts and will color from 100 to 300 carnations) or three packages for $1.25, postpaid.

Special discounts on large quantities.

It is impossible to get any more coloring imported, therefore order early.

A. T. PYFER & COMPANY, 30 E. Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

M. A. Leganger, of the A. L. Randall Co., celebrated his eleventh birthday February 29. Some of his friends cannot believe he is really 44 years old, for he is still young in appearance and looks more like a man in the twenties than in the forties.

D. F. Simonds, of the Ogden Floral Co., is troubled more or less with rheumatism, but is on the market every day, notwithstanding the fact that his left hand is still badly swollen.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are now comfortably located in their new store and are handling a larger supply of cut flowers than before and are showing a complete line of supplies.

A. L. Vaughan, wife and daughter Thelma left February 29 for Cairo where they boarded the palatial steamer Colonel Conway for a trip down the wonderful Mississippi river for New Orleans, La., where they will attend the Mardi Gras and Mr. Vaughan will call on the trade. They will stop at Memphis, Vicksburg, Natchez, Baton Rouge and other ports, and are due to arrive in the southern city March 5. A moving picture operator will take pictures of the guests on the boat and on the shore, and these will be exhibited on the up-trip as an extra entertainment. They will visit relatives and friends at Monroe, La., and Clarkdale, Miss., while they are away, and will return home by rail, reaching here about March 15. The A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store will be in good hands while the proprietor is away, and Miss Paradise will look after the office and William Johnson the store, and he will be ably assisted by his right-hand man, Peter Hoefelder.

Julius Schnapp arrived from Seattle, Wash., this week, and is now with the Alpha Floral Co., where he is ably assisted by his daughter Elsie, who is a very efficient saleslady. Mr. Schnapp has been with several of the leading stores in the west for the past five years, and was recently with the Hollywood Gardens. He needs no introduction to the local trade, for he was located here for many years and is a valuable addition to the Alpha Floral Co.'s staff. Gus Pappas, of Des Moines, Ia., a member of the firm, has been here for nearly a week, but has been on the sick list for the greater part of the time and was obliged to stay indoors. He is feeling much better at this writing and will be able to be about again soon.

Zech & Mann received a postal this week from Fred Haupt, of Louisville, Ky., who is enjoying a well-earned rest at Habana, Cuba. Mr. Haupt writes that Habana is a great place but is greatly lacking in flowers. Allie Zech and wife and Matt Mann will attend the annual convention and exhibition of the State Florists' Association, to be held in Moline, March 7-8. This firm received a large palm leaf from one of their customers in Florida the other day which measured fully 15 feet in length, and is on exhibition in A. Lange's window display.

Wietor Bros. are cutting more stock now than they have for a long time, and one shipment this week consisted of 20 large boxes of roses and carnations. This firm has a new seedling carnation of a beautiful salmon pink color that looks very promising and is attracting much favorable attention in the market. N. J. Wietor calls attention to the magnificent Philadelphia carnations that they are now cutting and there is no question but it is one of the most desirable pinks obtainable in the market just now.

Peter Duris opened a new store at 132 North State street, February 26, and is well pleased with the amount of business that he has already done. Mr. Duris is the same gentleman that owns the Central Floral Co., at Detroit, Mich., and is well and favorably known in the local market.

A. E. Hunt & Co. have a nice stock of Chicago White and Etoile d'Or daisy plants in two and two and one-half inch pots ready for wholesale purposes and report a good demand for same. Both varieties are good sellers in this market, and they grow them on a large scale for cut flower purposes.

Otto N. Stein, manager of the landscape department of the George Wittbold Company, is a pretty busy man these days and is looking forward to a banner season. The Wittbold Co. is splendidly equipped to handle large jobs and always has plenty of work to keep the regular force busy.

Otto Snider, 550 North Clark street, was shot and wounded February 24, when a burglar entered his store and was surprised as he was ransacking the place. He was wounded in the right leg and was taken to the Passavant Hospital, where he is recovering. His assailant escaped.

Wm. K. Kotshonis, proprietor of the store doing business under the firm name of the White House Florists at 140 South Wabash avenue, has a very attractive address tag in purple and white that sort of puts a finishing touch to each one of their packages before it is sent out.

J. A. Budlong is cutting a good supply of Double White Killarney roses, which Manager Schupp firmly believes is the best white that his firm has grown for many years. Lily of the valley is still in brisk demand and the receipts clean up at an early hour each day.

At A. T. Pyfer & Co.'s store the receipts of roses are much larger now and they are also handling large quantities of fancy carnations. The shipping trade has kept up well and new customers are constantly being added to their list.

Chas. Erne, of Erne & Klingel, is still in the hospital, but is well on the road to recovery and Fred Klingel expects that it will be only a short time before he will be able to pay him a visit at the store.

The A. L. Randall Co. is using the third floor of the Le Moyne building for manufacturing purposes, and an inspection of same will give one a little idea of how much of its own stock the firm really turns out.

Kyle & Foerster continue to have a brisk demand for Khlem's novelty tulips, which are seen featured in the window displays of many of the leading stores.

Kirscht Bros., of Morton Grove, have two houses devoted to their new Windsor colored Enchantress carnation, which they will disseminate next season.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., says that he has never known a time when roses sold as cheaply at this time of the year as they did last week, which means that the lull which usually follows the holidays did not set in until now, owing to the extreme scarcity of stock. This house is receiving a good supply of short and medium stemmed Mrs. Chas. Russell roses. A. C. Kohlbrand will represent the firm at the annual convention and exhibition of the state florists' association at Moline next week.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is in good crop with everything, and some very choice orchids, gardenias, roses and carnations are now being received in quantity. Trade in the supply department is good and the demand for miscellaneous blooming and decorative plants at Morton Grove is very brisk. Young grafted and own root rose stock is moving freely and the demand continues to keep up, with nearly every mail bringing in new orders.

There will be a civil service examination for florist, March 10, in Washington park, Fifty-seventh street and Cottage Grove avenue. Applications, which can be obtained at the civil service office personally or by mail, must be filed in that office by 5:30 p. m., March 9. The examination will be on subjects directly related to the work, propagation of plants and flowers, arranging of floral displays, etc.

Percy Jones never handled such a large supply of miscellaneous bulbous stock as this season, and while trade in general has been quiet Manager Van Gelder never complains of dull times, and says that trade since January 1 has been much better than he expected it would be.

FLOWERS OF QUALITY

Mention the American Florist when writing

Peter Reinberg is in good crop with Sunburst and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses, which are in good demand, even though trade in general is quiet. Mr. Reinberg, president of the Board of County Commissioners, is president of the forest preserve commission, which has just been upheld in the supreme court. The new municipal corporation which will spend $15,000,000 annually in an outer park belt to fringe the city with woodland to be held forever against encroachment. As president of the preserve district, an office without additional salary, Mr. Reinberg has announced his intention of forming a small Cook County plan commission patterned after the Chicago Commission. The object is a systematic plan for the outer park belt which will eventually take in all the natural forest in the county. One of our first steps will be to acquire the woodland property that borders on lakes and rivers. One of the objects of the formation of the district is preservation of the scenic beauty of the country and the protection of the forest growth for the education and recreation of the public.

R. T. Brown, with the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., passed through the city this week on his way home from Eureka, Calif., where he has been spending some time with C. W. Ward.

Kansas City.

BUSINESS VERY SATISFACTORY.

Market conditions have changed very little since our last report, with the exception that bulbous stock is becoming more popular every day and some very fine jonquils, tulips and hyacinths are to be seen. Carnations are good in quality and plentiful, as are Easter lilies, and fine home-grown violets, sweet peas, mignonette, freesias and lily of the valley are also among the offerings that move well. Roses are not up to standard. Pot plants still enjoy a good call and some fine specimens are to be had in rhododendrons, azaleas, lilacs, spireas, cyclamens and bougainvilleas. All of the local florists are making active preparations for Easter trade.

NOTES.

H. Kusik & Co. are handling fine home-grown carnations in quantity. Excellent jonquils are also to be seen here. The rose supply has shortened somewhat. Orders from the West for wire work and supplies are the best in the history of this firm.

W. J. Barnes is bringing into bloom some very fine plants of lilac, spirea, cyclamen, cineraria, deutzia, rhododendron and roses. These will be used in the near future for a decoration. His bulbous stock is also coming along in good shape.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. is showing some extra fine Butterfly sweet peas and some excellent bougainvilleas. They are also bringing in good Easter lilies. They report a good week of funeral work and a good demand for pot plants.

T. J. Noll & Co. are doing a heavy business, both in cut stock and supplies. Good jonquils, roses and carnations are seen at this establishment among other offerings.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports that pot plants and cut stock is shortening up at the greenhouses. Funeral work has been very good.

Chas. Biedermann & Son report good business, with a heavy demand in funeral work. Their plant stock for Easter is coming on in fine shape.

Arthur Newell reports the best week in funeral work since he has been in business. Both the city and out-of-town demand was exceptionally good.

The Peterson Floral Co. is featuring some excellent stocks of primroses, cinerarias and azaleas. Trade is also picking up in bulbous stock.

The Rosery is featuring fine pans of bulbous stock. They are planning extensively for Easter, and anticipate a heavy spring business.

A. F. Barbe reports a good trade. He is preparing to start his new house about March 10, and is preparing for a good spring trade.

August Luther, Jr., is disposing of some good pot stock at his greenhouses. Business in general is good.

The Costello-Moore Floral Co. reports good sales in bulbous stock. Funeral work is also good.

The Alpha Floral Co. is kept busy with funeral orders, large designs being a daily feature.

FAIR SUPPLY AND MODERATE DEMAND.

Business is fair. The call for stock, while not particularly active, is steady and serves to take up nearly all the receipts in most lines. Roses are excellent and in a little heavier supply than at the last writing. Only short American Beauties are available, but these may be had in larger quantities. Carnation receipts are not near so heavy as they were. Easter lilies, callas and rubrums are all fairly plentiful. Sweet peas have met with an active market. Bulbous offerings include tulips, Dutch hyacinths, jonquils, daffodils, poeticus and freesias. Excellent lily of the valley and orchids may be had. Other offerings include violets, snapdragon, marguerites, mignonette and forget-me-nots. The supply of greens is sufficient for present needs.

NOTES.

Max Rudolph, president of the local florists' society, died suddenly of heart failure at his home on College Hill, Tuesday evening, February 22, at the age of 52 years. He had been out in his greenhouses and had returned to his home when the summons came quickly and with scarcely any warning. He was born in Germany, and at the age of 18 came to this country. In 1891 he opened his store on Twelfth street and nine years later built his greenhouse plant on College Hill. Under his able guidance and hard work, the business became very successful. At the time of his death he was a member of the following organizations: the Cincinnati Florists' Society, the S. A. F. & O. H., the Cuvier Press Club, and the German Pioneer Society. His widow and one son, Roy, survive him. After the funeral services on Friday, the remains were cremated.

Theodore Cobb, of the D. M. Ferry Co., Detroit, Mich., gave a dinner at the Cuvier Press Club, February 23, to his customers and friends in this city and vicinity. In an interesting talk he told of the seven hundred acre trial farm of his firm. The guests present decided to organize a permanent club for social purposes for the seedsmen of this vicinity.

The Shoemaker Seed Co. is now located in its new quarters, 441 Main street.

C. E. Critchell has been having some very fine lily of the valley and orchids.

OVERSUPPLY OF BULBOUS STOCK.

Market conditions are not overly encouraging as the bulbous stock which is now arriving in large quantities is being offered at exceptionally low prices, quotations varying from one and one-half to three cents. Violets are plentiful at from 50 cents to $1 per 100. Roses are in better supply and prices vary from four to 12 cents. Carnations are plentiful, splits selling at $1 per 100, and Rosette and Philadelphia at four cents. Mignonette, sweet peas and daisies are in supply equal to requirements and green goods are plentiful.

NOTES.

The Minnesota State Florists' Association held its regular meeting at the Nicollet hotel, February 15, an interesting feature of the occasion being an address by E. J. Lee, an attorney, who spoke on laws that would be of benefit to the florist trade. Mr. White of the Retailers Jewelers' Association discussed ways to improve the retail business in all lines. Both speakers were heartily thanked by President Desmond. Hugh Will exhibited a vase of Philadelphia and Rosette carnations which were awarded a diploma. L. S. Donaldson Co.'s greenhouses made a fine showing of Formosum lilies on a single stem which stood five feet high and carried 28 buds and flowers. Merriam Park Floral Co. staged a quantity of fancy bulbous stock for which a diploma was awarded. Following the judging the flowers were presented to the hotel management. All of the members were urged to make a good showing in attendance at the dance of the St. Paul Florists' Club, March 7.

Donaldson's bowling team defeated Rice Bros. team two games out of three at the Elks' alleys, February 24. "Cap" Desmond is wearing the "smile that won't come off."

W. D. Desmond is to charter a special car to take the local aggregation to the dance of the St. Paul Florists' Club, March 7. Be sure and be one of the party.

H. B. Whitted has started an extensive advertising campaign in the daily press, calling attention to flowers in season and the quality of service rendered.

Hans Rosacker is sending in some fancy roses, his offerings of Milady and Richmond being especially fine.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. is disposing of large quantities of young stock. The condition is fine.

Thomas Lynes has been on the sick list the past week with a severe attack of lumbago.

Tri-City Florists' Club.

A special meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held at Turner hall, Moline, Ill., with only one member absent, the good attendance due, no doubt, to the near approach of the annual meeting and exhibition of the Illinois State Florists' Association, March 7-8. A. Anderson, recent benedict, received the hearty congratulations of the members present.

Harry Bills called the meeting to order, and in addition to other business connected with the state meet, the entertainment committee outlined a route of sight-seeing in automobiles for those in attendance at the annual meeting, the route covering points of interest from Moline, across the Government Island, if permit can be obtained, to points of interest in Davenport, Davis Garden, Bettendorf and Rock Island, where lunch will be served at Ludwig Stapp's, and back to Moline, including stops at the various parks and greenhouses.

Two new members, J. W. Davis and Frank Davis, were elected to membership. The following committee was appointed to meet delegates at the 1:50 p. m. Rock Island route train: A. Anderson, Wm. Knees, Sr., Ludwig Stapp, H. Pauli, H. Bills and C. J. Reardon.

Trade in all branches continues to be very satisfactory. The social side of the business seems to have developed great activity during the last week. Furrow & Co. report that there has not been a day that they have had less than two or three decorations and the Stiles Co. has had a similar experience with that kind of work. There is also a big call for flower seed, shrubbery and decorative stock for out-door planting. The mayor of the city has offered a prize of an automobile to the child who produces the most, in money value, from a city lot, and from present indications, it would seem that every vacant lot in the city is going to be a truck garden this summer.

The rose, Ophelia, is said to be the best rose ever shipped as a cut flower to this city; it travels without receiv-

MARKET CONDITIONS UNCHANGED.

Market conditions during the past week were much the same as the week previous, the exception being that the call for stock suitable for funeral work showed an increase over that of last week. Roses are more plentiful and the grade is A1. In the carnation line, the majority of splits are Enchantress with red and white following in rotation. Sweet peas are more plentiful and some fine stock is seen.

NOTES.

Wm. R. Schroeder, president of the Milwaukee Florists' club and C. C. Pollworth as a committee of two, attended a meeting of the Wisconsin state fair board at Madison, February 24. From reports the fair officials took kindly to the proposition of our committee in regards to suggestions relative to state fair matters and much good undoubtedly will follow.

While trying to crank his Buick automobile, February 22, the machine backfired and H. V. Hunkel had the misfortune of breaking his right wrist. This, however, does not hinder him from attending to business as before.

Alex Klokner had the decorations for the annual Bachelor club ball at the Deutscher club last week. From reports it was up to the high standard of the last few seasons.

J. Seal, reported sick last week, is again attending to his duties.

AMPLE SUPPLY BUT WEAK DEMAND.

Business during the past week was rather quiet. Good stock of all kinds was plentiful but the demand was weak, and where the better grades were moved at sacrifice prices, the other offerings suffered in proportion. Roses, carnations, sweet peas and violets are seen in quantity, and while the prices on carnations have inclined downward, quotations on roses hold firm. Some very fine hyacinths are now to be had, but the supply cleans up quickly. Pot plants are plentiful. The wholesalers are very well pleased with the stock that is coming into the market.

NOTES.

The Eggeling Floral Co. reports a very busy week, there being an unusual demand for funeral work. Mrs. Eggeling's window displays are always attractive features at this establishment.

Fred W. Bruenig, a pioneer in the trade in this city, died February 25. His widow and four children who survive, have the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement.

John Steidle, of Olivette, Mo., finds a quick market here for his roses, carnations and snapdragons. All are of A1 quality and move as soon as received.

A. Jablonsky, of Olivette, Mo., is sending in some very fine carnations. They arrive on the market in splendid condition and are always in demand.

The Bourdet Floral Co. is showing some very fine pot plants, especially noteworthy being hyacinths, azaleas, tulips, cyclamens and primroses.

The flower department of the Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney Co. had a clever window display last week that attracted much attention.

Robert Winkler has been buying rubber plants and has accumulated some very fine stock.

TRADE CONDITIONS SATISFACTORY.

While there has been a good general run of business the past week it can not be said to have been either dull nor brisk. We have had some bad weather, which is a good thing; as it has been considerably colder and will hold back outdoor vegetation to its great advantage. Roses are still scarce, there being practically no American Beauties and very few Killarneys. Aaron Ward is blooming to some extent and Ophelia filling what would otherwise be a decided deficit in the rose supply. Carnations are large and handsome and are plentiful, which helps out a great deal. Violets are still abundant and lily of the valley is in good supply. Sweet peas, too, are plentiful. There are many lilies, both callas and Harrisii, and these are very serviceable in funeral work, of which there is plenty all the time. There are still good plant sales and fine stock to choose from in all the seasonable varieties.

The display of seeds in the stores heralds the near approach of spring and the gardening season. From the supply laid in, the florists evidently expect a large trade. Sales on the fancy blue-bird china bowls and the stem holders have been brisk, some firms having ordered several times and sold out. The near approach to the lenten season brings no dismay to the florist's heart in this city, for it is not universally or even very generally observed, and the social world moves on very much as it does at other seasons, always, however, looking forward to a glorious Easter.

Geny Bros. have fine Easter and calla lilies, lots of violets, sweet peas and lily of the valley.

The Joy Floral Company has a fine supply of Ophelia roses and splendid carnations.

BUSINESS BACK TO NORMAL.

Business is normal again after the heavy rains, the wind and the frost, and the trade are now able to depend upon their regular supply of stock. Roses are improving and carnations are plentiful and good. Many of the florists are becoming interested in novelties and planning to increase sales by catching the eye of the tourist as well as the regular customers. The usual business in orange blossoms is on the gain and eastern shipments are being made to quite an extent.

NOTES.

John Lewis Childs, of Flowerfield, N. Y., the well-known grower, was a recent visitor. He called on the local trade, although on a pleasure trip.

The Darling Flower Shop have a novelty in the way of Shasta daisies, hand tinted in red and blue. They are beautiful as well as novel.

The Redondo Floral Co., in addition to a supply of fine Victory carnations, displayed fancy Radiance and Sunburst roses this week.

J. W. Wolters is specializing on novelties. He is well supplied with an unusual variety of flowers.

Morris & Snow Seed Co., Inc., report the largest sales in both seeds and plants in many years.

GOOD SUPPLY BUT DEMAND WEAK.

Palm Beach and Atlantic City seem to have captured a goodly share of the business that was looked for and expected the past week; at least, the stores complained that the demand was not at all as it should be for the last weeks of the social season. There is an abundance of stock. Roses, in all varieties, with the exception of American Beauties, which are now so scarce that they are but an annoying factor, are in full supply with a softening of prices, which, however, hold very well considering the supply and light demand. Carnations are very good and move fairly well. Sweet peas are well to the front, a sunny day or two bringing them forward in great form. Some extra fine stock from eastern growers was seen this week. Easter and calla lilies are much more plentiful with a corresponding fall in price. Violets do not sell as well as in former years. Ward and Sweetheart roses, cattleyas, and sweet peas push them hard as a corsage flower, for which purpose they had the field to themselves for a very long time. Lily of the valley is still scarce and likely to remain so the balance of the season.

NOTES.

The most interesting event of last week was the wedding of Miss Grace Battles, daughter of H. H. Battles, to George Burgess Yerkes, of Plainfield, N. J., which occurred February 23 in the Holy Trinity church. The decorations were elaborate, but rich and beautiful in their simplicity. The chancel was banked with cibotium ferns. Rising at intervals from this background were six large gilt vases surmounted by large globe-like formations of spring flowers. These were filled in solid spots of color, bunches of tulips, sweet peas, daffodils, Easter lilies and here and there clusters of immortelles in separate colors, blue, yellow and white, all combining to produce a color effect which seemed a golden tone. Two very large, enameled, white garden vases at the front of the chancel were set high and filled with long stemmed callas and cibotium fronds. A garland of cattleyas was curved around the front. The front chancel rail was also banked with Easter and Japanese lilies, sweet peas, tulips, etc. The front of the gallery was festooned with heavy strands of laurel with large sprays of daffodils in the full part. The main aisle was a conspicuous feature, being decorated the entire length with artistically arranged sprays each composed of 18 Easter and pink Japanese lilies. These were tied to the pew ends with bows of light blue satin ribbon 10 inches in width. There were four yards in each bow, the lower ends and loops being fastened to the pew ends with glass push pins. From the front of the church the whole effect was very fine and one of the finest decorations ever seen in the church. The bride carried a bouquet of cattleyas and lily of the valley, while the maid of honor and maids had fur trimmed satin muffs ornamented with cattleyas.

The meeting of the local committees of the flower show, held February 29, was the best attended and most en-

The Chamber of Commerce Journal, in its February number, contains much about the show, together with fine illustrations. Blue and white pennants, advertising the show, are now seen on all florists' and many other autos. The flower show preparations are coming along by leaps and bounds, especially in the publicity department. Chairman Therkildson seems to have hypnotic powers, as in his wonderful way he is getting pages of notices from the best papers and entire special supplements and sections are to be used when the show opens. Under his direction this show will receive better and more publicity than any exhibition of any kind that has ever been held in this city.

Everyone who was fortunate enough to be there, remembers the wonderful display of carnations at the February meeting of the florists' club, and they will be glad to hear that this is likely to be eclipsed at the next meeting, Tuesday, March 8, when the sweet pea exhibits are all in place. All the noted growers of sweet peas in the east have promised their best, and this with the address of Howard M. Earl, will make this one of the club's greatest meetings.

The first finished copy of the rose annual of the American Rose Society was sent to President S. S. Pennock. It is a triumph of the printer's art, with its elegant color plates and splendid half-tone work. Many valuable articles written by the very best rose authorities in this country bring rose information up to the very latest introductions. It is valuable to any person interested in any way in growing roses for either profit or pleasure.

Now that Wm. A. Leonard, the Lansdowne rose grower, has an interest in the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange, things will go forward with a rush, as Mr. Leonard has energy plus, and thoroughly understands the business from every angle.

Walter Davis has been obliged to discontinue business for a month in order to have absolute rest to recover from his accident when run down by a Ford car. The Philadelphia Cut Flower Company will handle his business during his absence.

J. H. Habermehl's Sons will this spring replace their entire greenhouse structures with modern iron frame houses, greatly increasing the efficiency of the place.

Flowers in quantity are a feature with the Leo Niessen Co. "Use them in quantity and we will make the prices right," is their way of moving the surplus.

Daffodils, violets and tulips are specials with Berger Brothers. A splendid assortment of roses and sweet peas are also offered.

Select carnations are seen in quantity in Edward Reid's shop. Mock and Sunburst roses are also a feature.

MARKET QUIET BUT PRICES FAIR.

The business of the past week was rather quiet, with a little more life in the market, Saturday, February 26. Though in carnations, violets and ordinary bulbous stock, prices have been low, on the best grades of the best varieties of roses prices have held reasonably firm. American Beauties are not yet plentiful and the best specials sell at the rate of $60 per 100. Hadley, Ophelia and other of the newer varieties are also holding up well. There is a large supply of tulips and narcissi on the market, but first class stock brings a fair price. In this connection it may be stated that thousands of pans of tulips, narcissi and hyacinths are going direct to the retail stores, and with the pans neatly covered and in some cases decorated with ribbon, they are quite attractive. There is good lilac on the market, both cut and in pots, and the best sells well. The retail stores also show a variety of other good plants, well flowered, such as azaleas, rhododendrons, heather, acacias, cyclamens and primroses. The best cut cattleya orchids wholesale at the rate of $50 per 100. Lilies and lily of the valley move fairly well and prices are steady.

February 28.—There is little change in the condition of the market. American Beauties, Hadleys, and the better grades of other roses hold up well, but there is a downward tendency in common stock. Yellow narcissus is in rather short supply, temporarily at least, and the price is somewhat higher. It is about time for the southern stock to appear, but it will have little effect on good home grown stock, as the best stores will not buy the southern. Carnations remain about the same. Some dealers try hard for $4 per 100, but with poor success. There has been no "violet weather." At this writing there is sunshine, but a cutting northwest wind, and violets are as cheap as ever.

NOTES.

The entertainment and ball of the Greek-American Florists' Association at the Terrace Garden, on the evening of February 24, was a very successful affair. The hall was well filled and we understand that the box office receipts were eminently satisfactory. Before the grand march there was quite an extended and clever program rendered in songs, dances and comedy skits. The exhibition dancing of Mr. and Miss Demetrios was particularly good. After the grand march the night was given up to dancing by all who wished to dance. The native American florists were well represented. The hall was handsomely decorated for the occasion, the work being done under the direction of M. Rovatzos, chairman of the decoration committee, ably assisted by G. Nicholas, S. Tsagouris, C. Zaimis, St. Massas, J. Wilson and G. Ronteris. Other committees were as follows: Reception—Jas. Soteriades, chairman; P. Bounakos, G. Ronteris, S. Sakas and G. Brembos. Finance—P. Theophine, chairman; G. Cotsonas and Jas. Tryforos. Badges—Jas. Carlaftes and S. Sakas. Floor—John Felouris, chairman; John Strates, N. Lales, James Carlaftes, John Wilson, floor manager, and G. Hanges, assistant. Tickets—John Tryforos and G. Ronteris. Flowers—Ch. Pappas and G. Mitris.

We have received, in pamphlet form, from Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y., a copy of report of the school gardens committee of the Society American Florists, presented at the San Francisco convention. It is interesting reading and tells what is being done to encourage the school children to take an interest in gardening. Some of "us boys," who were reared on farms, can recall a time when there was no popular and powerful aid in our gardening operations, like the S. A. F. The writer can recall that he was sometimes in danger of getting "whaled" for putting in the garden when there were potatoes to hoe or stones to pick up in the field. While the school gardens are commendable for cities, we believe there is also room for them in many country districts. As a reminder, we will state that the school garden committee is composed as follows: Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y., chairman; Michael Barker, Chicago, Irwin Betermann, Indianapolis, Ind.; Gust. X. Amryhn, New Haven, Conn.; Leonard Barron, Garden City, N. Y.

As will be elsewhere noted, the MacNiff Horticultural Co. will start their spring auctions March 7. The activities of this concern are noteworthy. They now occupy three large stores, and their receipts of both home and foreign grown stock is enormous. By the S. S. New Amsterdam, which arrived from Rotterdam, February 24, they received about 150 cases of plants, and that was only a beginning. They are also active in the seed business and are carrying a fine stock of garden furniture.

At William P. Ford's, 107 West 28th street, we have noticed exceptionally fine lily of the valley, lilies, lilac, orchids, sweet peas and much other good stock. An unusual feature for this season at this store is very fine iris.

At the store of G. E. M. Stump, we have recently noted a very fine display of plants, both singly and in combinations. The season's business continues good at this store.

Livadas & Sarony, of 933 Park avenue, have recently been doing good work in decorating for a golden wedding.

C. Albert Small, of J. H. Small & Sons, visited Washington, D. C., February 25, and attended the dinner of the Gridiron club. His brother, J. H. Small, of Washington, is a member of the club and took an active part in the proceedings, which have received extended notice in the daily press.

Prizes of $25 each were offered at the Greek ball for the best lady and gentleman two step dancers. The prizes were won by Miss Anna Wier and Stamatis Semitopoulos. Over 2,000 persons attended the ball.

The boys are saying: "Hello, Pap!" to Theodore Malandre, head of the well known retail firm of Malandre Brothers. It is now Malandre Brothers — and son.

Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., was in the city to attend a meeting of the American Dahlia Society, held February 29 at the Hotel Grand.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held on the night of March 13. It will be "rose night" and fine exhibits are expected.

Washington's birthday business was quiet. Weather moderating, but considerable frozen stock arrived February 23.

A. F. F.

Horticultural Society of New York.

The success of the exhibitions for January and February have influenced the society to hold an exhibition in March, contrary to its usual custom. This exhibition will occur Wednesday, March 15, at the American Museum of Natural History, 77th street and Central Park West. Premiums are offered for collections of cut blooms of orchids, for both commercial and non-commercial growers, and also for roses and carnations for both classes of growers. For non-commercial growers only, premiums are offered for sweet peas, snapdragons, narcissi, tulips and lilies. The exhibition committee is also authorized to award prizes for plants or flowers of unusual merit or excellence of cultivation. Schedules are now ready and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York City.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—Karl Ziedler has let the contract for an extension to his range, giving him three fine houses, each 32x425 feet.

SPLendid FEBRUARY BUSINESS

Local weather conditions and the local florists have both been very active of late. St. Valentine's day trade was almost as heavy as the Saturday preceding Easter, and a little advertising brought good sales on Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays. Bulbous stock is seen in profusion and the quality is superior to that seen in this market for several years. Roses are in good supply and Ophelia, My Maryland, Shawyer, Killarney, Brilliant and Russell are fine. American Beauties continue to be a scarce article. Carnations are plentiful and the quality is very good. The demand for funeral work has been brisk and the deaths of a good number of prominent people gave the florists many large orders.

NOTES.

Farmers' day at Cornell University was well attended by florists from many cities, but the representation from this city numbered only two. Bad weather kept the greenhouse men at home and President Kasting was prevented from attending by illness. The officers in attendance were all pronounced in their opinion that the New York State Federation of Horticultural and Floral Clubs should give hearty support to the project of erecting a new building to be devoted for floriculture and horticulture at the state fair grounds at Syracuse. Fruit growers and all kindred interests are miserably provided for and if the fair authorities expect to have a fair in keeping with Toronto suitable buildings will have to be provided. It is up to the Empire state to do something.

The florists' bowling club is rolling regularly, but they have not got Joe Streit to send a letter to Rochester and say "wake up". We have the promise of another cup from Kasting and Hart and a good day's outing with a jolly bunch. Allie Salter and Charlie Vick are worth losing a game to if we can spend an afternoon with them. Neubeck of Buffalo and Bates of Rochester, get busy.

The annual election and banquet of the florists' club will be held next week, and the committee in charge of arrangements have promised a good time.

Saturday bargain sales are now popular with nearly all of the local trade and bulbous stock is moved nicely in this way.

Dreer's Famous American Asters

DREER'S SUPERB LATE BRANCHING ASTERS

The finest Asters for late August and September blooming.

The plants form strong, branching bushes, 2 to 2½ feet high bearing on long strong stems their handsome Chrysanthemum-like flowers, which, under ordinary cultivation, average 5 inches across. The form of the flowers, together with the length of the stems, places them at the head of Asters for cutting. They come into bloom from two to three weeks after the average type, usually at their best during September, and filling in the gap between the general run of Asters and Chrysanthemums. We offer eight beautiful and distinct colors, viz.:

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer, Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20-22, 1916.

CINCINNATI, O.—J. Chas. McCullough, wife and daughter, are at Palm Beach, Fla.

JERSEYVILLE, ILL.—William A. Rice of this city has been granted a patent for a seed separator and cleaner.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, March 1, were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $8 per 100 pounds.

W. W. BARNARD, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, who has been in California on account of impaired health, is reported progressing favorably.

JOHNSTOWN, PA.—The H. R. Wilbur Corporation has purchased the Brokenstraw Valley Seed Co.'s business at Youngsville, Pa., and will move it to this city.

LOECHNER & Co., New York, report that they have been advised by Hjalmar Hartman & Co., that the Danish government has put an embargo on all root seed for cattle feeding, such as mangels, rutabaga and turnips.

SOME California seed growers report salsify a total loss due to the excessive rains in January and February. Other biennial crops on low lands have suffered to some extent. The recent weather has been fine for all crops.

THE onion set situation at Chicago remains about the same. All hands are busy getting stock packed to ship as soon as the present cold weather breaks. Just now nothing in less than car-lot shipments can be made to points which have no refrigerator car service.

A SPECIAL meeting of the American Seed Trade Association has been called at the Hotel Sherman March 1, about the time we go to press, to consider the matter of seed growers' contracts and the use of the disclaimer as outlined under the head of "Non-Warranty and the Wisconsin Seed Law" in our issue of February 26, page 298.

VISITED CHICAGO: C. W. Scott, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., New York; F. H. Henry, of Henry & Lee, New York; Chas. L. Kunz, representing the M. G. Madson Seed Co., Manitowoc, Wis.; F. P. Lilly, of the Chas. H. Lilly Co., Seattle, Wash.; J. R. Schrenker, Jr., representing the J. Chas. McCullough Seed Co., Cincinnati, O.; Mrs. M. W. Johansen, of the Victor Johansen Seed Co., Los Angeles, Calif.

Rennie Fire at Toronto.

The stock and premises of the Wm. Rennie Co., at Jarvis and Adelaide streets, Toronto, Ont., were partially destroyed by fire and water February 20, the damages, estimated at $200,000, fully covered by insurance. A large quantity of the seeds were packed and ready for shipment. Defective electric wiring is given as the cause of the fire. This was the first fire in the firm's warehouse in 40 years and throws 40 of the 90 employees temporarily out of work.

Non-Warranty and Wisconsin Seed Law.

In last week's issue under the above heading, page 298, we called attention to the repudiation of the American Seed Trade Association's well known disclaimer by a Wisconsin seed growing concern. We now reproduce two clauses of the amended Wisconsin law, relating to the examination and inspection of seeds, having some bearing on this subject as follows, see Chapter 495, Laws of 1913, Section 1494x-2:

"2. For the purposes of sections 1494x-1 to 1494-16, inclusive, the term 'agricultural seeds' shall also include seed peas for canning purposes sold in lots of 100 pounds or more.

"3. In all actions for damages growing out of any violation of sub-section two of this section, if no fraud, bad faith, or want of due care is shown on the part of the vendor, the purchaser shall be limited in his recovery to the amount of the purchase price of the seed."

PRESIDENT LUPTON'S VIEWS.

President Lupton, of the American Seed Trade Association, writes as follows, February 28:

"Your issue of February 26 contains a copy of the contract form adopted by the Wisconsin Cannery Association which together with comments on the omission of the disclaimer adopted by the American Seed Trade Association is of great interest to the seed trade.

"The use of the disclaimer in the ordinary business of the seedsman has been found absolutely necessary for his reasonable protection. It is obviously unfair and unjust that the seedsman should be held responsible for the crop produced from the seed sold, the business of growing seed for a canning company on a contract, such as is here set forth, presents a somewhat different condition from that of ordinary trade. Under such a contract the seller agrees to do certain things relative to growing the crop, none of which appear unreasonable, and to make delivery of the product, either in full or on the usual pro-rata basis. The question at once arises, Where does the seller's responsibility end? Does it end with the delivery and acceptance of the seed by the canning company? If so, then the disclaimer could be used in the ordinary way, without affecting the contract and we are at a loss to see why any objection should be made to its use. If on the other hand the seller under this contract assumes any responsibility as to quality, productiveness or any other matter connected with the crop produced from the seeds delivered under this contract, the disclaimer becomes necessary for his reasonable protection. The obligation assumed by each party should be clearly understood. The disclaimer states it fairly, and it will be indeed regrettable if any seedsman, after being a party to its adoption, fails to stand firm for its use."

Catalogue Postage Bill.

Chairman Therkildson, of the American Seed Trade Association's postal laws committee, writes as follows, February 26:

"I am enclosing a typewritten copy of H. R. 11621, which I have succeeded in having introduced by Mr. Tague. Mr. Tague is from Boston and is a member of the House Post Office and Post Roads committee. This bill is identical with the proposed bill that I submitted to the American Seed Trade Association in convention at San Francisco last summer, and which was endorsed by them. It may be necessary to have some amendments and adjustments to this which would be for the good of all, but this bill as a whole will be taken care of, and I now desire your co-operation both in giving this publicity and writing to your representatives and senators to use their efforts to have this bill passed. It needs immediate attention on the part of the members of the American Seed Trade Association. Its passage will enable us to make good catalogues instead of being penalized as under the present arrangement."

THE BILL.

H. R. 11621 in the house of representatives, February 16, 1916. Mr. Tague introduced the following bill, which was referred to the committee on post offices and post roads and ordered to be printed.

A bill to provide for mailing catalogues, circulars, and so forth, now mailable under eight ounces in weight at the third-class rate of one cent for two ounces or fraction thereof, at a pound rate of eight cents.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that on matter em-
